Very nice looking radio! I am a fan of the old Pearce-Simpson rigs myself, although I have yet to acquire any of their tube sets.
Besides a few assorted mobile Pearce-Simpson rigs, I have several base units:
Simba, Bengal, Super Lynx, Pussycat, and a Bearcat 23B. All are excellent working radios, and I wouldn't part with any of them.

I have a Bengal, too. Worked great until recently when it developed a relay Toroidal coils on the AC line had helped in this case. In the case of TV's with detached component speakers or cheap stereos, the speaker wires are also a source of ingress. Many times people space speakers apart in opposite directions, and they may be separated at a distance of the width of their family room, which is often 20 feet or so. Can you say "dipole" antenna at HF frequencies? The RF gets picked up by the speaker leads and gets coupled into and demodulated by the power amp of the stereo or TV. In this case, bypassing the speaker leads with small caps, or running coaxial speaker wire can help.

The line between where near field radiation ends and ground wave picks up is not always obvious. If the guy receiving the interference is 4 doors down the street, I tend to think that he's outside the "cone" of the near field. But I could be wrong.

My father had one of them connected to our old console B&W TV in the

I'll have to look this up. This is the first that I've heard of any changes. Naturally, I'll want to do what I can to stay in spec, even if existing equipment is "grandfathered". It makes for a better defense if you already meet the tougher specs, and you receive an RFI complaint.

Don't know, I never actually saw the device. The potential source of the problem was brought to my attention by a repeater user's group who had documented similar problems. We had been trying to locate the device which would come and go depending on temperature and humidity.
As luck would have it, as we were getting close, a summer thunderstorm may lave produced a fatal lightning strike, as the interference suddenly ceased.

For someone who had been advancing the notion that consumer devices are not all that bad, WRT RFI susceptibility, you spend a lot of time making up RFI blocking devices for them..... ;-)

And that responsibility extends to the operation and maintenance of his equipment. That responsibility becomes unreasonable when extended to include the prevention of RF ingress into neighboring consumer devices (Which should have been done by the manufacturer). IMHO it is unfair for the manufacturers, by choosing to cut corners, to place this burden on radio ops. At the very least, the manufacturers should be held accountable as enablers or orchestrators of these incidents by facilitating the easy reception of RFI.

I remember the earlier days of ham radio. If a ham interfered with a TV, he made a trap out of a length of twinlead, and placed it across the TV's antenna terminals, and that usually was all it took. The issue today has become way more complicated. Which is ironic, since most hams use commercial equipment these days, and those ham radios have become cleaner then they ever were, so the percentage of "dirty" transmitters has dropped in the last 40 years, yet the incidents of RFI has increased dramatically..

>>>The other person is doing nothing to interfere with the ham.

I would consider incessant complaints to be a form of "interference".

Including ham radio.

> Manufacturers can't make things bullet-proof

Yes, yes they can! Maybe not 100% "bullet proof", but certainly "bullet resistant". They choose not to because of the increased cost, on the risk that the interference potential only exists in small isolated cases. But by adopting this attitude, they have effectively transferred the responsibility and the "bad press" for RFI incidents to the innocent radio operator.

Sure, but the major accountability for this issue rests squarely on the shoulders of the manufacturers. They have gambled that a relatively small group of hams does not represent a significant risk to their bottom line. By allowing or participating in bad press which paints hams with the same broad brush as the keyclowns, in the RFI arena, they are only furthering their own agenda. If they are successful at fueling anti-radio sentiment among the general population, which then results in restrictive legislation against radio op's, these same manufacturers can avoid having to address their role in the whole deal.

That's why the ARRL remains a strong voice in the ear of the FCC.
Someone has to keep the players honest. Otherwise radio hobbies (Ham and CB alike) will be squished out of existence by a bunch of reality show watching, game boy playing, phone-a-holics.

But it would be the responsible thing to do, because it could happen.

It might be ham radio today, it could be BPL tomorrow. When your front door is open to all weather, you never know what might come in.

That's the basis of personal responsibility. When you live in a multi-faceted society, you can be assured that freedom gives people the right to pursue a variety of pass time activities. It is also a certainty that there will be certain people who will take offense at the activities of other people. Now there are those who believe that people should be forced to not do their "offensive" activities (based, of course, on their own opinionated criteria, of what should be considered "proper"), while there are others who believe that those who are offended should take the steps to remove the offense from their senses. Obviously neither case should be 100% the rule. Some activities are generally more offensive to the general population, and are regulated (Like porn). Other things (Rap music for example) is a matter of taste, and if you don't like it, too bad, move somewhere else.

Where it becomes interesting is when both sides attempt to make judgement calls about the relative worthiness of the others' respective activities. When you are faced with purely subjective judgement criteria, who is qualified to make that call?

I guess it all boils down to where your mind is. If you believe that it's society's responsibility to protect us from each other, then you might be more inclined to buy into the "ham has the ultimate responsibility for RFI" mindset. If, on the other hand, you believe that we all have a responsibility to protect our own interests, then you would be more inclined to allow everyone to enjoy their activities (In as much as they don't directly threaten health safety or welfare), and take whatever measures need to be taken on a case by case basis.

Thems the breaks of living in "widget world". Remember Part 15.....

And what if the ham was there first?

And what if the "nuisance" interference is coming from a commercial radio or TV station (The ultimate irony). Should that commercial station be forced to curtail operation because they are causing a "nuisance"?

you are making a value judgement. Hopefully, by me turning it around, you can see that.

Step one: get access. Step two: Either replace them with PVC gutters, or run a bare copper wire in the bottom of the aluminum gutters.

Presented with the evidence that no such case existed in which Davey boy referrred, Davey boy began a character assassination in a pathetic attempt at distancing himself from his claim. transmitter or external RF power amplifier transmitting on a frequency

There are also changes in Part 2 for the manufacturing standards of ham equipment.

I work at a radio station where we have lots of audio and radio equipment, computers and networking hardware, telephones and routing system, our own backup generator, and keyclowns driving up and down the street. It is not a typical "consumer" environment.

Where does this "burden" lie? The consumers outnumber the hams 3000 to 1. When it comes to RFI and manufacturing quality, there are much higher priorities. Such as interference to and/or from cell phones, public utility and emergency communications, land-line telephone, television services including cable, satellite and broadcast, broadcast radio services, etc... all of which are far more common and far more important than hams. But they also have to deal with government safety agencies, insurance companies, manufacturing costs (labor is a biggie and that's why so many jobs are exported overseas), consumer demand, market competition, etc..... You are talking about changing the practices of multi-BILLION dollar markets just so a relatively few hams can play with their radios? I don't think so, Dave. That's an unjustified burden. When there are a couple million hams paying hundreds of thousands of dollars each for their equipment, then -maybe- hams might make those manufacturers take notice. But until that happens, the rest of the world sure as hell isn't going to shoulder the 'burdens' of a few hams.

When I find a well-documented study on the issue I may agree. Until then my opinion is based on logic.

>>>>The other person is doing nothing to interfere with the ham.

Cause and effect. Your interference is the cause, the complaints are the effect. Think of it as "constructive feedback".

>>>>It should be up to the ham to use his radio in a way that doesn't cause problems >>>>for anyone else.
>That's like saying that everyone should drive their cars as to not

You are missing the big picture here. Cars are common. Televisions are common. Cordless phones are common. People expect these things to work in the manner in which they were intended, and accept the problems they are expected to cause. Ham radio stations are -not- common. Ham radio interference is -not- what people expect to deal with when they come home from a hard days work, pop open a brew, kick back in their comfy-chair and turn on the tube to watch the news. I don't see how any ham should expect the average person to accept such interference even if it -is- the law.

And legally, if a ham knows he is interfering with a radio or television signal, or even a cordless phone, it is the HAM who is at fault....

97.101(d) "No amateur operator shall willfully or maliciously interfere with or cause interference to any radio communication or signal."

Notice that it doesn't exempt Part 15 devices or Sony televisions, it doesn't release the ham of responsibility just because he tried and failed to prevent the interference, and it doesn't specify where or how that interference occurs. The fact is that if you know your transmission is interfering with the audio, distorting the picture (distortion = interference, Blackburn v. Doubleday Broadcasting Co., Minn. 1984), or crashing someone's wireless palm-pilot, only YOU are at fault. Sony is not responsible for your transmissions and subsequent interference, nor is Zenith, Motorola, or even the poor schmuck who paid too much for an El Cheapo TV that even picks up his coffee maker.... if you know that you are causing interference, you are legally responsible. Period. But you knew that already, right?

>>So the interfering ham should just brush off the neighbor and transmit anytime >>he wants just because he can? That's not very fair, is it?
>The converse to that is that the ham should transmit at all?

Well, how about using a frequency, band or modulation mode that doesn't cause any interference? Or maybe move the antenna so as to point the null at the problem device? Or if you have a vertical, how about setting up a null zone with another pole? I don't see any reason why it can't be done. The same laws of physics apply to both amateur and broadcast, and since broadcast stations can do it, so can hams.

Held hostage? Don't you think that's a bit strong? I mean... geez, nobody is preventing you from using your radio, and you can certainly use it in a way that doesn't interfere with the lives of people that otherwise wouldn't even be aware of your existence. How is that being "held hostage"?

well, the 3 ft antenna will get you on the air. the firestick has a nice design for this (contunuously loaded). its a little better than the base load style as far as efficiency goes.
However, the full quarter wave (102 inch whips) often work best. The only drawback is their sheer physical size (that whip will slap anything withing reach and has been known to snap off if hit hard enough). a base Spring will alleviate some of the problems associated with the antennas size.

given how the loading circuits in a CB HT work, the difference is not real noticeable. However, IMHO, the longer telescopic whips do perform better..

On line for 10 months, the site devoted to HAM INTERNATIONAL products, has received the visit of approximately two miles Net surfers to date. To simplify its access to the greatest number, its pages "got dressed" with a new address: http://www.ham-international.com easier to retain. Some diagrams are already on line, others will follow soon as well as new pages. The objective is to ensure a retrospective detailed, of a range of TX/RX, accessories, micro antennas etc... extremely present on market CB and Radio ham in the Eighties. Many equipment still present are wisely arranged on the chimney, others fewer are always active. You will find information of all kinds concerning the materials (characteristic detailed, infos technical adjustments, photographs etc...). For some perhaps T-it will act of a discovery, for others the occasion of replonger at the time glorious of our Hobby. Do not hesitate to contact me if you have anecdotes, documents, suggestions. Hello all,
I have added to list of things to trade with. I have added 2 computers and 2 receivers.
I have 4 amplifiers. Station 550, it does between 200 250 watts dead key and swings to 550. This amp takes 2 watts to do this. A ameritron ALS 500 moblie amp with the 10 meter mod. 25 watts swinging to 70 will give you 200 swing to 500 with 80 amps of draw on the battery. You can run this amp more effectivly by running two 2200 uf 16 volt electrolitic caps in parallel with that battery and the amp. I have a palamore three tube amp. 12BT6 driving two 6JS6Cs it needs tubes so I have no idea what it does. Then there is the VooDoo 300 B it is a base amp and puts out about 150 watts with 300 watts of swing. The power to drive this amp is 2 watts. The Station 550 and the voodoo 300 B are broad band amp so they will work anywhere between 80 and 10 meters. I have a Johnson Valaint II that needs a Low voltage transformer. Hamarlund HQ 110 and a s-85 receiver. These are for pick up only. To heavy to ship. I'm in Northeast GA.
I have a Pro 2052 trunk tracking scanner as well as a 300 watt MFJ 949C antenna tunner and swr watt meter. Sycron 1000 watt meter as well as to rerceivers. I also Have a Pentium 233 complete dialup internet ready computer. Includes monitor keyboard video cammera vidio card and mouse. I have a 933 Pentium III box with a 8 gig hard drive and 200 meg of ram CD in a tower case with monitor keyboard and mouse. I would perfer not to ship a computer. I have a Pentium II 300 128 meg of ram and 10 gig hard drive monitor keyboard and mouse.
I am looking for a good amp that I can drive with my RCI 2990. Some thing with 4 811s, or 2 or 4 CX 250s, or, 2 or 4 572bs, a single or pair of 3-500s all mounted vertcal of course

Dave Hall n3cvj can't provide for any answers when asked. Ask him a question concerning one of his bullsh*t claims and he attacks the person who asked the question on a personal level in order to avoid getting caught in another of him many, many, long winded lies he has been caught in. dave is a notorious liar and lies only to lie. Davey boy pretends to be a legal-advocate, but owns a Davemade amplifier and was partner in a cb hack shop with a person he claims was a sex fiend. Davey boy once claimed he had a Phelps Stationmaster and when asked about it a year later, he replied "What Phelps?" Now,,I ask any of you, can you all not remember the antennas you have owned over the years? But of course you can,,,in fact, most people can remember not only each and every antenna they ever owned, but brands of radios and mics as well, but then again, most people are not habitual liars like Davey-boy Hall who claimed he knew a cber in Philly who went to court and was found guilty for some cb related offense.
Presented with the evidence that no such case existed in which Davey boy referrred, Davey boy began a character assassination in a pathetic attempt at distancing himself from his claim. With nowhere to run, he recanted his claim and said he never claimed it was in Philly, even when presented with his post showing indeed it was what he claimed. The attacks resumed from Davey Boy and he ran as fast as he could to get away from yet another lie in the pathological, desolate world in which he resides. Davey-boy has since lost yet another isp and is now relegated to behaving himself and minding his ps and qs lest he be writing another check for a new provider.

That's not new. HF equipment has been -40dbc for while now. VHF equipment is at -60 dbc. a 1000 watt station with a harmonic at -40dbc is radiating at a power of 100mW. So the max limit of 50 mW only kicks in at those higher power levels, where -40dbc exceeds 50 mW.

So that means that hams deserve no consideration? I'm sure the civil rights people would love your attitude.

Yes, but collectively they are all potential RFI generators. You've just made my case even more solid by acknowledging that there are other potential sources of RFI. There is nothing unique or special about ham radio which would make the design of more "RF proof", equipment any more costly than the equivalent design considerations for other forms of radio transmissions.

Would you be so arrogant if it were a cell phone operator causing RFI? The fact is that cell phone users are experiencing an explosive growth spurt, and the potential for RFI could increase as well. If the cell phone system starts interfering with some person's TV, would you be so insistent that the cell company cease their operations?

And how about the commercial radio or TV station? Should THEY be forced to cut their power or stop transmitting, if it's found that their equipment is clean, but the lack of proper shielding in the consumer's device is allowing in an excessive amount of RF?

How about municipal systems? Pagers? Police/fire/EMS?

It would seem that the whole basis of your argument hinges on the fact that since hams (and CB'ers) are such a small segment of the population, that they deserve no consideration in the matter.

> But they also have to deal with >government safety agencies, insurance companies, manufacturing costs (labor is a >biggie and that's why so many jobs are exported overseas), consumer demand, >market competition, etc..... You are talking about changing the practices of >multi-BILLION dollar markets just so a relatively few hams can play with their >radios?

How would adopting a more immune design affect any of the factors that you've just listed? The design improvements would be invisible to the consumer. It does not affect where the device is manufactured. The only affect will be that the changes, necessary to make a more RFI immune product, will add to the BOM cost, which the company will either pass on to the consumer, or take it out of their profit margin.

So it's all about money. Nothing more.

Irrelevant. The logic is the same regardless of the percentages of the population versus various devices. If someone has to deal with RFI from a commercial station, then they also have to deal with it from a ham radio station.

>People expect these things to work in the manner in Read Part 15 again. Then write the manufacturer to express your displeasure with their devices not working under these conditions.

> I don't >see how any ham should expect the average person to accept such interference >even if it -is- the law.

Because no one forced someone to buy a particular device, and it's not necessary to maintain a particular standard of living. In the grand scheme of things, the right to watch TV, or play X-box, has no higher priority that the right to freely operate a ham radio station (within the legal standards).

You're back to making value judgements again.

>And legally, if a ham knows he is interfering with a radio or television signal, >or even a cordless phone, it is the HAM who is at fault....

Not if his station is clean.

>97.101(d) "No amateur operator shall willfully or maliciously interfere with or >cause interference to any radio communication or signal."

That does not apply to RFI, it applies to on-channel stations. IOW no ham may deliberately interfere with another licensed service, which occupies the same frequency including, but not limited to, 40 meter broadcast stations, stations with secondary authorization, or other hams etc.

>Notice that it doesn't exempt Part 15 devices or Sony televisions, it doesn't >release the ham of responsibility just because he tried and failed to prevent >the interference, and it doesn't specify where or how that interference occurs.

Because it doesn't apply to RFI.

And Part 15 itself puts the burden on the device's user when it states that "this device must not create harmful interference, and must accept any interference, including that which may cause improper operation".

>The fact is that if you know your transmission is interfering with the audio, >knew that already, right?

I do not agree with your draconian interpretation. If that were the case, practically every ham (or commercial operator) would be forced off the air, as a result of RFI complaints. Since this is not the case, your interpretation is obviously flawed. The FCC upholds the right of hams to operate a reasonable station. They may force quiet hours or reduced power in cases where the ham refused to compromise (some hams can be arzholes). But if the ham can demonstrate that he's made a reasonable effort to minimize the problem, including moving antennas, adding grounds and filters where appropriate, the FCC usually will take a more lenient view. We ALL know that the consumer electronic industry has become lax in proper RFI immunity design. The FCC has proposed tighter standards. The consumer electronics lobby is powerful however, and they don't want to deal with the increased cost. But THEY are the ones who have made this problem what it is.

When I can place a 1960's vintage stereo side by side with a 1990's version and see the night and day difference, what other conclusion is one supposed to make?

That's part of the many things which should 've been automatically performed at the onset of the complaint. Assume for the purposes of this discussion that nothing the ham does on his end fixes the problem.

If it is spectrally clean, then yes. It's not the ham's fault that consumer devices are so poorly made.

Read your own statement. "nobody is preventing you from using your radio", That's not what you've been promoting here. If we adopt your logic here, the minute the ham is involved in an RFI dispute, it becomes HIS ultimate responsibility to "fix" the problem, even if that means that he has to alter or stop his operation. THAT is being held hostage.

I have a clue. It's a simple business ploy for consumer device manufactures to deflect their design responsibility, and get more people to think like you are here, and eventually swing the legislative tide against radio operators. That way the problem gets solved, and THEY don't have to spend dime one.

It's the same thing with the ECPA. Rather than accept responsibility for ensuring the security of cell phone transmissions through encryption schemes (which would have cost money), the cell phone makers instead lobbies congress to outlaw receivers capable of picking up cell phones. It's joke really, as anyone who's truly interested in listening, can find ways to do so. It was feel-good legislation and a band aid at best. Now, the technology has caught up with the issues, and encryption is becoming the norm, making the ECPA somewhat superfluous. But we're stuck with it on the books anyway.

So you are of the impression that big business does not operate with the bottom line as their highest priority? How receptive do you think they'd be to more stringent FCC RFI standards? Do you think that it's not in their best interests to malign (or allow to be maligned) radio operators as "RF terrorists" rather than responsible operators in order to sway the FCC into not giving serious thought to passing those tighter standards? It's funny that they're not coming to the rescue of hams and other radio operators who are being plagued by this RFI problem.

Am I really paranoid, or are you simply hiding your head in the sand?

The operation of a ham radio is not a "civil right". Again, you sound like

The law says "interference", doesn't it? Isn't RFI one cause of interferece? Did you all-of-a-sudden forget that RFI stands for....

..... Radio Frequency Interference?

Not all Part 15 devices are communication devices, and not all RFI comes from communication devices. Regardless, a television transmitter is -not- a Part 15 device.

Hardly! There are PLENTY of hams, probably the vast majority of them, that don't cause interference.

This is pointless. You can make all the excuses you want. Our station will continue to put the kybosh on uncooperative radio operators that cause interference to our signal, regardless of whether they are licensed or not, and we are well within our legal rights to do so. Maybe someday a broadcast station in your locality will take the same course of action as us. And maybe they won't be so nice about it. Like it or not, that's the way it is.

Just a correction: That should be "essential liberty", as it is in the quote by B. Franklin.

97.101(d) "No amateur operator shall willfully or maliciously interfere with or cause interference to any radio communication or signal."

I doubt there are many hams that cause interference maliciously. But however unintentional as the interference may be, if a ham is aware of the interference that he causes whenever he keys up, that certainly falls under the category of 'willfully'. The rule looks pretty clear to me. Unless someone wants to play semantic games with the wording, I don't think there is any doubt as to who is legally responsible.

I have been following the arguement with interest. Are you saying that no matter what the reason for the alleged interference, that if the ham knows he is interfering, then it is the hams fault?

Have you considered 'poor design' of the receiver? The FCC has.

JJ asked the poignant question with:
>And where in the rules does it say it is the >ham is legally at fault?

Asking Frankiestein to cite a passage or post that supports any of his paranoid or wild claims is futile. He is unable, though willing. Impotence.

Frankistein Gillinad, into the hooch at at unusually early hour on the weekend, managed through blurred vision and saliva-stained keyboard:
>The operation of a ham radio is not a "civil

Told you "Twisty" never said it.,,,but to the untrained eye, considering the intense admiration you publicly display towards myself, coupled with your involuntary mania that compells you to publicly honor the Body of Twist,,,no scratch that,,that's not right,,,,,,your involuntary obsession that somehow dictates you need explain yourself to me and the world by your repeated invocation of the Body of Twist (prayer),,,well, one can see how you would easily be confounded and confuse something Ben Franklin said for something I said,,,and vice versa. Have yourself a merry little,,,,have a great weekend.

That's what I have repeated half-a-dozen times. Hey, I didn't write the rules. And don't forget that this is a Part 97 rule written specifically for the amateur radio service.

>Have you considered 'poor design' of the receiver? The FCC has.

Then why didn't they include such an exception in the rules? Does the rule say, "....unless the receiver is of poor design."? Or, "....unless the receiver is suseptible to radio frequency interference."? No. And I think I have explained the reasons why to the point of excess.

I'm not cheerleading, simply being realistic.

I will be honest with you - I do get a charge how many folks get their panties in a knot over twist. Really. Yes, I've told the story about the rhombic antenna with 40 KW to it. Hey, the XO wanted a phone patch. I was not at the transmitter (I was 20 miles away). If you were ever in the military (any you may well have been), you would understand. You do not say no. Certainly not an enlisted man LOL.

My honest opinion (and you are welcome to yours) is to leave it be. A lot of folks 'pump up the stories' just to get others upset. There are a lot of law-abiding folks (and some not as law abiding, I'll grant), but let the FCC do its' job (which is largely to promote big business AKA BPL) and if you or I have a problem, VOTE. It isn't a big secret in this country. Really.

I'm not slamming you, just take a look at reality. I'm 56 now and I don't need to make any enemies LOL

Jim

If the ham's station is clean and the interference is caused by the device being interfered with due to poor design or a device that is not supposed to pick up radio waves, the ham has no legal responsibility. It is the responsibity of the owner of the device to fix the problem.

The ham radio frequencies are not the same frequencies as commercial radio and television. If the ham's signal is clean, then any device that is disrupted by that signal is incorrectly acting as a receiver of what should be out of band for that receiver. It's not interference when the commercial TV or radio receiver picks up signals that it should not be able to receive.

I don't have the FCC comments in front of me. Since you are the blowhard here I'll let you find them. But sometime back, and I don't remember how far. Sometime in the 70s or 80s sounds right, the FCC basically told the manufactures to clean up their equipment. And that in 'most' cases the receiving equipment was at fault.

So, I am sure you will rant and rave, but I am not going to do your research. I highly recommend you do so. And quite showing your ignorance.

If you were in my neighborhood I assure you I would fight your silly little broadcast is superior crap.

In the case were the inteference is the fault of the device the FCC has many times told the complaing party the problem is theirs and not the Amateur's, and it is the complaintant's responsibilty to fix the problem.
I will site a case that happened to me. When I was first licensed I liked to operate on the 15 meter band (21 mHz). A neighbor had a television that used 21 mHz for the Intermediate Frequency. Guess what?
Every time I operated the tv IF picked up my signal just like a 15 meter receiver. She complained to the FCC. I was asked to responed to the FCC about the problem. When I explained the problem, the FCC told the neighbor it was her problem because her television was picking up signals it was not supposed to and I was under no responsibility to fix it or to stop operating on 15 meters.
Now go on back to the cb folks where you can spout your nonsense and no one knows the difference.

Go read Part 15 !! The FCC has specifically said that commercial devices aren't supposed to act as receivers of signals outside their bands. If they do, it is the fault of the receiver.

If the ham is transmitting on his own frequency with a legal and clean signal, then he is not interfering with any service. Interference is transmitting on the same frequency as another service. We don't do that.

I hasve created a Yahoo discussion forum for those who oppose illegal operators.... AND those "illegal" operators who oppose being told they are illegal operators.

If you have a beef, bring it up there....!!!

ALL are welcome.

No holds barred discussion.

ALL who subscribe have immediate access.

Chat room is open to all members. Voice-capable, so you can scream at each other.

This is an attempt to direct the fighting to an area other than the newsgroups.

Have fun!

I have read Part 15 and it says no such thing. What it -does- say is this (emphasis added):

Sec. 15.17 Susceptibility to interference.
(a) Parties responsible for equipment compliance are ADVISED to CONSIDER the proximity and the high power of non-Government licensed radio stations, such as broadcast, amateur, land mobile, [etc], when choosing operating frequencies during the design of their equipment so as to reduce the susceptibility for receiving HARMFUL INTERFERENCE.

15.3(m) defines "harmful interference" (again, emphasis added):

ANY emission, radiation or induction that [...] seriously degrades, obstructs or repeatedly interrupts a radiocommunications service operating in accordance with this chapter.

Now look at 97.101(d) again (and again, emphasis added):

No amateur operator shall willfully or maliciously interfere with or cause interference to ANY radio communication or signal.

Notice that the limiting word 'harmful' is NOT included, which means this rule applies to ANY form of interference. It also says "ANY radio communication or signal", which does -not exclude- intermediate frequency (IF) radio signals.

>If the ham is transmitting on his own frequency with a legal and clean >signal, then he is not interfering with any service.

Most of the time that's the case.

> Interference is >transmitting on the same frequency as another service.

The FCC defines interference in 2.1(c) as:

"The effect of unwanted energy due to one or a combination of emissions, radiations, or inductions upon reception in a radio[chyph]communication system, manifested by any performance degradation, misinterpretation, or loss of information which could be extracted in the absence of such unwanted energy."

So much for your semantic spin-job.

Let us put you theory to the test.

Someone builds a crystal rig just for the fun of it. As typical, it has almost no selectivity. I can hear nearby hams as well as the station I am tuning.

According to your argument, I can shut down everything I hear that isn't the station I'm trying to listen to.

Why don't you try it and report back your results to us?

Your argument is reminiscent of the fellow that got on rrap and claimed that after the international treaty requirement for Morse code was dropped, that every Technician now had HF access.

RFI supression equipment is sold, this place is typical:

http://www.sncmfg.com/telecom/noise_protection/ht-stories.html

This story is very good:

http://www.sncmfg.com/telecom/noise_protection/rid-ht.html

Some interesting stuff from part 15:

PART 15--RADIO FREQUENCY DEVICES

Subpart A--General

Sec. 15.5 General conditions of operation.

(a) Persons operating intentional or unintentional radiators shall not be deemed to have any vested or recognizable right to continued use of any given frequency by virtue of prior registration or certification of equipment, or, for power line carrier systems, on the basis of prior notification of use pursuant to Sec. 90.63(g) of this chapter.
(b) Operation of an intentional, unintentional, or incidental radiator is subject to the conditions that no harmful interference is caused and that interference must be accepted that may be caused by the operation of an authorized radio station, by another intentional or unintentional radiator, by industrial, scientific and medical (ISM) equipment, or by an incidental radiator.
(c) The operator of a radio frequency device shall be required to cease operating the device upon notification by a Commission representative that the device is causing harmful interference. Operation shall not resume until the condition causing the harmful interference has been corrected.
(d) Intentional radiators that produce Class B emissions (damped wave) are prohibited.

another interesting part:

Sec. 15.17 Susceptibility to interference.

(a) Parties responsible for equipment compliance are advised to consider the proximity and the high power of non-Government licensed radio stations, such as broadcast, amateur, land mobile, and non-geostationary mobile satellite feeder link earth stations, and of U.S. Government radio stations, which could include high-powered radar systems, when choosing operating frequencies during the design of their equipment so as to reduce the susceptibility for receiving harmful interference. Information on non-Government use of the spectrum can be obtained by consulting the Table of Frequency Allocations in Sec. 2.106 of this chapter.
(b) Information on U.S. Government operations can be obtained by contacting: Director, Spectrum Plans and Policy, National Telecommunications and Information Administration, Department of Commerce, Room 4096, Washington, DC 20230.

[54 FR 17714, Apr. 25, 1989, as amended at 62 FR 4655, Jan. 31, 1997; 63 FR 40835, July 31, 1998]

First thanks for letting me post here to this radio related group.....just a friendly invite to a radio hobby related group that some of you might be interested in.......Ham Radio Help Group....ALL are WELCOME! If you are new to Ham Radio, a current Ham wanting support on upgrading, or a Ham that would just like to help by supporting someone direct or mabye providing study material then please give Ham Radio Help Group a look over (we usually have someone giving out FREE study material every so often also....current FREE items in our "Polls" is an ARRL entry Tech License book "Now You're Talking"...an ARRL Extra study book.....a FREE 2 year subscription to HamTestOnLine (worth $29)....Join in and put your name in the hat!). So far a great group of good diverse folks from those new to Ham Radio asking questions to get involved to current Hams upgrading or giving advice! Here are a few facts about the group thus far:

- 800 members and growing
- 4400 message posts in just a few months....very active group so if you join in please set your mail code to "daily digest", "Special Notice Only" or "NO Mail" and read posts on line because on busy test weekends we have averaged 100 posts in just a few days!
- Members giving and receiving FREE study materials so check our "Polls" and posts (study materials like ARRL/Gordon West Tech, Gen, Extra books..or code study tapes etc)
- Many members getting their first Ham Tech tickets and just starting out......sharing testing times and support of members passing tests is encouraged (over 60 members upgraded in just a few months!)
- Group has 5 moderators to motivate the group
- Sunday Group ChatNight and also EchoLink Net - 8pm cst (open to all so even those that are not Hams can participate one on one and ask direct questions or meet members)
- Many message posts on study help ideas, support, station building, basics, etc
- Check out our Calendar, Links, Database and Files sections also

The main purpose of the group is to support those wanting to get licensed, upgrade, or Ham willing to help with advice or pass study material along (no negative, no political posts...support only). This group is focused on promoting Ham Radio in a positive way so if this sounds like something you might be interested in please join in!

If you had purchased $1000.00 of Nortel stock one year ago, it would now be worth $49.00.

With Enron, you would have $16.50 left of the original $1,000.00.

With WorldCom, you would have less than $5.00 left.

But, if you had purchased $1,000.00 worth of Bud (the beer, not the stock) one year ago, drank all the beer, then turned in the cans for the aluminum recycling price, you would have $214.00.

Based on the above, current investment advice is to drink heavily and recycle.

It's called the 401-Keg Plan

you are victim of another cb myth, read the facts below

Q. What are the limitations of legal amateur radio linear amplifiers?

A. Power amplifiers intended for use at licensed amateur radio stations must comply with the provisions of Sections 97.315 and 97.317 of the F.C.C. rules. Among other things, they must be approved by the F.C.C. In addition, any amplifiers intended for use on any amateur frequencies below 144 MHz shall exhibit no amplification capability on frequencies between 26 and 28 MHz.

Q. How do I know if an amplifier is legal or not?

A. All legal amplifiers must be issued an F.C.C. grant of equipment certification. Every such approved amplifier must have a sticker indicating the name of the manufacturer and the F.C.C. Identification number (FCC ID). This FCC ID number can be verified by checking the F.C.C./OET Equipment Authorization database on the F.C.C.'s Web Page.
If an amplifier does not have such an FCC ID, it is not a legal amplifier.
The F.C.C. Laboratory can provide a list of manufacturers who have been granted equipment authorizations for their approved linear power amplifiers.
The F.C.C. Laboratory can also provide (an incomplete) list of known illegal amplifiers. This list keeps growing as additional makes and models become known to us.

Q. I have an F.C.C.-approved amateur radio linear amplifier. Is it OK for me to modify it to operate on the C.B. frequencies?

A. No.

Q. Can I sell my linear amplifier?

A. Only if it is an F.C.C.-approved amplifier. The importation, manufacturing, marketing, use or possession of non-approved amplifiers is illegal.

Q. If I can not sell it my illegal amplifier, what can I do with it?

A. Destroy it.

Q. I see linear amplifiers offered for sale on Internet sales sites. Is this legal?

A. Only if they are F.C.C.-approved amplifiers. F.C.C.-approved amateur radio amplifiers which have not been altered in any manner so as to operate on the C.B. radio frequencies, may legally be sold to other amateur radio licensees. The sale of any type of non-approved C.B. amplifier within the United States, under any form of disguise, to anybody, is illegal.

When trying to do a semantic spin job, the trick is to always accuse the person your discussing the issue with of it.

And you have spun a good one. In the time I have been a Ham, you are the only one that has put forth your argument. You're taking several different sections of the rules, combining them together, then adding a liberal dose of conjecture and conclusion jumping. Doesn't work like that. Maybe consulting a good communications lawyer might help?

I've got a clear mental picture of you getting out antenna dragging on the ground behind it, stumbling around drunk, wearing a dirty tee-shirt and pants 3 sizes too big hanging halfway to your have enough money left, from the getto bar you just got kicked out of, to afford one of those curb-side transvestites for a night time

If your crystal radio does not have the selectivity to seperate one transmission from another, you can't expect it to work at the minimum level of performance that would be expected if the receiver is to designed according to the basic requirements established for the broadcast bands (or, for that matter, any other service). IOW, you can't expect it to function as a communication receiver, the key word here being 'communication'. That's just common sense.

And the majority of the problems with RFI are not of the selectivity of the receiver, which makes your example moot.

Ok. Maybe you missed the very first line of Part 15:

Sec. 15.1 Scope of this part.
(a) This part sets out the regulations under which an intentional, unintentional, or incidental radiator may be operated without an individual license.....

So the sections you cited relate to the discussion....how?

I already quoted that law in another post. How does this support your argument? And again, where does that, or any other law, excuse a ham for a violation of their own rule against interference; i.e, 97.101(d)?

>is another good link.

A carefully-constructed PR statement, probably drafted by Riley himself, in an attempt to pass the buck to the manufacterers, take the heat off the hams, and reduce the number of RFI complaints the FCC has to deal with. Notice there is no mention of the possibility of dirty transmitters, illegal CBers, or of any legal responsibility by anyone -including- the manufacturers. Typical FCC squirm-out.

> More homework is left up to you.

I did my homework long before this thread was started. The rule is clear. Any attempt to pin a different interpretation on it is no better than illegal CBers claiming that CB rules are not laws, or any of the other cock-and-bull excuses they make.

I think you were looking in the mirror when you came up with that opinion because I have been staying true to 97.101(d) the entire time. It is you and everyone else that is grasping for irrelevant issues, such as interference
-from- Part 15 devices, and making up your own definitions for 'interference'.

And -still- nobody has come forward to cite any law that exempts hams from 97.101(d) when the receiver being interfered with is of 'poor design'.

No it doesn't. I'm glad you agree.

Nothing is "turned around". Everything is as clear and concise as 97.101(d). Why don't you find yourself a lawyer and have him/her try to find the answer you can't find yourself -- which law exempts hams from 97.101(d) when the device receiving the interference is a "poor design"?

What law releases a ham from the legal responsibility of a violation of their own rule against interference just because the device that is interfered with is of "poor design"? Why can't you answer the question, Mike? Why do you continue with this prolonged song and dance routine?

If you bought $1,000 of Nortel 1 year ago, you would have $2,750 today.

> With Enron, you would have $16.50 left of the
> original $1,000.00.

Wrong. Enron went belly up. You would write off the loss on your taxes, and the US Government would have eaten $400 of the $1,000 loss, and additionally you could have used the loss to write off offsetting gains in other dividends. Maybe not on your 1040EZ, but on a real 1040.

> With WorldCom, you would have less than $5.00 left.

Wrong. My MCI stock added me to a class action suit. Everyone with stock is in this class action. Expect the suit to yield about 40 cents on the dollar, and as above you would have already written off the loss to offset other gains.

Wrong. A 12 pack of Bud is about $7.99, plus can deposit (you pay it up front) and tax. That will yield you about 1,200 cans of beer. Since a can will get you back 5 cents, that is $60 in returns. Bulk aluminum is about 10% of what you can get by returning the cans to supermarkets, so that would return $6 to you.

According to your warped logic, if a commercial broadcast station is comming in on a nearby neighbor's crappy stereo, and the neighbor has been made aware that they are interfering with his stereo, and the broadcast station continues to broadcast, now knowing they are interfering, then the broadcast station is legally at fault.
If a police or fire department base station is interfering with someones television due to front end overload because the poor design of the set prevents it from rejecting out of band signals, and the person notifies the police or fire department of the interference, and if the police or fire department continue to use their radios, even though they are clean of harmonics, spurious signals, and the problem is the fault of the television set, then the police and fire department are legally at fault.
NOT!!!!!!
Same for any ham radio station.

"NOT" is correct, but not for the reasons you assume. Let's break this down into bites small enough for you to swallow.....

"PART 97--AMATEUR RADIO SERVICE"

That doesn't say "PART 73--RADIO BROADCAST SERVICES", or "PART 20--COMMERCIAL MOBILE RADIO SERVICES", does it?

"Sec. 97.101"

That should be a good clue that the rule belongs under Part 97.

" (d) No amateur operator...."

Does that say "commercial broadcast station" or "police or fire department base station"? No. It says "amateur operator".

>Same for any ham radio station.

They are not the same, in case you hadn't noticed. Hams are, by definition, amateurs, which is a definition you should never forget.

I can see from your response that you are unable to answer the standing question, which is no suprise because there -is no law- excusing hams from violating 97.101(d) because of 'poor design' of consumer devices. Nor is it suprising that you are unwilling to admit that fact.

This is another case of pick 'n choose rules logic. It's a strange little subset of people that try to interpret rules in a different manner than everyone else, or come up with oddball scenarios in which the rules "don't apply" or fail. They are like the neighbors dog that can't resist chasing cars.

Any reasonable person has to take the written rules, and look at what they are intended to do, the spirit of the rules so to speak:

Licensed service equipment has a priority over unlicensed equipment.

Licensed service equipment may at times interfere with unlicensed equipment. Unlicensed equipment does not enjoy this.

Manufacturers should use good manufacturing practices to avoid being interefered with or to interfere with licensed services.

The extension of the spirit of the rules is that the amateur is expected to work with a person that is getting interference from the amateur's equipment, even though the responsibility is the person being interfered with. But if the mitigating work fails, then it is ultimately the part 15 device owners problem. All this assumes a clean signal on the Amateurs side.

All the civil suits posted as eveidence to the contrary are clearly cases where a person has been in violation of some other rules also, such as profanity, and possibly running illegal amplifiers. Almost certainly there was an antagonistic relationship between the two parties in each case also. IIRC, there was a charming "99 bottles of beer" singing as part of the wrongdoing.

The F.C.C. is not going to stand up for a person doing illegal things to begin with.

But there you have it, an extrapolation of a case from the way they really are to "licensed services must not interfere with unlicensed ones."

Frank, That post was an aside. But it is an example of what your interpretative game is doing.

Amateurs are expected by the spirit of the law to help with the mitigation process, which includes ensuring that they have a clean signal, and to work with the person being interfered with.

But they are not required to foot the bill for modifications to the interferees' equipment, and ultimately, if the interferee's equipment is not designed well, the amateur, as well as any licensed service, (police, local emergency services, etc.) is not responsible for the interference.

I agree 100%. The scenarios posted by JJ are an attempt to interpret the ham rule against causing interference by equating amateur radio with broadcast and emergency commercial services. This law is so simple and easy to understand it's pathetic that anyone could possibly misinterpret it's meaning, although some people must do their best to try.

Absolutely.

True story.

Yep.

>the Amateurs side.

Wrong-O! Your "spirit of the rules" had several omissions that make this statement absolutely false. First, while licensed services may at times interfere with unlicensed devices, amateurs are not permitted to interfere with radio communications or signals according to 97.101(d). The 'spirit' here is that commercial and broadcast services have priority over amateurs, and when a ham causes interference to a broadcast receiver they are not just interfering with unlicensed equipment, they are in fact interfering with the television or radio signal; i.e, the broadcast transmitter which is -not- an unlicensed device! After all, it takes both a transmitter and a receiver to complete any communication. And while manufacturers are "advised" to design unlicensed equipment to be as RFI-resistant as practical, they are under no legal obligation to do so. This is -not- the case with amateur radio rules, which -specifically- state that causing interference is illegal. Therefore, the legal responsibility for causing interference rests solely with the ham, -not- the manufacturer, and -not- the victim of the ham's interference.

Sure they do. They stick up for interference-causing hams all the time. If they didn't they would be overwhelmed with RFI complaints.

The rule stands on it's own, regardless of whatever warped interpretation you wish to place upon it.

The letter of the law is very, very clear. Invoking the 'spirit' only weakens your position, as I have outlined in my other reply on the subject.

I guess this will be another standing question (that will most likely go unanswered as well): What laws mirror 97.101(d) under Parts 20 and 73?

1329. BAD NEWS ---PC 68 & 78 NOW made in.....

Yep, some REAL BAD NEWS on your CB newsgroup to report. Uniden has NOW made their Classic great CB radios, the PC-68 & 78, which use to be the 66 & 76, which use to be Cobra 29 & 25's before 1992-'94, made IN the Phillipines, NOW they are made in RED COMMUNIST PUTRED CHINA !

I've been in a couple lately, and the quality is DEFINATELY less than Phillipines, but still better than Cobra's quality.

We're talking about quality in CB's that were good since the 70's, now taking a BIG NOSEDIVE toward TRASH status.

E mail Uniden and tell them that you are VERY UNHAPPY about their descision to support OUR enemies (CHINA, N. Korea, and other GODless states). It is probably a miracle that they lasted in the Phillipines almost 10 years before Cobra quit making them there !

This is truly a SAD day in the CB world, where all these companies are being "forced" by governmental policies to make their radios in RED COMMUNIST CHINA. I bought as many as the OLD ones as I could get my hands on, to sell in the future. I suggest all GOOD CB shops do the same.

Now we have Deut. 28 CB's. 2 Chron. 7: 14 IS the answer!
I'm back on ! Ain't NO doubt ! 4-10 !
Dave!!!

YOU Should want to try CB radio INSTEAD/ ALSO ! It will be more exciting on the BIG ROAD ! You'll get to see MAD DOGS waving BYE, BYE; you'll know where the BEARS are so you won't get bit, too!

TRY CB---you'll like it ! And it may even save your life !

Timmy used to be a fixture around these parts. A burned out addict of a white boy who had a liking for women of a darker color, namely big-booty black girls that would pose for him while he took photos. He used to have a site http://timnebo.com where he showed off his love of drugs, Saturday night specials, .22 cal. rifles and 20 inch rims. Nobody took him seriously since we figured he would either die or serve a long stint in the Texas correctional system.

Any body know if it is possible to use a long whip mobile antenna for a base station antenna, and if it would be worth it to begin with? As you all can understand, I'm trying to keep costs way down. I am also just starting out. I have been told that cb radio is dying or dead, but I still hear that people are still using them. Any information on this matter would be greatly appreciated. Thanks.

China is our enemy? Do you base this on the fact that they're not a democracy, so they're automatically our enemy? BTW - In case you didn't realize it, the US isn't the only place that these CB's are sold, so one country's enemy is not another country's enemy.

Yes it is possible and works damn good. In the early 80s I used a 102 inch stainless steel whip and a home made ground plane, (all home built) to regularly work Australia and New Zealand. I used a 1 foot square piece of metal and 4 9 foot pieces of Aluminum electrical conduit for the radials. The 102 inch whip was mounted in the center of the piece of metal. The mast mount was a bit tricky to do and it is even trickier to describe but it was all made out of left over plumbing stuff. It was also able to handle more power then many of the commercial antennas of the time.

So, AOL frowns on Ebay hotlinks only? Rubbish. If you can post your Url taking the time to cut and paste it, and it's doubtful many others are either.

Geez, Georgie-girl, unbelievable! All you ever do is whine and point fingers at others. You make a lot of unsubstantiated accusations, but present no proof of anything you say. Sounds like you are doing exactly what you accuse others of doing: You target CBers and pick random names like Tim, Steve, or Mark to cry about.

Since you don't know who they are, how can you make the blanket claim that "none of them have a ham license"? And how does that have any bearing in a CB newsgroup?

The truth is that the trouble-makers are none other than Georgie-girl Busch, WA3MOJ, of Allentown, PA, who still posts through Comcast by way of AoL (which he claims he doesn't have), and his illiterate retarded sidekick DouGay Adair N8WWM of Toledo, OH.

A whip would work quite well for a base antenna.

Check here:

http://tinyurl.com/3ypzf

This one is made from conduit, but you could adapt it to use a whip.
Using conduit should be cheaper, unless you already have the whip.

Doggone it, Lelnad. You just can't distance yourself from the homosexual thoughts and comments present in all your google posts. You know, Freud's work on repeated sexual innuendo worked into everyday casual conversation is not a theory, but accepted practice and the standard by which such work is based. Coming out of the closet is difficult for you (the foul mouth) and your anger is traced to your shamefulness, both as an amateur (illustrated by your google posts) and your homosexual orientation. Deal with your same-sex preference on your own time, no one is interested in your man-on-man comments in rec.radio.cb. I believe Geogre referred to your type, as a "Queen". Perhaps you should be known from here out as "Queen Lelnad",,yas,,,,,has that kind of ring to it,,,just enough to make it stick. :)~

You spread the CB myth, read the facts below

Quote

CB Rules Part 95.411(c): The FCC will presume you have used a linear or other external RF power amplifier if-

(1) It is in your possession and on your premises, AND
(2) There is other evidence that you have operated your CB station with more power than allowed by CB Rule 10 (95.410)

End Quote

Please note the all-caps "AND" (FCC emphasis, not mine); mere possession is not a "federal crime" at all. Ownership and possession are not illegal, only certain > uses < can be considered illegal, and ownership can most certainly be transferred to other authorized (licensed) users.

Neither export radios nor amps have ever been legal for use on CB. So why do you waste so much time and bandwidth repeating the same drivel over and over? Not intelligent enough to participate in the discussion? You couldn't even give an straight answer to an innoculous

If the truth be known, I think all your posts add up to no more than sour grapes. You hear others enjoying their radios but you won't join

No, you misunderstood me. I'm not saying that radio operation is a civil right. Rather I was reflecting on your attitude that since consumers outnumber hams by 3000:1, that hams don't deserve consideration. I was then drawing a comparison to those who opposed civil rights based on the notion that the people calling for those changes were only a small minority.

Nowhere. But nowhere in the rules does it specify otherwise, and the implication is that the ham is responsible for HIS station, not everyone else's receivers.

>>>97.101(d) "No amateur operator shall willfully or maliciously interfere with or >>>cause interference to any radio communication or signal."
>>
>>That does not apply to RFI, it applies to on-channel stations.
>Again, where does it say that?

Nowhere does it say that it applies to RFI either.

You are asking me to prove a negative. As a general rule, that which is not expressly prohibited, is automatically assumed to be permitted.

But you might wish to consider this:

ï¿½97.121 Restricted operation.

(a) "If the operation of an amateur station causes general interference to the reception of transmissions from stations operating in the domestic broadcast service when receivers of good engineering design, including adequate selectivity characteristics, are used to receive such transmissions, and this fact is made known to the amateur station licensee, the amateur station shall not be operated during the hours from 8 p.m. to 10:30 p.m., local time, and on Sunday for the additional period from 10:30 a.m. until 1 p.m., local time, upon the frequency or frequencies used when the interference is created".

The FCC recognizes the interference potential which can arise from these cases, and has legislation in place to address this. But the caveat is that the receivers must be deemed as "good engineering design". So in other words, the FCC has stated (paraphrasing) that if the radio or TV is junk, all bets are off.

(b)" In general, such steps as may be necessary to minimize interference to stations operating in other services may be required
after investigation by the FCC".

So until that time, a radio station (such as yours) has no authority to do anything other than report the problem. The FCC will take any action that they feel is appropriate. If the amateur station can demonstrate, to the satisfaction of the FCC, that they've taken the necessary steps to minimize the problem, the FCC will usually impose no mandatory restrictions.

I would be willing to make a gentleman's bet with you that the vast majority of HF operating hams, who live in a fairly dense (suburban or municipal) population area, will cause some sort of RFI interference to at least one neighbor. The sheer volume of poorly designed consumer junk pretty much assures it.

>This is pointless. You can make all the excuses you want.

The facts are hardly excuses. The facts are that most ham stations are not being forced off the air for RFI issues. The FCC tends to side with hams on all but the most uncooperative and belligerent cases.

> Our station will >continue to put the kybosh on uncooperative radio operators that cause

You have no power to shut down anyone. You can only report them to the FCC, and wait until THEY investigate, if and when they choose to.

>Maybe someday a broadcast station

I would welcome the challenge. As GWB is fond of saying "Bring it on!"
I won't be so nice either..... And I have the equipment and the expertise to back it up, as well as a pool of experienced communications lawyers who I can tap for guidance.

You can convince me by citing any law that exempts a ham from a violation of 97.101(d) when the interference is to a device of 'poor design'.

This one:

ï¿½97.121 Restricted operation.
(a) If the operation of an amateur station causes general interference to the reception of transmissions from stations operating in the domestic broadcast service when receivers of good engineering design, including adequate selectivity characteristics, are used to receive such transmissions, and this fact is made known to the amateur station licensee, the amateur station shall not be operated during the hours from 8 p.m. to 10:30 p.m., local time, and on Sunday for the additional period from 10:30 a.m. until 1 p.m., local time, upon the frequency or frequencies used when the interference is created.

(b) In general, such steps as may be necessary to minimize interference to stations operating in other services may be required
after investigation by the FCC.

The FCC has stipulated the conditions which would require that a ham stop transmitting. Unless these conditions are met, the ham is not required to do anything other than to make sure that his own station is clean.

That's fine, but nobody suggested the hams are not deserving of due

The problem here is that the ham can simply declare the receiver to be of 'poor design' and work the protected hours anyway, which is exactly what happens. IOW, the rule is far to subjective for it to ever be enforced -- in fact, it isn't enforced at all by the FCC. Also, 97.121 does not exempt a ham from a violation of 97.101(d) because, even in a best-case scenario, the former can be considered to be in conflict with the latter. However the rule -does- reflect the priority that broadcast services have over the amateur service.

>The FCC recognizes the interference potential which can arise from

The FCC has no specifications or minimum requirements for the engineering quality of any broadcast receiver. So who makes the determination as to which receiver is 'junk' and which one is not? The ham? That's like letting the defendant of a murder trial decide what can or can't be submitted as evidence!

In most cases we have worked with the ham (and some keyclowns, too) to clean up the interference. In only three cases have we been forced to file a complaint with the FCC under 97.101(d). In all three cases the ham was sent a letter by the FCC and the interference stopped. No, the station has no authority to do anything at all -- the FCC has that authority, and it's clear (to us, at least) that they will exercise that authority should there be a violation of 97.101(d).

Frank, if you really need the question answered, I suggest you go to the F.C.C. and see what they have to say.

They would probably have a more definitive answer than any I can give you.

If you need a few more rules based windmills to tilt at, I suggest you try invalidating a high percentage of amateurs licenses because we didn't take a Morse code sending test, as required by part 97:

7.503 Element standards.

(a) A telegraphy examination must be sufficient to prove that the examinee has the ability to send correctly by hand and to receive correctly by ear texts in the international Morse code at not less than the prescribed speed, using all the letters of the alphabet, numerals 0-9, period, comma, question mark, slant mark and prosigns AR, BT and SK. Element 1: 5 words per minute.

Oh Oh! thousands and thousands of Amateurs are licensed and operating in direct non compliance with a specifically worded rule in part 97!!!! Somewhere along the way, someone interpreted the rule to end the sending tests. It's just how it works, man.

Now back to the "problem at hand"

97.101 General standards.

(a) In all respects not specifically covered by FCC Rules each amateur station must be operated in accordance with good engineering and good amateur practice.

(b) Each station licensee and each control operator must cooperate in selecting transmitting channels and in making the most effective use of the amateur service frequencies. No frequency will be assigned for the exclusive use of any station.

(c) At all times and on all frequencies, each control operator must give priority to stations providing emergency communications, except to stations transmitting communications for training drills and tests in RACES.

(d) No amateur operator shall willfully or maliciously interfere with or cause interference to any radio communication or signal.

Seems like a good sort of rule to have. Makes sense too. We don't want people jamming each other, or harassing each other or their neighbors with their radios.

And what does part 15 have to say?

ï¿½ 15.17 Susceptibility to interference.

(a) Parties responsible for equipment compliance are advised to consider the proximity and the high power of non-Government licensed radio stations, such as broadcast, amateur, land mobile, and non-geostationary mobile satellite feeder link earth stations, and of U.S. Government radio stations, which could include high-powered radar systems, when choosing operating frequencies during the design of their equipment so as to reduce the susceptibility for receiving harmful interference. Information on non-Government use of the spectrum can be obtained by consulting the Table of Frequency Allocations in ï¿½ 2.106 of this chapter.

Most Part 15 devices require a label attesting to the potential for interference and to the responsibility of the device operator. The following sections from the rules provide an examples of the labeling requirements:

ï¿½ 15.19 labeling requirements.

(a) In addition to the requirements in part 2 of this chapter, a device subject to certification, notification, or verification shall be labeled as follows:

(3) All other devices shall bear the following statement in a conspicuous location on the device:

This device complies with part 15 of the FCC Rules. Operation is subject to the following two conditions: (1) This device may not cause harmful interference, and (2) this device must accept any interference received, including interference that may cause undesired operation.

And:

ï¿½15.105--Information to the user.

(a) For a Class A digital device or peripheral, the instructions furnished the user shall include the following or similar statement, placed in a prominent location in the text of the manual:

This equipment has been tested and found to comply with the limits for a Class A digital device, pursuant to part 15 of the FCC Rules. These limits are designed to provide reasonable protection against harmful interference when the equipment is operated in a commercial environment. This equipment generates, uses, and can radiate radio frequency energy and, if not installed and used in accordance with the instruction manual, may cause harmful interference to radio communications. Operation of this equipment in a residential area is likely to cause harmful interference in which case the user will be required to correct the interference at his own expense.

(b) For a Class B digital device or peripheral, the instructions furnished the user shall include the following or similar statement, placed in a prominent location in the text of the manual:

This equipment has been tested and found to comply with the limits for a Class B digital device, pursuant to part 15 of the FCC Rules. These limits are designed to provide reasonable protection against harmful interference in a residential installation. This equipment generates, uses and can radiate radio frequency energy and, if not installed and used in accordance with the instructions, may cause harmful interference to radio communications. However, there is no guarantee that interference will not occur in a particular installation. If this equipment does cause harmful interference to radio or television reception, which can be determined by turning the equipment off and on, the user is encouraged to try to correct the interference by one or more of the following measures:

* Reorient or relocate the receiving antenna.
* Increase the separation between the equipment and receiver.
* Connect the equipment into an outlet on a circuit different from that to which the receiver is connected.
* Consult the dealer or an experienced radio/TV technician for help

As far as I can see what you are saying is that if the Amateur knows that his or her station is causing interference, if they continue to operate, they are doing so willfully and maliciously. This is your interpretation, and it is incorrect.

You should try a test case, Frank!

The way I would interpret the rules is that the amateur radio licensee is required to have a clean signal, as is also referenced in part 97.

With a complying clean signal, they now have the right or privilege to operate, always in compliance as regarding bands, power, content, etc, basically just following the rules.

Beyond the rules:

The neighbor has an interference complaint, and does so. In looking into the problem, the amateur will suggest, but is no no way required to pay for, mitigating the interference. Often the amateur works to help the neighbor install the needed devices.

most of that stuff just falls in the "being a good neighbor" category.

Your interpretation that the amateur knows s/he is interfering, and is therefore willing and malicious, just won't hold up. I've heard only to the contrary for as long as I've been a ham. Do you have specific legal rulings supporting your interpretation?

I plonked you after this message was downloaded, but you are still plonked. The only reason I am replying is to point out that this rule also reflects the fact that the FCC recognizes the ham's responsibility to prevent interference that can be caused by the ham, which is what I have been saying all along.

97.503 defines the -standards- (notice the title?) by which a testing element is administered. It does -not- establish the -requirement- of the code element, or any other element, for any class of amateur license. That rule is 97.501, which you already knew.

And for that intentional distortion, plus your repetition of old and lame arguments in the rest of your post, you too get plonked.

You are the one playing semantic games, Frank. Your entire paragraph below the part 97 excerpt is an interpretation, and not a very good one at that. I've never seen an application of 97.101d to make an amateur stop interfering with a part 15 device because of inadvertent interference.

You are making an extraordinary claim. I trust you have proof of enforcement actions that support your exceptionally broad interpretation?

They didn't have to.

It doesn't have to. part 97 does not need to address part 15 devices

It doesn't have to. part 97 does not need to address part 15 devices

It doesn't have to and that is why it doesn't. the rules are pretty clear to me. That you have a problem with them indicates that perhaps you should petition the f.c.c. for a rewrite if you feel strongly enough.

Frank is taking one sentence out of part 97, performing a creative interpretation on it, and trying to say that any knowledge of interference indicated "willful and malicious".

But you are suggesting that manufacturers be excused from their responsibility to design a product to reject unwanted signals, due to the fact that hams are a small minority and instead placing the burden of appeasement squarely on the shoulders of hams, who have neither the means, the legal resources, or the financial backing to make a poorly designed product reject the signals that he may be emitting. The obvious remaining alternative then becomes the cessation of all transmissions. That's not an acceptable compromise.

I think I see now what your issue might be.
If you look at the wording of subpart (d) again:

(d) "No amateur operator shall willfully or maliciously interfere with or cause interference to any radio communication or signal".

You are confusing the term SIGNAL with the term DEVICE. You are correct that a ham station may not interfere with any signal, broadcast or otherwise. But where you got it wrong is that most RFI is not a case of a ham's signal overriding a broadcast station's signal into a specific receiver. Rather, it's the case of a poorly designed receiver receiving a stronger local signal on another frequency, which it's not supposed to receive, which then blanks the receiver's ability to receive the desired broadcast signal. If another receiver, which is designed better, can be placed next to the affected receiver, and it plays the broadcast signal unaffected, then no interference exists.

The "interference" only exists inside the electronics of the poorly designed receiver. In other words, the ham is not interfering with your station.

It's not as explicit as you think as you've implied that the term
"signal" extends to cover "receiving devices" as well.

Don't purport to judge a man until you walk a mile in his shoes. That 25 years of experience doesn't mean that you know anything about the amateur radio service.

Does the fact that I've had 30+ years of experience in 2-way radio communication mean that I can step in and do your job?

If the rule is as Frankie states, why did not the FCC did not put me off the air or require me to stop using 15 meters in the case of the lady with the tv that used a 21 mHz IF that picked up my 15 meter transmissions? Why did they tell her to either put up with it or get a new tv? She even called the TV station who also complained to the FCC.
Wonder why the FCC told the TV station the same thing?
Frankie can interpet the rule any way he likes, the ruling authority is the FCC and their interpertation and in the case of a device not being able to reject a ham's signals, the FCC generally rules in favor of the ham, thus making Frankie's interpertation invalid.

Why is that? You afraid of a little spirited debate? Hell, you never "plonked" Twisty. Do you actually like arguing with his nonsense? Yet someone else mounts a logical challenge to your dogmatic notions, and you close the door? Don't worry, I'm not about to accuse you of having a "communications deficit".

>The >only reason I am replying is to point out that this rule also reflects the fact >that the FCC recognizes the ham's responsibility to prevent interference that >can be caused by the ham, which is what I have been saying all along.

Yes! And this rule (97.121) outlines the conditions by which a ham may be legally forced to cease transmissions. And it specifically calls attention to the fact that not all receivers, which are involved in RFI cases, are build with good engineering practice in mind. The FCC specified this so as not to hold the ham responsible for those cases where the device is of a design not consistent with good engineering practice, which would therefore place an undue burden on the ham in order for him to continue participating in the amateur service.

In other words, if a ham station is emitting harmonics or spurs which would then meet the conditions of 97.101, then this rule would come into effect. But if the ham station does not emit any spurs, and the "interference" is only within a device which has inadequate RFI shielding, then the ham, in the eyes of the FCC, is not responsible.

If the FCC's intention were to make hams ultimately responsible for any and all cases of RFI, then they would not have added this section which codifies these specific conditions by which a ham can consider himself "off the hook" so to speak. 97.121 would therefore be superfluous

By your absolute interpretation of 97.101, there would be no need for 97.121. But the fact that 97.121 exists, in itself, should indicate to you that your interpretation of 97.101 is flawed to some degree.

OK, What happens to YOU if someone sneaks up and pokes you in the sides? Ever seen someone who would yell out, or scream what they were thinking, or even knock the fire out of whomever happens to be in front of them?

Here's one that I heard about on the radio the other day. Got me laughing so hard, I couldn't talk for a bit.

Seems this fellow nearby owned a service station not far from his house. He hired a young boy (about 17) to pump gas and do minor chores after school. It so happened that the boy was "goosey", or ticklish and would do all sorts of unpredictable things if punched in the sides. Being close to his home meant that his young and quite beautiful (well endowed) daughter could bring his supper to the station in the evening. Of course, he was aware that this young kid liked the girl as well, but would never say anything because he was afraid of what the boss would say.`

One late evening, the girl emerged and walked down the sidewalk. The boy had just finished filling up a car and was standing at the pumps watching this girl intently while wiping his hands with a rag. The Dad noticed him watching her bouncing down the street and got a bit of mischief in him. Carefully, he tiptoed up behind the boy, and when she drew near, he punched the boy in the ribs.
He screamed out loud, "FLIPPITY FLOP"! Dear old Dad rolled on the concrete in stitches.

Now, I am glad I don't do that! LOL!

I went there and the chase began. I've been reading for a week. It seems that a screwdriver or possibly the texas twister may do the trick.

I was going to use an old midland that I love but after looking at those antennas I'm leaning towards my yeasu.

What do you think? Will these antennas work on a 9' high motorhome?
Has anyone here seen such an installation?

Thanks

"Years ago" for $1?!?!?!? When has Redhat ever sold for $1? Ever?
Just name one day since the stock went public. Just one.

Hello, Dave

CB? You'd best take a trip to Wally's world someday. You go down one aisle and let Debby take the next. Try and find something not made in China. Companies are even moving out of Mexico to go to China. Nothing like sending our whole manufacturing economy to go to China. Now our government is considering an import tax to level the playing field. Just for grins, what happens if China should nationalize all of our plants over there? We have exported out expertise and manufacturing capability to China and now we try to make money for the governement (and reduce unemployment?) with gambling. One of these days, the house of cards is going to come tumbling down. Already they've been tapping social security funds and a week or two ago the government is trying to say they can't afford to pay.

This does not look good for us. Not good at all.

Best regards from Rochester, NY
Jim

Agreed Andy. If ol' stoned Davy looked around the world, he would find the good ol' US of A isnt the only country that farms out their work. Look at ID label on say, an average Blaupunkt product lately ?? Not made where you think it would be. If you think of it in a weird Dale Gribble paranoid type of way.
Modern electronics (or anything for that matter) are as only as good as the building and devices theyre built in. Doesnt matter where or by who. I think its just racism and xenophobia rearing its ugly head in Dave's house again.

If you have metal gutters on the house use it for a ground plane with the 102" whip mounted to a small L-bracket. Use a C-clamp to hold it temporarily while moving it along the gutter and keep checking the SWR until its 1:1 then screw it permanently to the gutter. Works as good as an antron and looks better too.

It's not 'my' interpretation -- the rule is short, simple, written using simple terms, and its meaning is easily understood by anyone capable of reading it. But if you -still- can't understand it, let's break it down again:

PART 97--AMATEUR RADIO SERVICE--Table of Contents Subpart B--Station Operation Standards
Sec. 97.101 General standards.
....
(d) No amateur operator shall willfully or maliciously interfere with or cause interference to any radio communication or signal.

(1) The rule is written as a subparagraph in a section of the part that applies exclusively to the Amateur Radio Service. Therefore, if you are licensed under that service, this rule applies to you. It does not apply to any other service, such as the Broadcast or Commercial services -- they have their own rules and are not subject to the rules for the Amateur Radio service.

(2) The rule 97.101(d) says specifically, "No amateur operator". This can be interpreted in no other way than to mean that there are no exceptions to this rule -- it is to be obeyed by -all- hams. According to the FCC, "Section 97.101 applies to all amateur stations at all times." If these rules apply to -all- amateurs then there is no amateur who is exempt. Therefore, there can be no circumstance where an amateur can be excepted from these rules.

(3) By the FCC's own interpretation above, if the rule applies at -all- times then there is no time, day or night, when these rules do -not- apply.

(4) The two words in the phrase "willfully or maliciously" are seperated by the logical operator "or", which means that the rule is valid even if only one of those words are applicable.

The word "willfully" has also been defined by the FCC and the federal courts in the vast numbers of NALs that have been issued over the years. In almost every NAL it is pointed out that its recipient had been given notice that his/her actions were a violation of law, and that he/she continued to violate the law after such notice was given. This demonstrates that the violation was done "willfully" -- not necessarily with the intent to violate the law, but with the knowledge that the law was being violated by his/her actions. Reading 97.101(d) using this interpretation of "willfully", which is the same interpretation accepted by the FCC and the federal courts, an amateur that knows his/her station is causing interference, yet continues to operate, is therefore "willfully" causing interference.

The word "maliciously" is easily defined as 'having bad intent', which the FCC usually determines by the nature of the interference.

(5) Once again, the word "interference" is defined by the FCC:

PART 2--FREQUENCY ALLOCATIONS AND RADIO TREATY MATTERS; GENERAL RULES AND REGULATIONS--Table of Contents
Subpart A--Terminology
Sec. 2.1 Terms and definitions.
.....
(a) Where a term or definition appears in this part of the Commission's Rules, it shall be the definitive term or definition and shall prevail throughout the Commission's Rules.
(c) The following terms and definitions are issued:
Interference. The effect of unwanted energy due to one or a combination of emissions, radiations, or inductions upon reception in a radiocommunication system, manifested by any performance degradation, misinterpretation, or loss of information which could be extracted in the absence of such unwanted energy.

Paragraph (a) declares that the definitions in this section are applicable to all of Title 47, including Part 97. Interference is specifically defined as "The effect... upon reception in a radiocommunication system". This clearly means the interference is manifested in the -receiver-. Also notice that interference is determined by the fact that information in the radio communication is lost, -not- by the manner in which that loss occured. I.e, the definition of 'interference' does not make exclusions: it does -not- exclude receiver overload; it does -not- exclude intermediate frequencies; it does -not- exclude equipment of 'poor design'; it makes -no distinction- between fundamentals or harmonics.

(6) The phrase "to any" uses the word "any", not 'some' or 'most', 'licensed' or 'unlicensed', or even 'legal' or 'illegal'. The word 'any' is a simple word to understand. It has a universal understanding to the level where the FCC did not feel the need to define it any other way. Therefore, it is not to be defined in any other way by anyone else, not even by a few hams looking for an excuse to circumvent the rule.

(7) The term "radio communication" is also defined by the FCC in 2.1(c). Under that section a 'radiocommunication' is "telecommunication by means of radio waves." A radio communication is therefore the -information- that is carried by radiocommunication.

Let's put this all together:

Under the laws regulating the Amateur Radio Service(1), no licensed Amateur Radio Operator(2) may operate his/her station at any time(3) when he/she knows that the operation is causing(4) the loss of information being received(5) in any(6) radiocommunication system(7).

That is the FCC's interpretation as referenced point by point. If you have a problem with that, take it up with them.

Now. It's absolutely pathetic that there are hams who try to spin their own interpretations on such a simple rule, especially when some of them criticize CBers and keyclowns for the same behavior -- warping legal interpretations for their own benefit. And the "spirit of the law" is even simpler: Do what you want as long as it doesn't bother anybody else. Yet some hams seem to think that they have some sort of legal right to ignore that axiom by virtue of a license. They probably think that a driver's license gives them the right to throw litter on the side of the road and that it's everyone else's responsibility to pick it up. It isn't. You throw the garbage, you clean it up. It's that simple.

And no, the FCC doesn't like enforcing their own laws, especially that one. It's a fair guess that their decision has less to do with legalities as it does with politics, logistics, and probably a few kickbacks from special interests. But that's not a suprise where the FCC is concerned. Regardless, until the courts rule differently or the FCC changes that law, it still stands as it was written.

Ahh,,,spring is on the way and it seems like many are getting back their senses with their first venturing out of doors up in the cold north..that damn winter,,,,does some crazy things to folks. I'll be glad when everyone is back to their jolly selves and getting some fresh

Well, things were looking up a few weeks back, the temps made it into the high 60's.The trees were budding, the flowers were starting to spring up. Even the lawns were starting to take on a decidedly green tint. Life was good. Then old man winter reasserted himself, and we just went through a week of snow. I'm hoping it was OMW's last stand, great! thanks for the info. on the mobile, i'll definitely try the 102" whip on a spring. i'll mount the whole assembly on the spare-tire gate at the back of my mini suv. hopefully, it won't slap the back of the car too much, since the rear has a considerable slope to it (probably ~30 degrees off the vertical).

this brings up another question, though: how efficient will the antenna be, mounted in this 'tailgate' position, as opposed to being mounted on, say, the roof? will the tailgate mounting seriously nullify some of the potential ground plane properties of the vehicle?

thanks,

hi,

after some soul-searching, i'm seriously inching towards hard-mounting a long whip on the top of my car. does anybody out there know of any relatively foolproof -- and definitely leakproof! -- procedure for intalling a roof mount? i'm considering one of those ball mounts, so that i can easily adjust the whip angle.

i should mention that i do have a luggage rack, so i could always attach to that. i am a bit cocerned, though, that the stresses placed by a 'whipping' 102" whip on a luggage rack might be too much for it. any thoughts on this?

You are going to be hitting a lot of bridges and trees if you put a 102" whip on the roof. You might consider using two antennas -- a shorter one for the road and the 102" for when you are parked. If you think you will be swapping antennas frequently, you can get quick-disconnects that will fit the standard 3/8-24 base thread.

I would recommend mounting it in the center of the roof without a ball-mount. If you are going to use a ball-mount anyway, it might be better to mount it on the side of the body or the bumper. Above all, avoid the cheap ball-mounts. They frequently slip, and when they do you will end up driving a screw inbetween the two pieces just to keep the whip off the ground.

As for waterproofing, the large rubber gasket and teflon/poly insulators that come with the mounts do a pretty good job of sealing out the water. The stud and antenna should also have rubber/teflon/poly O-rings to keep water out of the threads. If you are really concerned (or if you live in Seattle) you can take the mount apart every couple months or so and check for condensation and corrosion.

A couple tips: sand away the paint for an inch or so around the hole (on the inside of the vehicle), then clean the bare metal with a good solvent so you get a good ground connection. Also, I have noticed that many newer vehicles don't have very thick metal up top, so sometimes I add a sheet of steel or aluminum to stiffen things up.

the center of the vehicle is the optimum spot, but with a 102" whip it's not very practicle. placing it at the rear of the vehicle will make it more directionable, but if your only talking locally you probably won't notice a lot of differance. make sure it is properly grounded wherever you mount it.

I may do that Twist, I don't get much time off work tho. I get hours off, but days are tough for me. I've been to the Keys a couple times and Daytona, and Kisemme(sp), once..had a great time at all of them.

I'll ring you up next time I'm headed down there for sure..as always thanks for the invitation.

Be sure to ring me if you're headed up to the Buckeye.

This is what I did to install a significantly lighter antenna in a roof center mounting.

The 7900 is a ham 2 meter antenna, about 5' long or thereabouts, with no bend to it whatever.

Also when they drive down the road going real fast, The antennas move up a little and keep a good groundplane instead of folding back and loosing it.

I've used the 75, and I wouldn't recommend it. The squelch is utterly useless. I've found that if you adjust the squelch just above the noise level, it has a tendancy of cutting out signals that you should be able to hear as well (within a few miles), so you're basically stuck with either listening to the white noise of squelch all the time, or only hearing the strongest stations (s7+). There's many different CB's that come in that handheld/mobile format, just do a search on the net (google.com is a good place to look). I know there's one that comes with the remote mic/controller and you can snap that into a battery and put an antenna on top of it and walk around with it as a handheld. I think it's a Cobra model.

That's a subject that almost deserves a book.

The "ground plane" gadgets that extend about 3" from the base of the antenna are pretty good, along with the "5kW" antenna I saw packaged with a mount that had non-removeable RG-58 coax.

the so-called ground plane that attaches to the base of the antenna IS NOT a ground-plane because it's mounted above the insulator.
inexperienced truckers who buy them know absolutely nothing about Rf.
they are simply wasting their money on doo-dads that they think are going to make their radio get out farther.
anything that is added to the the antenna above the fiber washer simply increases the electrical length of the antenna.
Capacitance hats do not add length but they must be mounted above the loading coil.
as far as tilting the antennas forward are concerned,
there are sevewral possible scenarios involved.
(1) the antenna is taller than 13'6" when mounted veertical and hits the low bridge when passing under therefore a forward tilt is mandatory.
(2)they no absolutely nothing about RF radiation or take-off angle and tilt them forward 45 degrees to look cool.
(3)tilting the the antenna forward about 15-20 degrees can increase the forward range of the signal by angling the signal closer to the horizon because antennas that are mounted closer to earth ground than 1 wavelength have a higher take-off angle than those that are mounted at or above 1 wavelength.

A truckers CB is his/her pride and joy and the ultimate tool we use to communicate with each other over long distances.
money is not a object when it comes to building a nice rig for talking on because we spend hours and hours communicating with each other on long trips cross-country

The reality is this - if a vertical is tilted 45 degrees, then you experience a 3 dB signal loss off to the sides to a vertical that is truely vertical. A horizontal antenna can loose over 20 dB when communicating to a vertical antenna via direct line of site. With skip, it doesn't much matter as the signals will get twisted around a bit, but for local communication, figure the cosine of the angle difference. Cosine of 45 degrees is .707. The cosine of 90 degrees is zero (but there will be some reflected signals and you will usually get a 20 dB attenuation - a 100 times loss of signal both on transmit and receive). 3 dB isn't huge, but why have a loss both ways on a circuit?

There could be a logical reason for this. Since an antenna is bent back when moving forward, by tilting it forward, it will compensate for the "bend", and end up straight when moving.

Of course, some people exaggerate the effect for reasons which, as of yet, are not known.

We go though this almost every year. Usually though, it happens in late February, and March is a month which starts in turmoil, and hopefully ends in spring. But some years (like this one) spring gets delayed a bit, which is why they refer to March as the "in like a lion, out like a lamb" or vice versa depending on which side of the roller coaster we're on when March hits.

Many teams are facing salary cap issues. If they can get a guy to do the job for a lot less, they can then redirect that money to get other guys in positions that they're weak. The top dollar guys are being Therein lies the humor :) The first one that really made me laugh was the "Zing Ring".

A circular gizmo that you were supposed to clamp around the bottom of the loading coil on a base-load antenna.

Years ago, I ran a firestick (5' or so) with a cap hat that I built for it.
Worked pretty well, in comparison with base stations in the same general area.
I had an above-average ground plane though, on my chrysler imperial.

Many that I've seen are definitely not in that region.

That's what I was mostly thinking.

Of course my 2M antenna is tilted forward a bit, but that's because the only good mounting point for it has that tilt built in. No practical way to straighten it out, so I just live with it.

Possible. I'm not sure what it would do to polarization.
It would rotate to the sides, but then again, that may not be a bad thing.
A trucker would normally want to talk fore and aft, and not so much to the sides.
That's why the co-phased verticals always made sense to me, provided they are mounted at the right distance.

I see co-phased antennas here locally, mounted within 2' of each other.. :)

I always wondered why so few truckers are hams.
You guys spend as much or more on your rigs, as I do but you get so very much less in the end.
Now that you don't need CW, anyone who can qualify for a CDL ought to be able to snag a ham ticket in a week or so of spare time reading.

Of course you'd still have to have the CB along to talk to the other fellows.

You could make that case for mine, at about 2-5 degrees, but it was purely accidental.
In the photos, you can see that it's perfectly vertical, against the edges of the building in the background. Unfortunately, I'm on a slight up-grade.
Oh well, it dosen't seem to do any harm.

I've seen them as far as 45 degrees, and that's in motion at 70 MPH.

I've not yet seen one with a bird skewered on it, but that will probably happen.

Almost as bad as the open letter Condoleeza Rice wrote that was in national newspapers this past Sunday..you know the one,,,the one where she admits NO "link" between 9-11 and Iraq. She went on to say that she was present when Bush was briefed post 9-11 and informed that Iraq had no connection to 9-1. She claims the out-of-touch, warmongering Rumsfeld suggested that while "Afghanistan presented little in the way of targets" that Iraq presented "many targets". Condoleeza Rice goes on to claim how she thought Rummy was joking, and so did most members of the President's staff.,,,,,at first.
The writing was on the wall when Clarke resigned. Now even the most loyal, conservatives, like Condoleeza, are posturing themselves to disatnce themselves from the "inner circle" vortex in which she finds herself caught and losing momentum and possibly, her political future.
That sucking sound we hear are the Bush-backers reaching deep into their coffers, as they know the only way to win this election is to buy it....again.

Chasing is like that. Spotting is a little different. We don't travel a whole lot, but I may rack up 100-300 miles in a day, running all over the county doing spotting before, and damage assesment after. Hurricanes you get more warning of. We get maybe 3 days notice that conditions will be right in our area, but as to the actual warning of the event, we are literally the first to know.

I had a reporter along with me season before last, who got way more of a ride than he expected.

He kinda paled when EMA ordered me to evacuate my position because of a radar indicated tornado heading straight at us. It was covered by rain from where we were, so we couldn't see it (or much of anything else) at that time. The plan had been not to try to outrun this storm, a large flanking line, but to wait till it passed , and then follow..

The cell that went by us, later did tornado, and then went on to level Van Wert Ohio.

Would you consider Clearwater management better or worst than FCC management? (not a hook, but then again ... it could be considered 'loaded'). Twist,

What was broadcast from the ARRL website was worrisome. The take I have on it is this: where there is an egress, there also exists an ingress. If the lines are filtered so as not to cause interference, then they will not be interferred with. 20 to 50 watts is all it takes into a dipole located 50 or 100 feet away from power lines to totally disable BPL.

We'll see.

Hello, Keith

Heheheeee ... we used to do that with teletype patch cords to the newbies when I was on Guam. Gets your attention, pronto LOL.

My grandparents still had a crank system - their ring was four shorts, I believe. That was in the late 60s. I suspect is was one of the last crank systems around. When we called them long distance, we had routing numbers for the operators as it was so hard to locate them (Black Lake, NY). Hard to believe nowadays.

I've got news for you - you and I are getting not only over the hill, but off the cliff as well LOL

Aw man,,you know it. This past week, there was a massive voter drive registration across Florida by various grassroots campaigns,,some were independent, some were demos, none were republican. The headlines read: "Liberals Engage in Door-to-Door Campaign"......this stuff is amazing.

>The big deal is to get something else going to >distract everyone from some embarrassing >truth.

LOL...and what a tactic...sorta like the bottomfeeders of usenet,,,,llok what they are doing to Clarke,,,he was good enough to be recommended by Daddy Bush and hand selected by Bush-lite for his cabinet, but when he resigns in disgust and informs the public about what is really going on behid the scenes, "suddenly" the issue is no longer one of Bush knowing in advance about possible attacks using airliners against the USA for terrorisim or about lying to the American people about the non-threat Iraq presented, but one of Clarke's "personal" character. This tactic is tired and no longer effective. The educated American people (many republicans included) will not buy into this obfuscation attempt.

That's certainly another angle. I am of the personal opinion that they (gays) are arguing over semantics. In many places they already have rights and benefits as couples or same-sex arrangements. To call it a "marriage" kind of rubs me the wrong way, as it implies, at least to a christian, that it is a union of God. As a believer in the God of Abraham, I believe nothing could be further from the truth.

>Speaking of worms, that reminds me of fishing
>as a kid. How's the fishing down your way?

Damn water has been choppy as hell last few days, despite the bite being "on". An extremely pleasant cool (60's and low 70's) front combined with the rough seas makes for less people out there, which is nice, but the dramamine (sea sickness pills and patches) is selling fast, so I expect this weekend ought to be back to normal. Oh yea,,,the fish,,,,yep,,the Kings are in,,,,two were caught last Sunday barely three miles off Treasure Island.

That wouldn't make any difference, would it? They are making their case against the sale and use of these so-called "export" radios inside the USA. Actually, it WAS the issue of unlicensed users of the Amateur bands that caused the curent enforcement emphasis. Had the "freebanders" stayed out of the ham bands, I doubt there would be an eyebrow raised. When the folks start treading on licensed spectrum, THAT is what causes the ruckus.

I remember just how far back a 102" steel whip would bend back at 65 MPH. I guess a shorter and stiffer fiberglass whip bends much less. I would guess that 45 degrees is a bit extreme to compensate for wind bend.

I also have trouble buying the "lowering the total height to avoid hitting bridges" theory as well, since if that were the case, it would make more sense to bend them BACK, not forward, just in case they do graze one. If it's bent back, it will deflect downward slightly. If it's bent forward and it strikes an over head object, it will compress and likely shatter.

For what it is worth the FCC needs tto give the 11-meter band back to hams. They also need to move the truckers to the family band in the Hi VHF. This would allow them to get controll of the 11 meter band. I have said this for years. I cannot beleive that they would put such a service on a band that is so full of propragation. Then develop that 150 mile rule. Man that goes against all of human nature.We all know that if we here a voice far away we are going to want to know if that person whom that voice belongs to can here us. What a trasp the FCC setup in 1958. So to gain control of the problem the FCC needs to put a license class out there that requires no test. Allow them to talk on 11 meters then allow the hams with the help of local officals in the area to control the band. And anyone that gets to far out of line gets reported.Then allow the system to do its work. It would take half as long to clean up the cancer as it took to grow. Heck to put a stop to the illeagal freebanding give the people what they want. Open up 25 MHZ to 30 MHz. I have never heard anything there but CB ham and freebanders. The best way to stop radio pirates is to make what they do leagal. That would take the excitment from it and I think it will stop.

I haven't seen any rig with a 9' whip antenna on it. Most seem about half that long.
Truckers are smart. Anyone driving for long at all knows that a 9' whip atop a tractor is sure to hit lots of stuff. So the vast majority - if not almost all - of whips I see for sale at truckstops are much shorter.

Actually, Riley was a quoted on several occasions as saying hammie complaints and local jurisdictions (in regards to HR #whatever) being informed of their ability to react to interference was the catalyst. I know you have this thing about truckers interfering on hammie bands, but the fact of the matter is, a super small percentage of truckers on hammie bands was not responsible for any enforcement "emphasis". In fact, the only "emphasis" appears to stem from self appointed radio kopps on patrol. The FCC merely follows up on well worded complaints that have shown good cause. In fact, there is no real "emphasis" on anything at the FCC, despite your recent contributions. Compare the stats from last year, or the year before, or the year before that. The hammie busts are the same, the unlicensed busts didn't budge, and the only FCC radio related enforcements that have increase in any manner is the amount of fines levied against commercial radio stations.

> Had the "freebanders" stayed out of the ham

>bands, I doubt there would be an eyebrow

Your hardon for freebanders is showing, Jerry. Freebanders do not intrude on hammie bands,,,in the same manner you are loathe to call one who has a nocode call and acts the ass on usenet and on the air a true hammie, many operate and feel the same for the term of freebander, myslef included. Since there are so many, yourself at the foreforont, hellbent on painting freebanders with a wide brush, this would be a good time to educate you on that of which you are so deluded.

Freebanders, at least the ones I have come across and associated with since the seventies, are for the most part, meticulous operators who are very polite and are comprised of operators, both licensed and non-licensed, from around the world. They are for the most part, courteous and non-intrusive. and do NOT intrude on hammie bands, despite your best attempts at presenting them in the same light as hammie band invaders. Shame on you for your intentional deceit. You seem a little put out lately, Jerry. Everything ok?

> When the folks start >treading on licensed spectrum, THAT is what

Balderdash. Parts of 11 meter ARE licensed to various entities who have chosen to abandon their choice of spectrum. Same as a vacant lot..cops drive by and see a bunch of kids playing football or baseball in a vacant lot,,,yes, the cops know they can technically arrest the kids for trespassing, yet they use their sound judgement, as the children are not damaging anything andthe owner did not compaint, no action is taken.
You are akin to the little old lady who watches unsupervised children playing a sandlot game and continuolusly calls the cops about the noise they are making (children laughing) and the remote possibility that your window MAY get broken.
Thank GOD the FCC adopted a sane approach to such activities and does not share your position.

Hello Lelnad. I do stand behind what I write. I didn't write the above, Proof is in the fact the post exists nowhere in any archive except in the body of kc8ldo's posts. In fact, if one cares to search the threads, the original forge by kc8ldo didn't have webtv headers. The headers above do not match the message for whcih Lelnad attached them. They were inserted by kc8ldo and appear, again, only only in HIS posts. The late

That isn't what prevents "control" of the eleven meter band. The FCC were very much in control of the eleven meter band in the seventies and guess what? Cbers had the band, not hammies.

You get "excitement" from operating your radio? Projecting your feelings and emotions onto others, does not mean they share your views. You are always in the minority and realize such, otherwise, you wouldn't go to such effort at hidng your hammie status....not all are ashamed of their

I made about some of the larger radio distribution companies and the still-unfounded-rumors of a litany of back orders. Judging by some of the responses
I received, it is inevitable that there is a basis of truth to the allegations concerning a connection between easily modifieable 10 meter radios and companies not having them in stock.

However, it appears that this is confined to just one or two companies at this time. Keep sending me your personal experiences about backorders. So far, they range from the slight inconveniences to the outrageous (3 months or more), I will compile all I receive in an honest effort to find out if these experiences are due to increased pressure from the Feds or just attributed to shoddy customer service.

Oh suuuuure.. all the truckers across the country will just turn in their CB's for VHF radios. Yeah. Right.

Then we'll just have to get the rest of the freebanding world not to talk on 11 meters, and everything will be great! :)

The Commission has revised Section 2.1204(a)(5) of its rules to prohibit all marketing and/or offering for sale in the United States of such devices even when the purchaser(s) had provided assurances that the transceivers are being bought solely for export. ALL DOMESTIC MARKETING OF SUCH DEVICES VIOLATES THE COMMUNICATIONS ACT OF 1934, AS AMENDED, AND THE COMMISSION'S RULES.

I saw a 148 gtl that has the 4 pin mic on the front and the knobs and switches were in different places than the 148s that I am used to seeing. The back plate says made in Thailand. Does this unit have the MB8719 chip and the 11.3258 xtal? Is the quality there or is this a piece of junk?

You really are full of it (or rather, full of yourself): The Uniden HR2600 is a legal 10 and 12 meter amateur radio and can, of course, be sold to other licensed users.

Just LOOK inside one and one from the Phillipines and you will SEE the quality difference in HOW they were made. When they are made with less quality, they have MORE problems in the future (future breakdowns, and MORE current breakdowns. When you are in a communist system, everyone supposedly makes THE SAME $$$ (NO insentive to work harder to do a better job for rewards (Biblical concept). This makes EVERYTHING the commies touch JUNK and a LOT LESS quality than items made in "freeer" countries. DON'T you own any CB's ? You got qustions? I GOT answers ! I'm a CB shop for almost 25 years now! I have SEEN the quality drop every time a factory has moved !

I guess somebody thinks it's a problem! LOL!

ENFORCEMENT: WARNINGS TO TWO TRUCKING FIRMS ABOUT 10 METER OPS

The FCC has warned the owners of a Bristol Pennsylvania trucking company to get their personnel off of the 10 meter Amateur band or face some expensive consequences. In a letter to Cassidy's Express the FCC says that it has information that one of the company's tractors pulling a "CAI" trailer on Interstates 476 N and 76W in Pennsylvania, was the source of unlicensed radio transmissions on the 10 meters.

The incident took place last October 9th between 8 AM and 8:30 AM local time. The Commission has informed Cassidy's Express that operation of radio transmitting equipment without a license is a violation of Section 301 of the Communications Act. That it could and will subject the operator to fine or imprisonment, as well as seizure of any non-certified radio transmitting equipment.

For those not aware, unlicensed operation carries a fine of $7,500 to $10,000 for each instance charged. A similar letter was sent to CLR Transport of Saluda, North Carolina warning of unlicensed 10 meter operation from one of their trucks on Interstate 85 between Gastonia and Kings Mountain, North Carolina on July 14, 2003. Your feeble attempts to discredit me fall on deaf ears. Those people you mention have nothing to do with me.
Isn't it pathetic that people have such a base mentality that they can only resort to sexual innuendo in order to make a point? If just being quiet is what you are after, then I can do that. But it won't change a thing! LOL! (BIG Snicker). Those drivers are going to continue to be hit with warnings, citations, and even fines.

I remember a couple years when I said it was coming, oh BOY! It was HAHAHAHAHAHAHA! Never happen.

Where's the "sexual innuendo", Oxendorf? Like you, I just posted some F.C.C. news, I can't help that there seems to be a big connection with sexual deviant child molesting freaks & ham radios!

Kind of like your NARROW minded stereotyping of truck drivers..... yet you

Bud, that group doesn't apply to me, OK? Now, if I wanted to, I could go out and find just as many CB types getting in trouble for the same thing--as if ANY of it was relevant to the topic at hand.

<SIGH>

You just don't get it, do you Oxendorf ? You have to be one humongous ass... plain & simple !

The crap you keep posting in Misc.Transport.Trucking doesn't apply to me, either..... yet you keep posting it.

Soooooooooo.... using your principles & the way you constantly TROLL MTT with your bullshit, my post's would be accurate. With the way you stereotype truck drivers & their radios..... my stereotyping child molesting ham operators would be accurate !! Thank you.

Heck, after all, it's in the report from the F.C.C., you should know, you keep posting the reports..... you sexual deviant !

a licenced amateur radio operator can make a 10 meter radio out of pop cans and sell it to people on the internet as long as he dosen't go over the yearly limit! it's NOT the sellers problem who he sells it to! its the users responsibility!

why don't you go in the ham newsgroups and leave these people alone. or did they throw you out of there!

Soon all your keykween export illegal radios will be gone gone gone LOL.

It is a violation of the Commission's regulations to: (1) import or market a transmitter that is designed or intended to operation frequencies outside of the ARS bands, if it has not be issued a grant of equipment authorization for the radio service(s) in which the transmitter is capable of operating; (2) import, market or operate a transmitter that requires a grant of equipment authorization but for which no grant has been issued; or, (3) transmit on a frequency allocated to a licensed radio service without the appropriate Commission-issued stati on license. Violation of the Commission's regulations will subject manufacturers, importers, vendors and users of this equipment to appropriate criminal penalties as provided for by federal law(s), including fines and/or imprisonment. In addition, the equipment described above can be seized by, and forfeited to, the government.

can you quote the actual statistics for that? or are you just pulling a

FYI, pedophiles exist at all layers and in all walks of life in all countries. Fact is, ham radio has a lot less of the deviants than the statistical norm for a population of a given country. Care to explain that one Tom?

THE BPL FIGHT: ART BELL W6OBB VS. BPL.

If it did not know before, a large portion of the American public is now keenly aware of the danger that Broadband Over Powerline Internet access poses to the nation's emergency communications infrastructure. And you can thank radio talk show host Art Bell, W6OBB, and ARRL President Jim Haynie, W5JBP, for bringing it to everyone's attention. Amateur Radio Newsline's Mark Abramowicz, NT3V, had an opportunity to speak with the internationally famous radio talker and has the rest of the story:

From the high desert in the great American Southwest, a call to arms has been sounded.

From his home base in Pahrump, Nevada, W6OBB - better known to millions of commercial radio listeners as Art Bell - has called on America to stand up and fight what he charges is the greatest threat to the nation's security - Broadband Over Powerline.

Bell charges BPL will cripple the nation's emergency communications backbone - striking at the heart of homeland security.

Bell picked up the charge against BPL during his radio show broadcast Saturday, March 20 in which he introduced ARRL President Jim Haynie, W5JBP to his audience.

Haynie and Bell pointed out the BPL interference threat extends far beyond the amateur bands. Both Haynie and Bell warned that many police and fire companies, federal disaster agencies and the FBI and the military would be rendered helpless if BPL is rolled out across the nation.

Bell says he's especially worried about the potential of another major attack against the United States and what BPL would do to our nation's ability to communicate.

"The emergency communications, my God, aircraft, amateur radio, FEMA, any other emergency agencies that are going to have to rely on HF communications," Bell says.

"We certainly can't depend on satellites. As a matter of fact, if we should get into a conflict, some sort of major conflict the satellites will be the very first thing that will go. And minus satellites for communications, we're dependent on the good old-fashioned shortwave bands, VHF, UHF, the whole schmear to keep our nation talking. And in a time of national emergency we need to be able to talk to each other."

Bell says he's appalled at the behavior of the Federal Communications Commission. He says they're acting like cheerleaders instead of regulators. He charges corporate greed is driving BPL and ignoring the studies showing the technology - as proposed on the HF bands - won't work without causing massive interference.

"I've always had the deepest respect for the Federal Communications Commission," he says. "However, I think in recent years, there've been a lot of changes at the FCC that include the fact that there aren't so many engineers at the commission any longer, but there are a lot of bureaucrats."

Bell says he believed after reading the Federal Emergency Management Agency's assessment of BPL that the findings would have been enough to shut it down.

"The FEMA filing was very strong," Bell says. "They essentially said, 'Look, our receivers and transmitters are not going to be able to function with BPL in place.' And, they specified the power levels they would have to go to continue to communicate and suggested the taxpayers can't, wouldn't be able to afford such changes.

"So, with that kind of filing, frankly when it came out I thought BPL was dead. Boy was I wrong!"

After doing more research, Bell says he decided to take the case to his listeners. And he says the only way to do it is to point out the risk to their safety.

"I don't think we're going to combat it by saying, 'Save ham radio." The public doesn't care enough and I'm sorry to have to say that, but that's what I believe," Bell says.

"I love ham radio. It's been my life. I've been a ham since I was 12. But the greater, larger American public just doesn't care enough about ham radio.

"And if they think they can plug in their computer to the wall and have instant internet, that's a more attractive idea to them than the guy down the block with a tower in the air."

Bell says his mission is clear: "I do a radio program on 500 radio stations nationwide, including the top 50 markets in the U.S., " Bell says. "And I'm going to do everything I can to drive this home as hard as I can that communications, and certainly ham radio is part of that emergency communications chain, there's no question about that.

"But emergency communications across the board are threatened by BPL."

Bell says all hams need to wake up and heed his call to action.

"We have to get to the larger media in America and, as hams, we have to make the general public, underline the word general public, aware that our emergency communications are threatened," Bell says. "The American public remembers 9-11. The American public knows what the continuing threat is.

"We've declared war against terrorism and why would we want to turn around and cripple our effective ability to wage war? And that's exactly what BPL is going to do."

Bell says if energized with information about BPL's risks to national security, millions of Americans can quickly become allies.

"We need to get the word out to the general public and begin to have them write to their congressmen, their senator," Bell says. "And that's the only approach that I see at this point with the juggernaut that is presently underway from the Federal Communications Commission and the (BPL) industry, the only way we're going to stop it is to make the general public aware of the threat."

Bell says there are other issues, including interference to TV channels 2 through 6, residual noise to the AM radio bands and virtual loss of CB bands used by the many truckers who listen to his show. He says there are also privacy issues, especially the potential of the government and large companies to track people and their habits and choices on a BPL system.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Mark Abramowicz, NT3V in Philadelphia.

Bell currently hosts the weekend edition of the Coast to Coast AM. He also indicates that his presentation on Saturday, March 20th was only round one. He is lining up other guests to talk about the BPL issues in the near future. To find out when, keep checking the shows website at www.coasttocoastam.com. (ARNewsline(tm))

THE BPL FIGHT: HAM RADIO VS. THE WALL STREET JOURNAL

Meantime, a story in a recent issue of the Wall Street Journal about Amateur Radio’s stand against BPL is raising the eyre off many in the nations ham radio community. The item appears to take the position that radio amateurs are alone in opposing BPL. Also, that their doing do is holding back the flow of progress in technology.

You can judge for yourself by taking your web browser to http://tinyurl.com/357ye. That is if its still there by the time this newscast goes to air. (ARNewsline(tm))

RFI: ELECTRIC BLANKETS - A NEW CHAPTER FOR AN OLD PROBLEM

As if BPL was not enough, now there's another source of RFI to worry about. Its things that keep us warm.

According to Roy Trumbull writing in the CGC Communicator, RF interference from electric blankets is another problem that can be added to a history of similar events. The ones caused by heating pad thermostats and the class of transformers used for door bells. Turnbull says that RFI from these devices can affect AM reception for quite a distance from the source.

Turnbull also adds this interesting aside concerning electric blanket safety. He says a little noted change in product design took place when there was that firestorm some years ago over magnetic fields from power lines. The electric blanket makers got a jump on things by switching to twisted pair wiring. This says Turnbull solved the problem of the significant magnetic fields that were produced by the earlier blanket design. (CGC)

RESCUE RADIO: REACT AND THE AMBER ALERT PROGRAM

Ham radio appears to be leaving itself behind in the area of responding to notices of kidnapped children called Amber Alerts. Meantime REACT and other citizens radio organizations are taking the point position in spreading word of these vital searches. Amateur Radio Newsline's Bruce Tennant, K6PZW, takes a look at how REACT has gotten involved:

Nobody seems to know why hams appear to have no interest in the Amber Alert program, but other civic minded radio services are not standing still. And the April issue of Popular Communications magazine is highliting REACT as being one of those jumping in to providing communications for these alerts and searches.

The magazines Info Central column highlights the activities of REACT teams across Ontario Canada and the northern United States. This, as they responded to an Amber Alert issued by the Ontario police after Cecelia Zhang was abducted in Toronto.

Ron McCracken who is past President of REACT told Pop Comm that they were given details of the alert and were asked to broadcast it on C-B channel 19 to truckers passing along the highways. The alert included details of the kidnap vehicle and the victim along with the suspects.

The broadcasts began at about 5:30 in the evening and went on through midnight. McCracken says that CB radio was combined with computers and e-mail to spread the word far and wide in a very short time. This allowed truck drivers all along the border to keep an eye out for both the little Cecilia and her abductor.

According to McCracken, this was REACT’s first response to an Amber Alert and in his estimation it went very well. You can read the full story starting on page 5 of the April issue of Popular Communications magazine.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I’m Bruce Tennant, K6PZW, reporting.

The Amber Alert was created in 1997 as a tribute to 9-year-old Amber Hagerman. She was kidnapped and brutally murdered while riding her bicycle in her hometown of Arlington, Texas.

If you want to know more about how you can start an Amber Alert Plan in your area and involve your radio hobby, it can be found by taking your web browser to www.missingkids.com. Then click on the words Amber Plan. (PopComm, ARNewsline(tm))

RESTRUCTURING: SAN MARINO AND NORWAY EXPAND 40 METERS

Two more nations have gained spectrum at 7 MHz. Both are in Europe. Jeramy Boot, G4NJH, in Nottingham in the UK has more:

Two more European countries have gained access to the 7100 to 7200 kHz segment of the 40-metre band. San Marino, T7, has authorised amateur radio operation in the 7100 - 7200 kHz band on a Secondary non-interference basis, with effect from the 25th of February.

The Norwegian Post and Telecommunications Authority has also announced that Norwegian radio amateurs can use frequencies in the segment 7100 - 7200 kHz with secondary status starting from the 1st of April.

This is in addition to the existing segment 7000 - 7100 kHz where radio amateurs have primary status. The maximum transmitter output power in the 7100 - 7200 segment will be 100 watts in Norway, and the maximum bandwidth 6kHz.

Jeramy Boot, G4NJH.

Croatia was the first European country to expand its 40 meter band. That happened last December. (GB2RS)

RESTRUCTURING: ARRL AND NCVEC PETITIONS ASSIGNED RM’S

Here in the U-S, our FCC has assigned rulemaking numbers to separate petitions for license restructuring and changes in code requirements filed by the ARRL and the National Council of Volunteer Examiner Coordinators. The ARRL petition has been designated RM-10867 while the NCVEC petition is now RM-10870.

Two other petitions were released for comment at the same time - RM-10868 was filed by the Radio Amateur Foundation, and RM-10869 by Ronald Lowrance of Georgia. Both also seek changes in amateur licensing requirements, particularly with relation to the code exam.

All petitions are available online via the FCC's Electronic Comment Filing System website. The comment deadline on all four petitions is April 24, with reply comments due 15 days later. (CQ, W2VU)

ENFORCEMENT: WARNINGS TO TWO TRUCKING FIRMS ABOUT 10 METER OPS

The FCC has warned the owners of a Bristol Pennsylvania trucking company to get their personnel off of the 10 meter Amateur band or face some expensive consequences. In a letter to Cassidy's Express the FCC says that it has information that one of the company’s tractors pulling a "CAI" trailer on Interstates 476 N and 76W in Pennsylvania, was the source of unlicensed radio transmissions on the 10 meters.

The incident took place last October 9th between 8 AM and 8:30 AM local time. The Commission has informed Cassidy's Express that operation of radio transmitting equipment without a license is a violation of Section 301 of the Communications Act. That it could and will subject the operator to fine or imprisonment, as well as seizure of any non-certified radio transmitting equipment.

For those not aware, unlicensed operation carries a fine of $7,500 to $10,000 for each instance charged. A similar letter was sent to CLR Transport of Saluda, North Carolina warning of unlicensed 10 meter operation from one of their trucks on Interstate 85 between Gastonia and Kings Mountain, North Carolina on July 14, 2003. THE CLUB SCENE: USS HORNET ARC NOT DISBANDED

Contrary to rumors, the Amateur Radio club that supports museum ship U-S-S Hornet has not been disbanded. This, according to Tom McGlinn, KO6HA who is the trustee for the NB6GC callsign and the new president of the USS Hornet Amateur Radio Club.

Writing on the QRZ.com websire, McGlin says the original story of the club being dissolved is untrue. He says that the group is still active and aboard the USS Hornet and that all QSL requests will be handled as in the past. Please direct any inquiries concerning the USS Hornet ARC QSL program to ko6ha@earthlink.net (QRZ.com)

EMERGING TECHNOLOGY: PROFESSOR SAYS ISP’S SHOULD POLICE CONTENT

A new cyberspace business plan from a legal scholar says that Internet Service Providers should become cyber cops and force everyone to pay a royalty fee for every song, movie or book they download to their personal computers. Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF, has the details:

Lon Sobel is a professor at Loyola Law School and an expert on copyright and entertainment law. He says that Internet service providers such as America Online and Earthlink must become digital police and send customers monthly bills based on how much copyrighted material they download.

Under Sobel’s plan, consumers who download expensive software such as Adobe Photoshop could pay as much as $600, while someone who grabs a single song could be charged as little as 49 or 50 cents. These charges would be in addition to the usual dial-up or broadband monthly connection fees.

Critics of the plan include computer experts, Internet service providers and -- believe it or not -- the entertainment industry. Bob Blakley, a computer scientist and security expert at IBM, says that a clever hacker could write computer code that would attaches itself to every piece of copyrighted content on the Internet. Then it could funnel some of the cost of the download to the hackers personal bank account.

Blakley and others say peoples attitudes is one of the biggest challenges in digital rights management . That an entire generation of consumers has become used to free music and other content posted on the Internet. He says that they will do anything it takes to get content for free. This includes breaking the law to avoid paying $10 to $20 for a compact disc, DVD or electronic book.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Bill Pasternak, WA6ITF

A senior executive at Verizon Communications is quoted as saying that Internet service providers will reject the plan noting that few companies could keep track of every downloaded item or determine the value of every file passing through their system. (Published news reports)

THAT FINAL ITEM: A HAMVENTION 2004 RADIO ROAD INFORMATION SERVICE

And finally this week, if you plan to drive to this years Hamvention, there will be a special service to make your trip a bit more pleasant. This as Information Radio in Dayton, Ohio announces plans to provide Road to Hamvention announcements on Highway Radio 1610 AM. As you might expect, 1610 Kiloherrtz is the frequency and the person behind the idea is Norm Schrein, KA8PGJ.

Schrein" "For Hamvention, we are planning on putting some information in regard to directions to the Hara and hours of the hamfest itself. People coming into town can obviously get information via the ham repeaters, but we may be hitting people who aren't hams at all or who do not have Amateur Radio equipment but who will pick this up in the loop and take in the hamfest."

Information Radio is a service provided by the Emergency Communications Center Incorporated. This is a not for profit organization with which Schrein is associated. He says that stations like this are a lot more common than many people realize:

Schrein: "530 Khz is where to find a lot of the stations like this and then about 1610 through about 1700 Khz you will find a lot of these travelers information stations as well. A lot of them tend to be site specific. That is, if you go through Pennsylvania, you may hear something about one of the state or national parks or involving the roadways if its run by the Dept. of Transportation. Where ours is a little unique is that it is kind of all encompassing. It covers everything happening in the Dayton area from local parks and recreationb to people having a parade to events like the Hamvention."

Schrein says that anytime you are headed to the Dayton area be sure to tune your car radio to 1610 kilohertz. Whether its trying to find your way into town or heading to the HARA Arena for Hamvention 2004, Information Radio will be there to serve you.

More information on information radio stations can be heard on this weeks Rain Report. Its at www.rainreport.com or landline at 847-827-7246. (ARNewsline (TM))

Do your worst, jizz licker. Whatsamattah, yer gun and gang threats wearing thin?
You are such a paper assholed punk it aint funny. Your false Christianity is the laughing stock of the internet, and so are you in total. I guess we will just have to see how many people can be informed, via copies of your sissy ass rants, how much of a "Christian" you are.

You didn't do a thing, ya knob bobbin' idiot. Look at the headers.

Once again, that hopless gayboy fatass chump ChukkieSukkie shows his fantasy world to us all. A punk who can't do anything, unless it would be to a woman or a pet.

You weren't at the Toledo hamfest either, sissyboy...something about an arrest warrant, or didja just have a rough saturday night at the Detroiter truckstop?

OK, dickface, I just "tried" you. You were found wanting. Wanting hard dick in your mouth, that is copy and paste from ebay for item number 3076577824:

ROAD FORCE SS-497 AM/FM/SSB/10M Item number: 3076577824

You are signed in Bidding has ended for this item (n8cfo is the winner)

end paste

why you braggin about a sold item?
you didn't stop shit.

Ah, More mindless ranting of troll, it makes for good reading.

as to your claims to my "False Christianity"

I leave you with this Scripture:

Revelation 20:11-15
11 And I saw a great white throne, and him that sat on it, from whose face the earth and the heaven fled away; and there was found no place for them. 12 And I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God; and the books were opened: and another book was opened, which is the book of life: and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books, according to their works. 13 And the sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and hell F32 delivered up the dead which were in them: and they were judged every man according to their works. 14 And death and hell were cast into the lake of fire. This is the second death. 15 And whosoever was not found written in the book of life was cast into the lake of fire.

This is your fate sir, unless you accept Jesus Christ as your personal Saviour and Lord. Go ahead, Bash me, Do it all you like, because, every idle word you speak is being recorded and one day, you will give account for what you say about me and do towards me.

http://www.chick.com/reading/tracts/0086/0086_01.asp

Yep, that's right, Douglas, or whomever you are. You on your way to hell, and Devil is laughing his fool head off at you.

I hope someday, your eyes will be opened to the truth...

"Jesus said to him, I am the Way and the Truth and the Life; no one comes to the Father except by (through) Me." --- John 14:6 (Amplified Bible)

I will be praying for you.

You are the anus licker, DouGay and you prove it every time you post, which appears to be 24/7. What a complete waste of so-called human life. All you can do is whine and cry impotently, poor little boy. Tough crap.

Don't like amps and export radios? Tough crap. You are not the FCC and are not authorized by the FCC to be enforcement. You are a lamebrain pansy faggot, as proven by the homo crap (that you obviously know a great deal about; personal experience DouGay?) which you spew constantly.

You ain't tough, DouGay. You're just crap.

It's a Uniden Pro510XL with stock condenser mic but a good cobra power mic does about the same thing. It's a low pitched moaning sound not a high pitch squeal. On the power mic, I think I could just insert a capacitor in series with the audio line. How would I cure this with the stock mic?

yea, you are absolutely correct! it is against the law to do those things! and doing them is WRONG! so I am glad that I am not. you see, I am not marketing or importing these radios... with my license I can string a couple of transistors to a pop can and use it on any band that I have privileges in. And as long as I only make and sell so many a year (to be honest with you I don't know what the number is, but it is more than 2) then I am completely in my rights. this section of code is intended for the "tools" that put up and sell cb radio amplifier stores and if you look I am not doing so. I am selling 2 non typed radios, it is NOT my responsibility on how they are used. if that was the case how come AES, HRO, RadioShack, ECT... don't require a license to purchase a amateur radio??

So, in closing... thanks for the message!

but, get your facts straight so you don't look like a tool!

That and the fact he is trying to compare the way CB's were built 25 years ago just shows he is skirting the issue.
Pioneer, Clarion, Alpine, Sony, Delphi, Audiovox, Visteon, and the other manufacturer products i repair are made and/or assembled with products that are made in countries such as the Philipines, China, Brazil, Mexico, Pertugal, etc. Most of the repairs i perform are either electrical component failures (transistors, microprocessors, diodes, caps, etc), or mechanical failures due to under-engineered product, customer abuse, or electronic failure causing a mech to kill itself or just die.
In a very few cases, there is an actual manufacturing defect. Almost always a component that didnt get soldered fully, or a piece of a mechanical device that was manufactured (stamped, molded, etc) wrong, and didnt get culled out of a lot before assembly.
And in other cases, rough handling during shipment account for a small percentage of failures.
So, blame engineers, inspectors, shippers, and assembly lines for your problems Dave and/or Debbie. In the real world of mobile audio/visual/navigation equipment, which is far more complicated than a walkie-talkie, there is no single blame to point out. Everyone everywhere is a fuck up. Face it, and get on with life. Everyone out here know about how much you hate the Chinese and then try and spread the word of god on top of it. Blasphemy, paranoia, xenophobia, and racism Dave. The big invisible elephant in your livingroom. Just like alcoholism.
There is your explanation Andy, from someone who actually needed some specialized education and training to perform his tasks. Too bad the truth had to be told by someone who started down this this road only 8 years ago from a CB hobby, instead of Doper Dave and his 25 years worth.

Phatman you are selling these cb radios with extra channels that transmit into the ham bands in a Cb newsgroup so dont act stupid you know that people freeband and break the law with them LOL you are using your ham license if you have one as a way to break or get around the law.

Your the "tool.' asswipe.

I have a Harrier CB HQ Homebase it indicates changing channel but the radio stays on one channel on receive, I can tune the vco-can to receive on any channel 1-40 but I can't change channel with the selector. The voltage on TP1 is 6.5 volts on RX and TX it does not change I cannot adjust the vco down to 4 volts on channel 40 the voltage just stays the same. anyone know what the problem might be or where I might look first?

Thanks

Andy

Nope. Only one amp per year is allowed. See 47CFR2.815(d) and 47CFR97.315(a).

Wrong again. The laws I cited above state that the amp is to be sold for the personal use by the buyer, which must another ham. It can also be sold to a dealer. It's up to you to keep the info regarding the sale in your station records to show that you are complying with the law.

Because those are tranceivers, not amps.

You have to understand that DouGay Adair is retarded and obsessed with himself. He likes to read his own posts and draw others into his stupidity. Trouble is, he hasn't a clue about reality.

Ten meter radios are perfectly legal for licensed amateurs to own, use, and sell to other licensed amateurs. DouGay hasn't the intelligence to understand that.

At least eBay knows the truth, even if the DouGay can't comprehend it.

I hope N8CFO lives in the Toledo, Ohio, area so he can mess with the dumbass every time he uses it!

Oh yes they do, Jerry: They're licensed amateurs. Same logic that all CBers are criminals because a few break FCC Rules, right? You are just as tainted by those deviates as other CBers are by the so-called ten meter intruders.

Jerry, you're more intelligent than that. He didn't post sexual innuendo. He posted LEGAL FACTS. You can quibble all you want, but they're part of YOUR precious amateur community.

The solution is even simpler. Stop showing your inbred bias by only

Can you really prove that statement or are you just blowing farts,

Nope. Everything I have posted so far for at least the past year or two hasd been through giganews. That is the news service that comcast has under contract for use by their subcribers to their high speed cable internet

Watching this "who done it" soap opera is almost as much fun as seeing Twirt

Nope, it's on ebay. It's N.I.B. I've been trying to find a 148 that hasn't been tampered with, but that's about as likely as hitting the lotto.

I agree totally. I am really looking foreword to getting my general. I don't mind the work of learning CW. I have both the G4FON and CodeQuick. I highly recommend the G4FON. I do use the CodeQuick if I find myself getting stuck or mixing up close or opposite sounds. I think that code should be required for the HF licenses. At 5WPM the people that really want it will work for it. If the ARRL does get the license changed so no-code gets some HF privileges, so be it. As long as folks stay where they belong in the band, things should still go ok. Its those select few that can screw it up. If you don't want to learn code, fine. But stay where you belong. As for me, it will be fun to know the code. I have a nephew that is wanting to learn it is well. He is currently studying for his tech license and will be joining me soon after that when he learns the code as well. This is a fun hobby. Its great to meet the people, talk to the older folks who started this out, and talk to others just getting into it as I am. Please don't wreck it for us newbies.

I would highly recommend CodeQuick. I learned Morse Code the "old" way the first time in 1973, quit using it and completely forgot in matter of days it seems. Bought CodeQuick and got up to 20 plus in 1993 and didn't fool with code anymore until 2002. To my utter surprise, what I had learned with CodeQuick was still there. I still was at 20 plus after about 30 minutes of refreshing.

It's a most amazing system.

Can you suggest another one for $30 that will mount to thin plastic in a small car. Actually, this is the 3rd one of these I've had. The other ones were great. This one had been messed with inside. The others hadn't.

Once again, DouGay Adair N8WWM shows his ignorance of the facts. "Marketing", as defined, is importation and selling of quantitys, not one person selling a single item to another person. All the radios he offered for sale are legal for use on ten (and possibly 12) meter ham bands. If you could operate those bands, maybe you should buy the radios and use them instead of whining and SPAMming the newsgroup with your inane drivel.

> the fcc will let you know LOL

So why don't you STFU and let the FCC do their job? Is your life to pathetic that you have to impersonate a government bureaucrat? That's not only lame, it's a Federal Crime, DouGay! LOL!

Read this dimbulb:

Transceivers used in the Amateur Radio Service below 30 MHz do not require FCC authorization prior to being imported into or marketed within the United States, but transceivers for other services, including the CB Radio Service (CB), do require Commission approval.

Note: He did say ten Meter Radio.

Dual use radios (CB and Ham) will not be certified. Tthe "10-meter" transceivers that are on the "list" are not acceptable for importation or marketing into/within the United States.

Now tell us again how a Radio Shack HTX-10 10 meter radio is illegal to sell in the United States?

Your feeble attempts fall on deaf ears. Those people you mention have nothing to do with those of us on this group.
Isn't it pathetic that people not unlike yourself have such a base mentality that they can only resort to responding to posts they know are forges in order to make a point? If just being quiet is what you are after, then I can do that, but it won't change a thing! LOL! (BIG Snicker).,,. You are going to come across as a jackass whether you play up to forges of myself, another, or not. I remember a couple of folks on here said you are of the mentality of not being able to be reasoned with,,,,,they were right, despite my earlier and many previous defenses toward your oft-disagreed with contentions. It is I who was incorrect in assessing your demeanor. You worked terribly hard to have your call synonymous with wa3moj, n8wwm, and kc8ldo. Congratulations,,,and I'll toss another feather in my cap, secure in the knowledge that another lousy hammie that has an unnatural and unhealthy predilection toward cber's has self-destructed.

this is a CB radio newsgroup dipshit we are not talking about hams using 10 meters the subject is export cb radios. Sound like you are trying to confuse people like the export dealers do by calling them 10 meter radios LOL

Funny, your response to him was about a licensed amateur owning, using, and selling a ten meter radio. And if you will check your headers, you will see that this is not only posted to rec.radio.cb, but also to rec.radio.amateur.policy. Sounds like you are the one thats confused, try to keep up with the thread, dipshit. LOL

I have chated with the maker on I-10ks on irc before and he told me that is this the best cb antenann out. You get more gain than any other cb antenna and get alot better receive & transmitt. I-10k is good if you are going to us a good ammount of power put if you are going to use only like 4w then a Imax is what you would want to get.

Most of the CBers on this group would prefer it if you didn't appoint yourself their spokesperson. They don't need to be humiliated by your silly antics and prose like your comment about "swimming in Google excrement", collecting "jock straps" or QSL'ing with "saucerman".

That's simple to explain. Twist once sent me a private E-mail reveling his "secret" techniques for marking his posts to make them distinguishable from anyone who tried to forge posts in his name. What he failed to account for is the fact that there are people a lot smarter than him on the news group. Somebody figured out what he was doing, and used the simple methods he employed to forge a number of post from him. It just so happened that it occurred shortly after he sent me the E-mail and a rash of forged posts in several people's name started. So in his infantile mind I am the guilty party.

There have been several posts from the AKC group publicly stating that I have had nothing to do with the original incident, but Twist has the mind of a child and can't accept the fact that he was wrong. After all this time he can't afford to admit he's wrong without appearing to be the supreme fool that he is. This would totally destroy his ego and his believe that he knows more than the certified experts he tries to ridicule. So people just ignore him when he starts his usual rants about forging posts, being able to "prove" who posted what by reading message headers he doesn't understand.

That's as simple as it gets, but of course Twist will reply with some totaly non sensable rant about his so called "facts" than when pressed he can't prove beyond a reasonable doubt. But its fun to get him worked up trying.

I installed a CB in my Jeep Rubicon for use when my buddies and I go trail riding. I mounted a ahem 48" Radio Shack fiberglass whip on a right angle antenna mount directly to the rear bumper. I ran a 20' Radio Shack 50 ohm cable from the antenna to the transmitter mounted under the seat (Cobra 75 WX ST).
Power is supplied by a 4 ga. wire directly from the battery. I scraped off paint under one of the seat mounting brackets and bolted the wire to that to get a good ground.

The problem I'm having is calibrating the SWR meter. When key and hold down the mic, I turn the meter's calibration knob all the way to the right and the needle is still short of the calibration mark.

Any suggestions would be greatly appreciated.

Could be lots of things. First, check the radio and antenna on a friend's vehicle to make sure they work. Check the coax to make sure there isn't a short from the center conductor to the shield. Check the entire length of the coax to see if there are any nicks, crimps or sharp bends. If so, or if you are using foam coax (RG-xx/F), throw it away and get some good stuff. Wind your excess coax in a figure-8, not a loop. Keep your ground lead as short as possible. Make sure the antenna mount isn't shorted. Check your SWR meter to make sure you have it set for the correct range. The meter could be bad, so test your installation with a different meter. Check your DC voltage at the radio when you key up -- if the voltage drops you might have a weak connection somewhere.

If all that fails to reveal the problem, seek a local expert.

Some "10 meter radios" have strange features like echo boxes, roger beeps, and channelized tuning that no normal HF ham radio set ever has.

It's perfectly fine if a ham takes a CB set and modifies it for use on 10 meters. But it can no longer be used on the CB band, so adding a switch to create a dual band
dual service radio is not allowed.

The reason that you did not forget it the second time around is that you did choose to get up to 20wpm. Research documented in "The Art & Skill of Radiotelegraphy" (free for downloading from the internet) indicates that once a person has learned it well enough to achieve solid copy at speeds of 13wpm and up, they know it well enough that they will not forget it. They may get rusty by it will still be there.

Top of the evening to you!!
Not to much right now, been scouting the Sierra for opening day of trout season in a little over a month. Had to cancel my annual Cabo trip (Lack of funds in the foreseeable future) so that's got me bummed, but my daughter wants to go trout fishing this year, so that's got me stoked.

The sound alikes just started pooping into my head after all those years, I just had to straighten 1 or 2 up that I confused a little upon starting back, I don't remember which ones they were now. Maybe it was just because of the sound alike for W that I confused it by itself until I corrected my brain and copied for about 30 minutes. The CodeQuick sound alikes were what came back to me and of course with those I had the code and at about the same speed as I left off. Actually I couldn't tell any difference at all with the speed.

I know. However, it's confusing to post to both groups and use a term that means different things in each place.

I confess I didn't know that. I own a Ham Major M588 that someone else converted from CB to 10m, but it doesn't cover anything below 28 MHz now, so I guess it's OK. Mind you, it's rated at 10W on AM/FM and 20W on SSB, so it wasn't legal before it was converted! I think it originally had 'high' channels too.

Hey fuckface, that guy aint N8, I am. Next, the word is spelled "quantities". Of course your Masters had to inform you of this.

Furher, the AKC will do wtf it wants. All you can do is rant about it. You again show your total impotence and inablity to deal with the reality of your situation. As for "impersonating a government bureaucrat", again you show the high fantasies you faggily hold. If you think that post is a crime you should report it to the appropriate agency.

AKC, take notice. We are having an impact. Look how desperately cranus the ass rimmer holds onto the slimmest thread in an effort to bark louder than the actual little ankle biter puppy he is. Look how he yaps and whines. Look how he lies. look how he reaches for what will never be his, posession of the right side of the arguement.

You KNOW why he does this...His sissy ass is one of the dealers in this illegal trash, and he needs to massage his wounded ego. Cranus, all we have to do is drop a few dimes, and your faggot ass will choke on FCC certified mail.

If an SWR meter will not calibrate, there are 3 common reasons for this (and a whole list of uncommon ones).
The first is an obvious lack of transmitter power. If your radio isn't putting out at least a watt or 2, chances are you won't be able to calibrate the meter.

The second is a radical fault in the antenna/feedline system. If the cable or antenna mount is shorted, it can prevent the meter from calibrating. One way to check this is to switch to the SWR position.
If the meter stays at the same point, you have a short.

The third common reason is a simple one. Is the meter hooked up backwards? If you reverse the input and output connections, the meter will not work properly, and you are actually trying to calibrate on the reflected power (Which should be low). Again, a check for this would be to switch to the SWR position. If the meter now pegs hard, chances are you have it backwards.

Oh, and I just thought of a 4th reason. Are you sure you're on the calibrate position?

I have a galaxy pluto. the recieve final went. any place where i could send this radio to get it fixed.

I live in putnam county ny. i used to go to a place called herbs in monroe ct. but they closed down a few years ago. they keep telling me about this place called cb doctor but i can't seem to locate him. is there anyplace i can send this radio?

I would like to get this radio repaired. i love this radio. but have no place to go around here. living in the boondocks of upstate ny.

Dose copper magazine do repairs?

since this radio went down a few years ago i have not been on the air since. i wish i had my old president washington. i was stupid and gave that base station away. that was also a fine radio.

if there is no place to get it repaired? anyplace decent where i could go online an order a new one? thanks in advance, John aka Blade on the radio.

Simple. KC8LDO Lelnad lies, forges, and threatens.,if you need an example, simply say so..hundreds of them exist. It's nothing against Lelnad, but anybody that reduces themselves to a level where they needs to threaten and forge others because of their lack of communication and debate skill, is but a lowlife. It's not personal, but with Lelnad's mild retardations, he can never comprehend such. It's one of the reasons the late great Dick McCollum outted Lelnad in the hammie group,,,he was tired of him causing unprooked problems with cbers. ButI don't mind at all,,,its entertaining watching him blame another (memememememe) for his misery and failures in life, in addition to chanting (prayer) and invoking my name in all his posts. :)~

Yup, you are a dumbass. Since it takes anywhere from 6 to 12 hours for any post to show up here, I responded to what was available when I

First check what Frank and Dave suggested, then try this:

(hopefully your antenna is one of Radio Shacks adjustable ones)

1. Find out which channel gives you the lowest forward calibration reading (1 or 40)

2. Note that reading

3. flip the switch to check the reverse reading.

4. Note that reading.

5. Change to the channel that gave you the highest forward calibration reading.

6. Adjust the reading to same level as step 2.

7. flip the switch to check the reverse reading.

8. This will give you a "relative" SWR reading.

9. Depending on which channel gave you the lowest "relative" reading:
If your lowest reading was on channel 1, your antenna is too long.
If your lowest reading was on channel 40, your antenna is too short.

Adjust your antenna.

>Just who are you accusing, Twisty?

The ID game brings pleasure only to yourself and Lelnad and Geogre and Dogie and now, JerrkyO..the losers of the group.

>Have you forgotten so soon your own >perverse and profane forgeries of N7VCF?

You made the claim that posts talking of n7vcf were directed to yourself.
Changing the subject has never worked.
Your condonement of forging, and those who play up to it is in part, why you are an angry louse that has been defeated in all aspects of your life..a regular failure. Don't take my world for it,,,hell, I;m not the only one that notices I am responsible for you and the tream voob's psyche being cracked...hahhaha..I love it!.

I remember a couple of folks on here said you are of the mentality of not being able to be reasoned with,,,,,they were right,

>Yet you continue to try, which speaks volumes >about -your- menatality.

I never tried to reason with you monkeys,,I merely point out your impotence and incompetence and you can't handle it. I hold all the strings that make you go wild,,,,at my beck and call, of course.

 despite my earlier and many previous defenses toward your oft-disagreed with contentions. It is I who was incorrect in assessing your demeanor.

>That's because you are incorrect just about all >the time. Such as each time you accused me >of being one of five different hams..... or was it >six.....

But your incorrect accusations of accusing me of being five different people is somehow......."different"..LOL..Oh, "Frankless"..hahhaa..I like when you come apart at the seams,,it reinforces my position.

>it's not easy to keep track of all your paranoid >hallucinations.

And here you are, all consumed with MEMEMMEMEMEMMEME.

> So who do you think I am this week, Twist?

The same yellow coward you were all your life,,,,

You worked terribly hard to have your call synonymous with wa3moj, n8wwm, and kc8ldo. Congratulations,,,and I'll toss another feather in my cap, secure in the knowledge that another lousy hammie that has an unnatural and unhealthy predilection toward cber's has self-destructed.

>A reality that exists only in your Twisted little >brain.

LOL...if you were of sound mind and has the competence and ability to read and retain other posts besides mine, you will find that JerrkyO Oxendine rapidly declined in the mind's eye of this group,,and this is only the tip of his melting iceberg,,,see, it wasn't MY mind that had JerrkyO listed as alid scoundrel,,,on the contrary, I defended him many times..but since you ineptly can't comprehend such, due your massive communication deficit,,,ahh,never mind,,,,in any event, he will be around these parts much less than he previously visited, In fact, since it was proven by many that he is of no good and of the same mindset of yourself and n8wwm and Geogre and Lelnad,,whenever trouble brews, his call WILL be associated with the other lids from here on out, That's just the way it is,,,and there ain't nuthin' your impotent tail can do but cry crocodile tears and blame....MEMEMEMEMMEMME! LOL!
Now, carry on about how big bad twisted and his radical rants are responsible for your failures and misery, you poor impotent queen!

I have a galaxy pluto. the recieve final went. any place where i could send this radio to get it fixed.

I live in putnam county ny. i used to go to a place called herbs in monroe ct. but they closed down a few years ago. they keep telling me about this place called cb doctor but i can't seem to locate him. is there anyplace i can send this radio?

I would like to get this radio repaired. i love this radio. but have no place to go around here. living in the boondocks of upstate ny.

Dose copper magazine do repairs?

since this radio went down a few years ago i have not been on the air since. i wish i had my old president washington. i was stupid and gave that base station away. that was also a fine radio.

if there is no place to get it repaired? anyplace decent where i could go online an order a new one? thanks in advance, John aka Blade on the radio.

Hiya John,,,if no one helps ya' out, lemme know. Thereare a ton of decent radio shops in the NE, but only a handful of decent techs......be very careful about sending your radio anywhere west of the continental divide based on claims presented in this group. In fact, I'd stay in NY or Jersey.

My goodness,,,"Frank"-n-Nad come gunning hard with personal attacks for pointing out JerrkyO is responding to forges. Nevermind that JerrkyO knows he screwed up, the fact that he has two of the group's known troublemakers attacking on his behalf and lobbying as if their life depended upon it to get the focus off of his response to a forge is a hell of reward. I kind of enjoy getting three for the price of one. Now if only I can get 'Nad to react like he does when he hears my name being called on the bowl from his dirty van down by the water....hahhahaha! That must be one hell of a sight....filthy Lelnad using illegal power on cb in his filthy van by filthy Lake St. Clair, trying to get himself heard....and making himself madd-er by the minute..ahaha,,,,,..lmao!

Well there ya go then. Anyone who doesn't like Jerry's repeated rec.radio.amateur.policy with attention "Jerry" <joxendi@bellsouth.net>

Right. You merely incite flames and maliciously troll cb groups and intentionally respond to forges you know are forges. For once, I thank whoever forged me,,it illustrated what a rat you are and as such, everything you say will be suspect in the future. Shoot, I was the only one giving you any credibility anyway, the rest of the cbers wised up long before myself in recognizing your bullshit and trouble causing..,,problem was, I was too trusting. Shame on me for that. Only now, it's shame on you forever more, Mistah kayy for kayy doubleya aaaaych!

I hate to admit it, but the meter was hooked up backwards.
Thank you for the help.

On another note, on channel 1 my SWR is 2 and on channel 40 it's 3. The antenna is a 48" Fiberglass whip from Radio Shack and is adjustable. I'm guessing that I need to shorten the antenna?

Thanks again,

A slow newsgroup service is your problem, not mine. If you know the possibility exists that comments may be retracted (or amended) soon after posting, using newsgroup service lag-time as an excuse just makes you look that much dumber.

Twisty and Hall got all huggy and kissy after I plonked Hall -- he was making Twisty-like arguments for why a ham has a legal right to interfere with his neighbor's television. Like his argument that anti-interference laws violate the ham's civil rights, and that laws against Radio Frequency Interference don't apply to RFI. See the thread "Outcome of CB/Utility BPL Dispute" for more lame excuses by him and other hams..... as well as Twisty taking a defensive posture in favor of the hams!

You will probably never see them. He probably considers those specs to be 'marketing information' which he doesn't disclose, just like his source that tells him there are 12 million CBers in the world.

1765. wiring question

I'm ready to install a newly purchased cb in my van for an upcoming trip. However, I want to be able to move the unit to my other car when the need arises. Is the best power source solution simply using a cigarette lighter adapter or is it better to hardwire the system in with some kind of male-female adapter/connector setup? If hardwiring is the better solution I would appreciate the best way to do this (ie what are the parts I need, schematics, etc.). Thanks in advance.

A really mismatched antenna could cause a low forward reading on an SWR meter. Anyway, he did figure out that he had his meter backwards.

With the antenna shortened all the way, my SWR is 2.5 on channel 12 which is the channel I will be using the most. I'm not sure if I should just leave it alone, or if there is something else I can do to get a better reading. I suppose I could replace the Radio Shack feedline I used.

I'm sure my power and grounds are good as I have no engine noise. I've heard a lot of people with Jeep Wranglers have engine noise issues.

Any other comments or advice would be greatly appreciated.

You still havent answered Andy's question of what specifically makes Chinese manufactured products a lesser quality product.
If you dont know, just say so. Ignorance is simply not knowing. Nothing wrong there.

"This IS showing poor manufacturing, which CHINA does poorly!", says Dave.
O.K.... Lets assume for a moment that your opinion is fact. China manufactures poorly. Are you speaking of the automated process ? In that case, you must know where these assembly line products were manufactured. What if the optic sensor for that particular phase of the soldering process was having a bad day ? That sensor may have been made in Italy, or Brazil, or Canada. Maybe even the US. Who do you blame now ?
You painted yourself into a corner long ago with this tired old story of China this and China that. Let it go, babe. Let it go.
A couple final bits of news in case you havent been in a new vehicle lately. Car "radios" now play MP3's, DVD's, and have this ability to use what we in the normal sector call "navigation through global positioning satelites". They are just a wee bit more intensive to diag and repair than the radios you constantly whine about. Sorry it bothers you that i didnt sit content dicking with simple equipment. That and GM farming a lot of the parts on their new Equinox SUV. China gets to build at least the engine, and i forget who gets to build the tranny. Mayhap this news will drive your blood pressure up enough to trigger a fatal heart attack. Would be ironic to die becaused you were so cheesed off at 'em.
Remember...Answer Andy's question and i'll back off Davy. As much as you want to spew at me, you need to prove yourself a man and finish what you started with him...

Try ignoring the cal function on the meter for a minute and just flip through all your channels 1-40. At some point in the middle, you should hit a low. If it's lowest point is on channel 1, your antenna is tuned to a channel lower than 1. You need to shorten it. Many people will argue how low it has to be but 1.5:1 or lower should be fine. There is one thing to keep in mind. You said the antenna is bumper mounted. This can create problems because alot of the vehicle (the antenna's ground plane) is beside the antenna instead of under it. This is not to say that you can't get decent performance with a 4 ft. bumper mounted but it depends on the vehicle and the antenna. You may want to try a 6 ft. whip later.

That number came from Jay, and it is very relevant because it is one of several claims he has made, yet refuses to back up with facts under the excuse that they are 'marketing secrets'. I'm can't say that his antennas are junk -- they might be outstanding antennas, but since I have never seen or tested one I can't say one way or the other. What I -can- say is that when it comes to marketing, Jay's "facts" leave a lot to be desired.

As for being a "respected poster to this board", I guess that depends on your point of view. He seems to be well-respected by the keyclowns since he promotes illegal operation. OTOH, he comes across with an attitude haughtier than my own, even to the point of appointing himself as the newsgroup's polite-police. And I won't even go into the technical discussions except to say that for a person who purports himself to be knowledgable about radio and electronics, he lacks much of the theory and experience one would expect such an 'expert' to have.

But I'm sure you have a different opinion.

Now if you can get some music written to go along with it you'll have a real song and dance act. Otherwise your comedy show is boring. You need new material.

typical of CB Radio, nowadays.

this is why all the old timer CB'ers were against the FCC dropping the Licensing requirements.

But it happened and now we've got these kind of operators. trouble is, now they're wanting to do the same thing to Amateur Radio.

WHO could forget this clown getting spanked by Charlie!?!

N8WWM guilty of FCC violations. According to the FCC, N8WWM, Dog Adair committed several violations over the air at the expense of the Toledo Amateur Radio Club by utilizing their repeater to break the law. The amateur club received a warning letter from the FCC concerning Adair's violations and were told to take steps to make certain the violations by Adair will not be repeated. Adair not only hurt the entire image of amateur radio with his inexcusable behavior, but damaged the reputation of yet another entity trying to further the good of amateur radio. It's a shame when bad apples like these make it so clubs can't even trust their own users to abide by the rules they were sworn to uphold. Adair is also an infamous presence on the internet. A google search of "N8WWM" reveals a peek into the world of the individual identified as Adair. In addition to FCC violations, Adair has, in the past, been accused of being a prolific spammer, breaking several internet laws and violating several terms of service agreements with internet providers.

the 12 million cb'ers has nothing to do with anything its just the only thing frank has ever been able to call jay on in his entire life and he hates that a fine extra class ham and cb'er like jay puts out such a nice cb product and happens to know more about antennas than frank himself. it's always ate him up and its clear to see. it's been a long lasting feud that wasn't worth jay staying around for. frank is a bully and has drove off alot of good people that should still be here.

That is after it is hooked up properly.

I have no problem calibrating now. The SWR readings are 2.5 on channel 1 and about 3.8 on channel 40.

Channel 12 was 3.5, not the 2.5 I had previously posted.

Your antenna is too short, or something is shorted in it,

Thanks.

I'll see what I can do to improve those 2 things. I'll make it longer and I'm going to go ahead and change to a better quality coax.

No shit..gas was 15 to 20 cents cheaper in Tenn and the Virginia's than in Cleveland, going to and from the Bristol race. I thought it would be more down there.

So you enjoy reading -all- the enforcement archives here? Jerry Ox has taken it upon himself to post -all- the CB enforcement to rec.radio.cb.

The best part is, it's totally on topic for rec.radio.amateur.policy, when you tight ass hams get ran.

Not too much fly fishing, just like to use a lot of different lures. Yeah sure know what you mean about another story. Going to be doing a lot of local fishing this year to make up for not going down to Cabo.

LOL!!!! Yes, Jay should be shamed for building something high quality and good performance. As for his "promoting illegal activities, well it's a good thing that most normal people don't think like Frank.
Gosh, think of it, Robert Glenn Johnson, doing all those illegal activities, making money from it, man what the sport he now help promote would be like if all had narrow minds like Frank.

The legal speed limit is 65 mph, ok lets make it 80 just for laughs.
The legal CB limit is 4w.

Do the math jays antenna is designed for 6250 times the legal limit.
thats like making a car engine capable of 500,00 MPH. give up steveo

Don't blame licensing requirements. It was enforcement that was the problem. Back in the day I "paid" for my license and there were people using reverbs, amps, homemade noise toys, and YES there were people with extra channels. A law is not a law if it's not enforced. It wasn't enforced then nor is it now.

It's a new adjustable 48" fiberglass antenna from Radio Shack.

Those readings are with the antenna as short as I can get it by turning a screw head in the top of the antenna. =/

If the SWR is HIGHER on channel 40 than it is on channel 1, then the antenna is TOO LONG.

Placement of the antenna is important too. I've seen guys with Jeep setups who mount the whip to one of the "bumpers" within inches of the vehicle body. This is not the smartest thing to do, and it will likely affect the SWR.

Adjusting a fiberglass whip is a tricky operation. You can't practically lengthen it, and if you cut it, and it doesn't help, you've ruined an antenna.

What I find more telling is the fact that you "plonked" people who made logical challenges to your overly draconian interpretation of FCC rules, while on the other hand, you continue to engage other people who do little more than make inane ad-hominem comments.

In other words, you run from a nuts and bolts debate, but seem to Its probably due to where you have it mounted. It will work the way it is. At some point in the future, you might want to look at a different antenna. One that you can get off the bumper and still survive branches and trees.

Welcome to Frank's world. While Frank is an intelligent person, his interpretation on some things is 80 to 90 % different than everyone else. I too have tried to have debates with him over some law issues, but when you lay facts, examples and other things to back you up, he comes back with insults and name calling, then says "you" are the one that doesn't know what you are talking about,

"plonk".
Just wait, now he will start calling you "hypocrite" on every response, of course he's also said he doesn't use a kill file either.
One thing about Twist whether he like's you or not, if you are wrong or right, he will chime in the way he sees it.

Any more than Frankie has ever proven his claim that Twisty is someone named "Dave". Funny how that works, huh?

It's even more fun to see him get you and DouGay and Frankie worked up and barking on command, and he certainly knows how to do that! LOL!

you lucky son of a gun heh, would have loved to be there for the race, I'll be going to MIS for both races this year.

You know whats really sad, gasoline is a by-product of making heating oil and diesel fuel, yet they say that the gas prices have gone up due to them focusing their effort to make heating oil and diesel fuel. Both of my grandfathers were in the business for years, my moms day worked for the refinery in Lima, and my dad's dad had a gas station and garage in McClure for 36 years, where I spent the early years of my life, learning to weld and rebuild carburators at 8 years old.

only beer swilling rednecks go to auto races parks........you must really be bored......you need to do something with your brain besides watch cars go around in a circle......try reading a few books while you are sitting in your truck with the ac going while all of your wetbacks are busting it in the hot sun........

I doubt you will be able to watch the Texas race this weekend. Its nice and sunny here today, and when its nice and sunny on Wednesday, it rains on Sunday.

Yeah it's come in handy, my biggest problem is, I have no patience for mechanical work, I get frustrated and want to start pounding on things with a hammer, mechanical parts don't work as well after you've pounded on them with a heavy hammer. Thats why I went into construction, I can beat the hell out of a 2x4 and when it's covered with drywall nobody knows.

Hi gang!

Jerry has a legitimate concern, but I think he misses a point. I honestly believe (and I may take flak) that most folks are reasonably law abiding. Whether hams or cbers, it isn't unlike the traffic situation here. Most folks are reasonably law abiding. By reasonably, I mean most folks stop or slow down to 1 or 2 mph for a stop sign. If it is a rolling stop and no one is coming, is it really wrong to continue? Then there are the flaming idiots like the guy who nearly hit me yesterday. There were problems with a couple of intersections at a bridge connecting the expressway a few years back. People would go into the intersection on yellow even though there was no place to go (cars backed at the second intersection). Consequently, gridlock occured. They fixed that about three years ago with left turn signals, allowing the traffic to clear from the bridge. Now (like the idiot yesterday), some folks stop, see the light also red at the sidestreet, and then gun it and go through the intersection (never mind the fact that the other traffic has a green left turn arrow on). This stupid mentality goes on in our society regardless of a license (amateur or driver) and I would not paint all drivers as stupid or inconsiderate just because of that one licensed driver. Neither would I paint all cbers or amateurs the same way because of the actions of a few.

I suspect I'll be pushing up daisies, however, long before the flames die out around here LOL.

Hope you all have a great day!

I learned morse code in the early 80's. (ex KA2RLB). I was an avid ham for years. I loved contesting, rtty, cw. I never really got much past 20wpm. But I loved ragchewing in the novice bands where I could pick and choose a comfortable speed. I was totaly inactive for about 10-12 years and recently was re-bitten by the "ham radio bug" and obtained a ts430s. Wow, how fast the cw came back to me!
There have been a lot of changes in ham radio in the last 10 years, mostly due to computers.
the one thing that has not really changed is morse readers. They still suck!! hihi.
Then I find out the whole license structure and cw thing. Ok... It sort of saddend my heart a bit.
Kind of like an end of an era. CW is an antiquated form of communication, no doubt, however I think there will be CW enthusiasts for many, many years. People that are steeped in tradidtion. To remember radios early days, etc..
Occasionaly I find myself talking to young kids and (If I can manipulate) the conversation turns to morse code (wink) I start rattleing thier name off in morse code (spoken) Dahdidah Didah Da Didididit Dahdidahda, etc etc. Most kids think its fun when you explain it like it learning a "secret language" that isnt really to hard to learn!
So......where are all the CW'rs going to be???? I truley think, even if CW gets totaly abolished it will be around forever.
Just my 2 cents

Maybe not by choice, but the troublemakers adopted you, Jerry. Now,,why do you think that could be?,,,,,,Well,, let''s take a peek...it could be you rag on otherwise law abiding citizens. It could it be that you use tactics that inflame and incite, tactics used by only the group you claim no part of. It could it be your unhealthy predilection toward truckers, cbers, and cbing truckers. It could be you playing up to a forge. Hell, Jerry, ask around,,,I'm sure you can be given many valid reasons.

Hello, Jerry and all

I had previous problems with tires being dumped in the yard of the house behind mine. Repeated calls to the city resulted in nothing - until I obtained the services of an attourney. Within a week, the city cleaned up the mess and billed the owner. ;)

Lately, the city has become much more responsive. I suspect the FCC may as well, what with the Janet Jackson debacle. I sent a couple of emails concerning a lot of activity next door. Cars stopping, someone going to the house and then leaving withing 60 to 90 seconds. Hmmmm .... one day I saw three cars stopped. Then a van. Then the marked cars pulled up on both sides of the street. I could hear the banging as they searched the house. Flashes as pictures were taken. Three people did not pass go. They did not collect $200.00 LOL. Guess where they went?

Best regards from Rochester, NY

Hello Jerry and Twist

Twist, I'll stick up for Jerry on this one. He does not, to my knowlege, hide. Regardless of our standings, I'll listen to anyone not hiding (including both you and Jerry). I have no patience for some of the knotheads with foul mouths hiding their identities. His point has generally been for unlicensed folks to keep out of 10 meters. I agree with that 100%.

Best regards from Rochester, NY,
Jim

I submit that you learn to post a proper link as the rest of the world does,

I don't. Fact is, no antenna manufacturer can make a definitive claim as to an antenna's performance in every given installation (execpt maybe for dishes). If it's a full-sized 1/4-wave ground-plane vertical, chances are it will perform no better than any other 1/4-wave ground-plane vertical -regardless- of who made it. Same with 5/8-wave verticals. If you can build one yourself from scratch it will probably perform just as well as one made by Jay or any other manufacturer.

Then the archives are filled with a whole lot of forgeries of Jay.

The difference is that I back up my technical opinions with logic, facts and authoritative references. Very few people in this group, regardless of 'pedigree', Jay included, have ever been able to make such a claim.

Yeah, right. People like Sean who has 4000 friends that are CBers in the greater San Diego area; or like Eitner, the self-declared "CB amp god"; or like Skippy, the sweep-tube-loving CB-amp-head of a ham whose theory of triode operation consists of "it's part of a bigger picture". If you really miss the lot of these tech-wannabes that pushed "Bird-watts" and "swang" as good things, then nobody is stopping you from whining to another, more appropriate group. I would recommend "alt.mythology.cb" or "alt.religion.voodoo.cb-amps". Until then, go smoke your dope, hose your skanks, and leave the technical topics for those of us that can think for ourselves.

I don't doubt it. But since you have one, does it meets all the other claims Jay has made? Have you had 100mph+ winds lately? Did you have RFI that went away after installing this antenna?

I don't have a killfile -- I have a brain. That means I have the ability to make my own decisions as to which posts I read or don't read. For example, I read very few of your posts because you are mostly uninteresting. However, that doesn't mean I won't read one of your posts if the -topic- is interesting. Catching on yet?

Twist will chime in at any time and in any way that he thinks will pull the strings of anyone he doesn't like. If he thinks he can push my buttons by sucking up to Hall, he will and he did. Fortunately, it didn't push my buttons at all; on the contrary, it was quite entertaining to watch him get all kissy-face with his 'former' adversary for the sake of little 'ol me.

LOL!!! Yes, George seems to think that I've had a WebTV, Mindspring, Netcom, Prodigy, AOL, Pacbell SBC among numerous others for my ISP's. Typical liar, try to advert attention away from him as being the problem.
Notice that I have not made very few posts in the past week , but yet he tries to say it's all my fault. Drag me into this little thread to which I have said very little if anything at all.

LMAO!!!!!

Hi Jim,
Yeah, I too have a very high regard for Jer, but I think Twist and others are trying to say is, that the posts he made as of late really has no regard for this group except to cause flames. I do understand and respect the fact that the Ham bands are Freqs that people have earned the right to use, but to make post per verbatim on people that were busted for operating in the ham bands without licenses, then gloat about it seems a little excessive.
Now I have enjoyed many emails with Jerry and hope to in the future, but to me these posts do nothing to prevent illegal intrusion into the ham bands. I was probably the only one from this group that called him direct when he hadn't made a post for a while. I then found out he had a stroke, and was relieved to hear that it did not have any long lasting effects over it.
Jerry, get back to sitting on the deck and enjoy the spring drinking those Margaritas, relax.....

Jim how does he know Jerrys posts do nothing to prevent intrusion into the ham bands. there are lots of people reading this NG not just Landshark and his cronies. Also Jerry reads sees the many posts in here that boast of illegal radio activities and say the FCC doesnt care about enforcement etc. why shouldnt he think he could do some good by posting the facts. Let Mark Beck take his own advice and killfile Jerry or just dont read the posts if they make him upset.

So there is no reason to believe Twirt or any of his demented followers either. You can't have it both ways.

Yeah, Twirt can't "prove" anything either. If Frank can't prove his point using the same resources as Twirt's then Twirt has no hope proving his point. If you believe Twirt and his crazy ideas about who posted what by using message headers then Frank has proved his as well. The message headers work the same regardless of who is reading them.

It's really funny that you limit yourself to thinking Doug is responsible, or I'm some how involved. What a small narrow mind you have. You ready should use your brain if you have one. You ready don't know what is going on here and who is doing it. That much is very obvious. Until You, Twirt, and the rest get smart real fast and accept the facts, even if they conflict with your dearly held believes, you don't have a chance of changing what is happening on this news group.

On those two points, while I don't have first hand knowledge, Jay, having the fortune of living near the Mojave, has a lot of space to do some unorthodox testing. His 100 MPH wind claim comes from a test where he mounted one of his antennas in a truck and drove it at 100 MPH (Which is the same as the wind blowing at 100 MPH). I remember reading about the tests when they happened.

The other claim about RFI is also legitimate. If you replace an antenna such as an Antron 99, which has poor RF decoupling and creates a strong near field radiation pattern, with a standard 5/8th ground plane style antenna, in most cases RFI will be reduced. This is nothing unique about Jay's antenna, but it is a true characteristic of the basic design.

Cool. The entire group knows you're not only suffering an anger and self control problem in addition to your communication deficit, but that you're a "total nut case" and pathological liar.
Oh, and by the way,,,,over time, together, comcast and I have put together quite the dossier. Easily. The last "no name" storm destroyed several homes and properties, caused millions of dollars in damage, and even though my antenna looked horizontal at times, it was unscathed. This doesn't begin to take into consideration the countless hurricane spawned storms and winds it has been through. No problem.
In addition to your ignorance concerning antennas as relating to HF, you now present your lack of intellect concerning the weather in your own country.

>Did you have RFI that went away after

Didn't have any RFI. My receive slightly improved upon installation.

Has nothing to with "like" or "dislike". These are the emotions that control you and more and more regs on this group are telling you that your views are not only skewered, but no one else shares them. The rest of us have enough communication skill we are able to place aside personal feelings and maintain a civil conversation, no matter the position one takes. This, of course, does not include yourself.

Again, that you somehow actually believe my presence is somehow tied to your posts, is proof positive of your neurosis' and demons that keep you down. My presence was established in this group prior to yourself being degraded,,,so blaming me for all that ails you is your problem that no one else shares,,,except, of course, Lelnad KC8LDO, N8WWM, WA3MOJ and K4KWH. And so do I. I also share your view that his point has "generally" been about unlicensed folks staying out of 10 meter. However, in my very humbled opinion, that doesn't appear to be the case any longer.
Nope. Jerry is a hard core republican and after the political thread, he played up to a forge, something he has never done in the past. Why the sudden errratic behavior? He had many chances to do this in the past, but refrained.
It stained him, Jim. His avoidance of the topic and refusal to comment on his rather (sudden?) and bizarre behavior is more than the cautionary reactionary needs. I appreciate much that Jerry has to offer, however, he knows he screwed up, and he did it intentionally. I don't hold grudges, but I don't forget, either. He has digressed in my eyes, and judging by the majority of the regs whom I trust, I was very late in opening my eyes to his behavior. Nevertheless, it happened, he did what he did, and we all have our beliefs. 'Tis a shame the active elmering-type hammies are diminishing. Everyone feels they need a "cause" these days, no matter who they hurt. Incomplete and unsatisfied souls.
As always, your willingness to volunteer and undertake fair and concise arbitration duty, is much appreciated.

Twistidave you seem to have appointed youself judge of the NG becuase you have pronounced Jerry O guilty without cause on a trumped up charge and have even twisted the words of a dead man [Dick M]
to condem Jerry in the eyes of the NG

Hey your beef with Jerry is that he posted cb bust reports and laughed about it, ok dude, you see that people have dumped all kind of trash in this NG including promises that they are going to run ilegal power and channels they also post taunts to Jerry O saying hahahaha the fcc dont care about 27 mhz and all that.

Now Jerry is responding to that trash ,,you pop your cork and slap his name on your enemies list and single him out for punishment. wrong Twistinuggets wrong. Jerry was laughng at the assclowns who laughed at him but you take that personal or against your crusade to keep freeband alive or what ever and lash out at Jerry.

Your weak minded followers [Nebo etc] may think you are cool but pretty soon that house of cards is going to colapse and leave you with nothing so you better apologize to Jerry O and admit your mistake.

Could be an antenna problem, or more likely you don't have enough carrier for the amount of modulation. Cranking up power mikes or turning up the mike gain can cause it. Some radios "show" reverse swing when there is nothing wrong.

Let us suppose that would be true only for the moment to indulge your psychosis......such behavior would be no different than you self-appointing yourself as a foul mouthed abuser to law abiding citizens, and to all that you find yourself unable to communicate with effectively (all those you disagreee with, IE: everyone but n8wwm and Frank)
Your latest access to the group illustrates and presents my point perfectly.

Your mild retardations have you selectively missing posts. He indeed played up a forge.
He's a guilty nutha sucka,,just like yourself.
Your latest access to the group ascertains my posiition perfectly.

Your communication deficit is responsible for your incompetence and hallucination. Your malice is responsible for your lies. I am responsible for your latest access to the group that ascertains my position quite nicely,,proving you the loser lid.
There was nothing said about Dick in regards to JerrkyO.

No. My beef with JerrkyO is playing up to forges, the kind of junk responsible for your relegation to accessing the group in the manner which you now find yourself,,,,reduced.

That isn;t what happened at all. But, then again, no one takes your word,,you're a coward and I take much pride in that fact. In fact, I take responsibility for you being a coward second only to yourself.

I should get paid for the dancing you do. Someday, you won't feel like you got hit by lightning every day, or that you just can't get your breath after having all the wind knocked out of your yellow sails...I promise your cva will cure that.
It is rather difficult to maintain a straight face when addressing someone that hasn't the clue whom they attempt to communicate, but I will try for the sake of accuracy. It is folly to watch losers such as yourself attack others from behind the veil. If that act alone doesn't illustrate your cowardice, the fact that you realized you need direct others to attack myself, most certainly does. After all, two of you against one of me isn't a fair fight. After having your hammie head handed to you on usenet so many times, you realize you can't go it alone and need to get some more people. (bully behavior) Alot more.

That would be just fine by me Steve. Hope the lights stay on this year and some yo-yo in Ohio doesn't screw up and short out the power grid again. 8-))

On which setting is it swinging backwards: signal, power or modulation?

Chilled fatter (gw@webhideout.clown), out of control, shaking uncontrollably, angrily spat:

>nobody gives a crap about your humble >opinion

That isn't true. Why, merely take a gander at yourself, young 'un. Look at to where you ahev been reduced to attacking 'ol twist,,,begging for help from anyone that will listen to your pathetic cries to assist you in "attacking" twistedhed...LOL. Of course, Lelnad KC8LDO has also mentioned me in every single post he has made for the last six days straight. I don't blame you for such incomprehension. You know no better, and even if you did, are incapable of learning.

>twistinutts dave......you are just some dude

>that came on here

And you are,,,,,,,just some chick that came on here? I might have guessed such by your reluctance to post under your call...but then again, it's not needed, now is it? Your call is exactly what you are now so ashamed of and are avoiding at all costs. Can't blame you one bit. Your reputation was self-destroyed.

>and suddenly you think you speak for the >group

Your insisted ignorance is responsible for my views being much more in tune with the group than your own. It's hilarious that bothers you. You have always had a problem fitting in, and since you can't get accepted, you lash out angrily.

>..........you get government assistance

The government gets my assistance in the form of a fat check ebery year at tax time, but coming from the one I single handedy reduced to nothing but fodder to be taken out and enjoyed at my whim, or tossed out like yesterday's rubbish, one can understand your imbecilic claims.

>and think that just because you don't have >anything better to do , you can get on here >and pretend to be something you are >not.

LOL.that you seem to care what occurs in my personal life is touching, if not illustrative of your impotence and mundane, failure of existence you refer to as life, but you are forgetting the most important of all tidbits,,,I never volunteered the information, you began searching and begging for it years ago. Once again, self-anger, self-manifested, and self-created...circular,,like a mutt chasing his tail...look at to the level to which you were reduced..lol..I am not responsible for your stained reputation, I merely gave you enough rope to hang yourself and nudged the chair a bit. Your bloated mind and destroyed ego is responsible for your self-destruction, but I do so enjoy that you feel I am responsible for your much illustrated incompetence.

>.......you sir are a liar and a cheat and on top >of that a charlatan

LOL....coming from the clown who actually believed using several remailers was a fool proof way to remain anonymous. Go buy a webtv and stop obsessing on my personal life. Let go of my life's tail and grow your own, fool.

>.........so go smoke your dope,

This penchant you have for illegal narcotics is much more of a concern than illegal cb radio,,well, to normal folks, but you aren't normal, you were reduced,,,,Twisssted style.

>and float afound in that john boat of yours and >pretend to be a fishing guide

And you can continue to pretend to be a hammie..LOL.

>....and kiss off......your days of rambling are >over..

Odd. Threats emanating from an anonymous remailer are identically illustrative of one's "days of ramblings being over", yet, you continue to cry and moan of like a bovine with garlic indigestion in heat seeking relief. Forget it. Not on my watch, slipshod.

>....from now all of your posts will be reported

LOL,,,still impotent after all these years.

>along with your forging activities for being way >off topic and a violation of your >tos......AKC4L......

My, my, my,,when 'ol Twist does a job, he does it right. I haven't seen you get this mad since I had your ISP yanked for blatant abuse and tos and "crimes" against the ng..LOL!!!
No doubt, forging is a violation of YOUR tos, Nutmeg, but get this,,,,,it isn't possible to forge from webtv, bozo, but a self-appointed guru such as yourself should know these things.

But you go on and continue to access the group in the manner in which you were reduced and relegated by myself, and make rabid claims about 'ol twist to webtv (abuse@webtv.net) while drooling out the side of your hairlipped mouth. I'll go on pissing you off to no end on channel 6 and cleaning your clock in when ever you step out of line...or even when you haven't and I think you need,,er,,,reprimanded...lol.
Perhaps webtv will have better luck explaining to your communication deficit ravaged mind that usenet works like this: Direct a post at someone, get a reply, dunce-cap wearer. It's not off topic when you're replying to an idiot like yourself that seems to have me as his topic in all his posts. Lid.

Its been 3 maybe 4 years and Twisted is still pulling his clown antics in this newsgroup. He posts some inchoerent rap about dx and breaking the law then insults a bunch of licensed hams and then ducks back to watch the fun. This asshole who calls himself Twistedhed and hides behind a nym has been holding the NG hostage for all this time. How many times can he blame Leland Scott for all his troubles? How many times can he claim "george" and N8 behind every problem he has? How long should licensed ham like Leland Scott who has done nothing wrong except stand up for fcc rules listen to this windbag punch clown spout off his nonsense? I say its time this menace is stopped and his ISP will stop him provided complaints are made to the right ears. Ether that or we all stop reading his posts and put him in the trash like he deserves to be.

I'ts been recommended to me to hook up my newly purchased cb to the fusebox. I picked up a Littlefuse Add-a-circuit fuseblock from autozone to make the final connection. My problem is that I can't seem to make this work. Is there a particular slot that the fuseblock needs to hook in to or should it even matter? The directions say not to use a circuit over 10 amps so I tried several fuse slots with a 10A fuse, all with no luck. I thought maybe the fuseblock was defective, but I popped the hood and touched it to the battery terminal directly and the unit was getting power. So, I'm gettin' it wrong somewhere. Any help on this would certainly be appreciated. Thanks.

A friendly visit would require him to tell me he was coming. To say you're gonna "show up unannounced" implies that he's already my friend. <he ain't>

Ask Dogie why he emailed me, and told me not to go. He'll school you in how to treat people who may tap you on the shoulder.

>You know everything you send them

I haven't sent them anything Lelnad, with the exception of a single complaint last week for your forge. Your trail was tracked. You left a trail of slime to follow.

>about me

Nothing is about you Lelnad. Get over your heavy, bad self.

>goes in the bit bucket don't you? They don't >waste their time with your stuff because

I don't "claim" anything to anyone, Lelnad. That's your job,,,to get out here and do a song and dance and cry about how I'm responsible for mucking up your life and causing you misery each waking moment..

>Don't believe me

Nobody believes you Lelnad, ,,,you attacked Dick McCollum for busting you forging in a hammie group. When he busted you for forging, the only reply you could offer him was "Well Dick, YOU support amps:. When that didn;t work, you accused him of harboring a grudge concerning a previous conversation which you had with him.
You forged myself. When you were made the fool and were unable to make me follow your demands and carry a conversation to a hammie group, you reduced yourself and forged myself, and Train, and Nebo.
You failed in your communications and failed at forging me. This is when Dick busted your lousy azz for pulling such a scumbag move. The world of hammies are aware of KC8LDO....merely ring your call via QRZ and see how popular you are....oh,,that's right,,you attribute such popularity to Tim,,,,yeee-haaaw!

>then ask them for yourself.

I'm not the one concerned with what others think,,,,you are.

>I've been on this news group two years,

Uh-oh,,,is this where some type "time spent in the ng" has its privilege? LOL,,,your arrogant elitism and pompousness is partly what destroyed your reputation as a hammie (and a person).,,hehehe! Pointing out your transgressions against fellow hammie operators, breaking of laws, and violating the hammie creed at every turn while maintaining the ARRL sig in your rabid posts is what reduced you to gutter trash AND radio trash.

>half of that with Comcast as my ISP,

Sure. But,,,,then it was shown you were funnin' around again with a bignet account, which you denied. You were then shown you indeed were posted via bignet. You were then asked why you posted through bignet and then lied about it. You tucked yellow tail and ran,,,,,,,as usual,,and returned with yet another access so as to reign abuse on the group.
But no one thinks any worse of you for it. It's not possible. Really.

>and I'm >not going to be leaving since Comcast is very >satisfied I'm not doing anything wrong.

I'm very happy you found an isp you are happy with.. Perhaps it will place an end to your incompetence regarding sigs and headers that confound one of your status,,,,,one who began working on a 12-18 month transitional degree program several years ago,,right around the time you claimed you were learning code and taking the test "next year"...well, that was several years ago, Lelnad,,,but I won't remind you about you failing the code test if that's what you need,,you know,,,keeping with your denials and lies and all that,,,,,<g>

>So I don't care what you have filed nor what

Sure you do or it wouldn't have set you off to the point of bringing it up and crying like a sissy about your misery

You just said you don't care...but on you menstruate..... and allow me

I love the idea. We've had this conversation before,,,I guess your communication deficit is acting up again. See, it has always been you begging for me to go away, not the other way around. Since your mild retardations are presenting complex problems to your double digit IQ, I will say it s-l-o-w. I enjoy having you around. I want you to go nowhere. I need lids like yourself around to remind us all of what a hammie that has gone bad is like. You are the perfect example of behavior a hammie should never engage.

I'm not even on the chart, pal,,,but you are,,in seven different blocks.,,and it only cost a buck. Shame I wasn't a gamblin' man,,,,,I'd toss a fifty in and sit here and engage you with your petty antics until you popped. You're becoming less tolerant as your health is failing and it shows, but again,,,,,,I did not force you to eat like a glutton ever since you could spell Ding-Dong, but I don't mind taking the blame......especially from you.

HAhahha.......The reason you are reduced to posting in such a manner is because the group is already full of your threats...but you're still the same impotent scared little yellow coward you always will be.
Now, if you'll excuse me, I have some radio activity this weekend, and a whole lotta DX to catch on the freeband,,,,and you can't play. Just sit here and,,,well,,,,,cry about me all weekend as you usually do.

Steve maybe somebody will start using the other name you were given that starts with the letter "P" and ryms with the name Moparholic, that is if you really wnat to stirl the pot up a bit. There are several people with a large spoon who would like nothing better now that it's settled down a bit. Its up to you.

But you persist anyway.

> We agree. Dick was a respected poster.

You may agree but you sure don't have any respect for the man. You really have sunk to a new low Twirt by putting words in to a dead man's mouth purporting him as the source of the lies you are spreading. It takes one really pathetic sick weirdo to cook up a scheme to use the reputation of a respected person like Dick to further your agenda of revenge and hate knowing full well that Dick can no longer speak for himself and to protect his honorable reputation, which you care less about destroying.

As much as I dislike Tim for example, and his points of view, I do respect him in one area. At least he doesn't lie constantly about his source of information like you do. He's a man while you're nothing but a kid hiding under mommy's skirt by comparison.

And Frank, thanks for posting the link showing Twirt for the poor liar that he is.

Well how about sending me you real name, address and phone number. Then it would be "announced". All you have to do is look me up on QRZ and call information for the phone number. Heck if Twirt can do it, he passed out my phone number to people on news groups directing them to call me for items listed for sale, you sure can look it up.

How dare Twistedhed an anonymous cb troll who boasts about breaking the law hijack the good name of Dick who can no longer defend himself, it is just like when you hijack freqencies you dont belong on no one is there to defend them..yes that is the mind of a freebander.

Frank said:

"McCollum notified Leland Scott of posts being forged in -his- name. They also had many polite conversations during Dick's remaining time."

Dick never condemned Leland you fool You may think people are so stupid they wont look it up they will take your word for it LOL guess again you demented fruitbar.

Since you missed the first post for whatever reason and claim this post by Dick McCollum N0BK does not exist,,,but here it is one more time, verbatim and unadulterated. You are having another of those episodes you suffer of accepting reality...LOL
If you would rather have merely the link, say so,,,I will be more than happy to stuff a little more crow down your rank throat. Two fer the price of one,,,that's what I'm talking about..Frank-n-Nad,,the cb punch clowns.
Ya' know, 'Nad, you shouldn't be so hostile and abusive in your postings. If you weren't so ashamed of your hammie status, you wouldn't have been committing the crimes against the ng and the lies upon lies that have you boiling over and beside yourself. yet again...LOL...see, you can cry about memmememme all you want, it isn't going to change the fact that Dick indeed busted you forging me, Train, and even Timbo.
I didn't invoke anything of Dick's,,,I merely reposted his post (see below) of him pointing out your misdeeds and crimes against fellow hammies....you claimed the post didn't exist and took to attacking myself from your other account like the coward you are for...what elese,,illustrating what a crooked liar you are.....you just can't control yourself. You took your bullshit to the hammie group and attempted, but failed to start your garbage and forging in there, illustrating you give not a damn about the hammies, either, as if you did, you would never have reduced yourself to the gutter trash you have become and tried to inflame and incite trouble on the hammie ng by forging those that cleaned your clock, taught you respect for your elders and upper classmen, and those above you on the ladder of evolution.
Dick McCollum slapped you down for forging, and all your feminine crying and bitching and moaning and blaming me for your failed life and misery in which you rightfully find yourself will not change this fact.
Now, go on and continue to cry about memememe all weekend...and enjoy the post you claim did not exist.

Sorry, Lelnad old chap,but I disagree with you once again. See, merely reposting one of Dick's posts is in no way disrespectful. In fact, Dick was a great hammie and elmer. Frank made recent comments that even -he- respected Dick as a poster. No wonder you flipped, you had the rug yanked out from underneath you. All that is left now is for you to attack Dick's credibility like you did when he busted your lying azz. You need to just chill out and stop making me the topic of all your posts and maybe try cb radio or something,,,after all, this is a cb group and you claimed you don't even own one. Couple this with your forges, foul mouth, multiple accesses to the group you have for abuse, your countless threats of violence you have made (and lost ISP's because of) and your agenda has never been clearer. You're no good,,,a lousy human, and a lousy hammie. You're still gonna pop and someone that tossed a buck in your square is gonna dance when you assume room temperature from stroking yourself out. You're full of piss and malice and you need to let it go. You really have solidified yourself as the cb and hammie internet nut job.

Thank you, Steve. Having long since killfiled Lennie, I would not otherwise get to see the comment.
1. I do not deny my reply.
2. The reply from twistedhed is a Leland Scott forgery.
3. The original from Train may well be.

(yawn) KC8LDO has not only attached my headers to his forge that doesn't exist, he is now attaching it to emails that don't exist. Fact: KC8LDO claimed N0BK never accused him of forging. Fact: KC8LDO said the post didn't exist. Fact: 'Ol Twist not only produced the post by N0BK, but several of them, reiterating his position. Fact: KC8LDO has forged many people and forged many headers and inserted them into his forges, as the posts and email he claims exist, actually exist nowhere except in the body of his posts. Gee, Lelnad,,,take your post concerning all your talk of spaceships where you placed my email addy and headers to it,,,it exists nowhere except in your (KC8LDO) posts. Same thing you are now doing with emails, illustrating how desperate and pathetically out of control you are and showing how far you go to attack those that pointed out your lies and incompetence. The ever-so slight difference, is,,,,I backed my claim with posts from N0BK,,your claim is backed by a post that exists nowhere except in your teeny tiny, foolish mind and the body of your posts, in addition to yet more forged headers you inserted into more trip you wrote and attribute to myself. Once again, nothing but smoke and mirrors and lies and failed attempts by yourself that show you the fool for which you are being played.

A retired gentleman went to the Social Security office to apply for Social Security. The woman behind the counter asked him for his driver's license to verify his age. He looked in his pockets and realized he had left his wallet at home. He told the woman that he was very sorry but he seemed to have left his wallet at home "I will have to go home and come back later."

The woman says, "Unbutton your shirt."

So he opens his shirt revealing lots of curly silver hair. She says, "That silver hair on your chest is proof enough for me," and she processed his Social Security application.

When he gets home, the man excitedly tells his wife about his experience at the social security office.

She says, "You should have dropped your pants. You might have gotten disability too."

Last year I replaced all the windows in my house with those expensive double-pane energy efficient kind.

But this week I got a call from the contractor complaining that his work had been completed a whole year ago and I had yet to pay for them.

Boy oh boy, did we go around! Just because I'm blonde doesn't mean that I am automatically stupid.

So, I proceeded to tell him just what his fast talking sales guy had told me last year... that in one year the windows would pay for themselves.

There was silence on the other end of the line so I just hung up and I haven't heard back.

Guess I won that stupid argument.

I did, and he was. But he wasn't a god, and his writings are not holy scripture. If you are going to create the First Church of the Velvet Codpiece at least do it for honorable reasons, not out of vindictiveness for your perceived enemies. If you had any respect for the man at all you would know that he held no animosity towards anyone, which is contrary to your petty little campaign of revenge against Leland. It's pathetic and disgusting that you would summon the recently deceased to fight your battles for you. Step off his grave and let the man rest in peace.

Your forges exist nowhere except in your feeble, wrecked, tiny mind and twisted psyche,,which is why they show up nowhere except in the body of your posts with my headers added to them,,,same as your more-desperate-than-ever pleas to anyone, anyone that will listen to you cry like a beaten sixteenth century viking wench, that "ol twist wrote you some mean emails that hurt your feelings. Nah,,you asked of me and I provided for what you asked,,,,you, on the other hand, have had nothing in this group but problems you blame on evveryone else and can provide only more lies and forges and your word, which means doody,,,nada,,,,zilch....

>I can see why you are afraid of people

Ditto for Holy Scripture. The fact that a self-avowed athiest refers to the Scripture as holy in the first place illustrates you're talking in circles again,,,in other words,,soused to the Gillils.

Uh-uh-uh...yourself, N8wwm, and Lelnad KC8LDO created the church unto myself.

Your words. I did do it for honorable reasons. Dick was much respected and Lelnad is less than honorable and is a scoundrel who is forging. End of story. But I understand,,you must,,no,,,you NEED make this about mememememem...lol. You're cracked, m' boy!

Again, your words,,which is, again, ,,,self-projection of all you are about.

>which is contrary to your petty little campaign

Your words,,from a self-professed liar. Anyways,,,revenge implies he did something wrong first. It's good that you finally admit he initiates all his problems by poking the sleeping dog with a stick. Nevertheless, I did nothing but remark about Dick's post, which he, and you, said didn't exist. I showed it most certainly did, along with an additional post of Dick reiterating his position again. Now, as predictable, you, and Lelnad, need make all your posts about mememememe. I will remind you the wisdom I imparted upon his square, flat head.....you need make some group such as "Twistedhed is no damn good",,or ,,"I can't stand twistedhedcanyoustandtwistedhedcmoncmoncmontellmeifyoucanstandtwistedhed",,,or maybe something like,,,"Twistedhed! Caution,,may be dangerous to your psyche. If you have a bruised ego, enter at your own risk"..or someTHING that will permit your heretic-like behavior to go unchallenged. Meanwhile, I'm going back to my radio, and to pointing out your incompetence, lies, and crimes against this group, just like Lelnad.

>It's pathetic and disgusting that you would >summon the recently deceased to fight your

>battles for you.

LOL...I didn't...YOU and Lelnad did, despite your best attempts (which are nowhere near good enough) at saying otherwise,..Lelnad initated this conversation by claiming I claimed he was forging way back when and spreading rumors about it,,,I merely interjected, politely, mind you, and reminded him gently that it was Dick, not I, who busted him forging..he denied it, as did you,,,now, faced with facts, you bottomfeeders are faced with nothing but to ....attack and lie.

>Step off his grave and let the man rest in >peace.

Again, you and Lelnad summoned him,,Lelnad falsely accused me, I corrected him and told im it was Dick, not I,, that said it. you both needed shown. Now,,,,bugger off, loser!

There is no doubt about what Dick said -- it's all in the archives. And so are all the things -you- have said. After reading this newsgroup for several years the only thing that -is- in doubt is your sanity.

No, that would be pinhead. I hardly drink at all anymore -- it's not as much fun as it was 20 years ago. But I'm not suprised to see you resort to yet another unprovable accusation. Got any more? Like, who do you think I am -this- week?

That's right, those -are- my words. I didn't quote, misquote or plagiarize anybody alive or dead. I don't need to. You, on the other hand, apparently need to distort the words of a dead person and use them as a crutch to support your paranoid fantasies. If I didn't know any better I would think that you are the kind of person that -needs- to feel victimized. But I do know better because you don't have any such personality disorder -- you are just a sociopathic pissant.

I never said it didn't exist. Matter of fact, I haven't made one single remark regarding the post to which you refer. My remarks have -only- referred to the post which you claim was where Dick accused Leland of forging, the post that was -in response- to -your- post where -you- make that accusation, not Dick.

Yes, it -is- all about youyouyouyouyou, even from your perspective. But your delusion of self-importance doesn't overshadow the fact that it's fed by feedback to your own twisted "opinions". The fact is that you have no importance at all in this world -- everyone can get along just fine without you. The only thing that -might- ever be considered important about you is your integration of so many well-defined sociopathic traits in one personality. For that your name should be listed in every Psychology textbook around the country.....

From F&W:

"Sociopathic Personality Disorders. These disturbances bring a person into strong conflict with his social and cultural environment. An antisocial or psychopathic reaction is marked by chronic conflict with others and with the moral standards of society. The individual has a defective sense of the rights of others, is profoundly self-centered, has little ability to tolerate frustration of his wishes, experiences little guilt, anxiety, or shame for his acts, and does not learn from punishment or experience. Members of the antisocial group often act criminally and are repeatedly in legal trouble....."

I coudn't have described you any better myself. Seek professional help, Twist. Really. Before you sink into full-blown dementia.

Wrong. I have never brought up Dick in any conversation except to defend his integrity against your attempts to twist his words into a shield for your petty little battle with Leland.

>are nowhere near good enough) at saying otherwise,..Lelnad initated this

You never interject politely except when you are trying to kiss someone's ass, like you did recently with Dave Hall.

>and reminded him gently that it was Dick, not I, who busted him >forging..he denied it, as did you,,,

That's because you are wrong. Dick never "busted him forging" -- it was -you-that made the first accusation. It's clear that Dick assumed you were correct, something he never did again.

>now, faced with facts, you >bottomfeeders are faced with nothing but to ....attack and lie.

The facts have been adressed and they prove that you are wrong. Get over it.

That's fine as long as you don't want to stir up the pot between us. I'm not interested in doing so. I would love to tell you what Twist has been up to on this group from my end. I think once you understand you'll run, not walk, from anything he says or does from then on. He's not the innocent victim he makes him self out to be I can assure you. If you want to discuss some other people we can reach an understanding about that too. I can tell you that what you think you're going to find out is not what you think is going on.

The receiver in the Icom 706 I have is better than the one in your typical $49.95 Radio Shack special. I can use the DSP to kill most of the heterodyne interference tones from multiple AM stations all transmitting together.
Makes monitoring of 11m less of a drag. I have yet to see a "CB Radio" with built-in DSP.

It's not a threat Steve. You act like you want to stir up the pot and I'm just reminding you that you have a choice not to do so. If you want to call me and chat, fine, but I don't have anything to do with what happens on this news group except for my own posts. You claim to run a business in the area so it would be logical somebody would know you and could provide directions and or an address. If you simply provided me your address and phone number it would save me the trouble of having to waste time asking around town. Right now I don't even have any assurance that "Steve Parks" is your real name nor if the city you live in is "Medina Ohio". The only place I've seen the name and city is on this news group. Somebody did identify themselves on my answering machine as "Steve Parks", if that was you, but then again it could have been anybody just using that name.

2031. Twist caught lying and falsifying a post from a dead man

Hey Twirt you can't even fake a message from Dick. There is no logical reason from the way you posted the message for Dick to write:

" Our friend and buddy Leland
Scott at work.
It is more than likely I fell for the first one. Dick "

Then followed by your reply header located so to make it appear that all of the above lines were wrote by Dick. Further down past the "Twistedhed" reply header we again find reference to "Dick" as in:

"What about you, Dick? In rec.radio.cb you support"

In the above section we have Dick writing a post to himself! These posts were deliberately edited by Twirt trying to prove a point that doesn't exist and end up committing a very stupid logical error easily caught. By relocating the header as below the logical flow of the message makes much more sense. It also means that Twirt was the origin of the claim that I was posting forged messages, not Dick.

why don't you shut up and go away twistinutts dave? you are one of the reasons this newsgroup has gone to hell in a handbasket. no one elected you the leader of anything. you are just some dope user who adopted this newsgroup for whatever silly reasons and now you seem to enjoy arguing with anyone about anything, anytime...i have read many of your posts and they all have one common thread.....they make no sense.....so either you are on drugs or you are mentally deficient, which leads me to think that your aspirations as some kind of free lance writer of some sort are misguided.....go get help and get out of here. we are tired of seeing you post here.....find something else to do with your government paid free time....AKC4L.....

steveo you are obsessed with the idea of beating people up ROTFLMAO all you do is make threats. Now you are harassing Lee who has done nothing wrong just like you harassed Doug, Frank and "george" and anyone who you dont like. stick with your keyclown pals and cb radio topics Youll stay out of trouble that way.

I would just ask around for anybody doing the kind of work you do and see who gets mentioned. Simple. Many people don't use their name in their business title.

What are you so afraid of Steve? You have my name, address, and phone number. I don't worry about it. I would rather call because it would be a quick stop by and I can't be sure you would get an E-mail message soon enough.

RESCUE RADIO: VK HAM BRINGS BOAT TO PORT SAFELY - BY RADIO

A pair of Australian and American hams are credited with being a lifeline to a storm damaged boat with six people on board. The Australian was at his home QTHand the American was at sea on the stricken ship. Q-News Robert Broomhead, VK3KRB, in Waverly, Australia picks up the story from here:

Bernie VK2ABN on March 4 was in QSO with VK2ABT/VK3ACA and heard a weak and distorted signal, KA7MWL Shawn, who was aboard a Ukrainian registered schooner sailing from Wellington NZ to Sydney Aust., sails had blown out and they were making slow progress just on 4 knots.

At that speed they had calculated that they would run out of fuel before reaching port. Bernie VK2ABN ascertained 6 people were on board, BUT NO EPIRB! All this information was relayed to Sea Safety Canberra.

With the schooners satellite communication system also out of action, the Ham aboard, Shawn KA7MWL operating around 5 watts on 7070 Khz was the only contact.

Sea Safety Canberra QSY'd from 8176 kHz to the 40 meter band but as their transmitter was in Charleville, SW Queensland, no contact could be established.

Bernie arranged a for sked in 24 hours time, this time things a lot better, radio and safety wise, the schooner expected in Sydney ahead of previously estimated time.

As Bernie said: "I hadn't realised you can now call MAYDAY on the various DISTRESS frequencies but nobody is listening any more. Since the advent of GMDSS a computer scans the frequencies looking for encoded tones. If it finds one it attracts human intervention."

VK2ABN Bernie says " It was a bit like the Tony Hancock Radio Ham Sketch in retrospect, anyway that's what his wife thought and our telephone sure ran hot for a couple days!"

According to Q-News, the Sydney Australia Water Police stayed in contact with VK2ABN to keep abreast of the situation. With no High Frequency facilities that could hear the stricken craft, they were totally reliant on ham radio. (Q-News)

THE BPL FIGHT: CLARIFYING FEMA'S CLARIFICATION ON BPL

The debate surrounding Broadband Over Powerline Internet access has taken a new twist. Opponents are now raising fears about the contents of a letter recently released in the FCC's BPL public comment files. It was sent by the Federal Emergency Management Agency's top administrator to FCC Chairman, Michael Powell. Opponents say the letter clearly shows FEMA is now reversing course on its vehement opposition to nationwide BPL deployment. Amateur Radio Newsline's Mark Abramowicz NT3V has the very latest

The letter was written by Michael Brown, Undersecretary of Emergency Preparedness and Response in the Department of Homeland Security. That's where the Federal Emergency Management Agency was placed in President Bush's restructuring of agencies related to the security of the United States.

Brown's letter to Powell actually was briefly mentioned in February articles on the FCC's BPL action that were written for two nationally-circulated computer magazines. But it apparently got little notice and its contents were not fully detailed.

Now that the letter is part of the FCC BPL file, its contents are in the public arena.

Brown tells Powell in the letter dated January 8 that FEMA wants to clarify its December filing so it is "not misunderstood or misconstrued."

Brown goes on to say FEMA is aware that some of what he labels "distinct approaches" to BPL may cause interference to FEMA's H-F emergency communications network.

But then, and this is the section that has BPL opponents worried, Brown writes: "However, we continue to study the BPL proceeding and have not concluded there is a material interference problem or that all of the distinct technological approaches to BPL pose risk of interference."

Compare that to the language in FEMA's December 2003 filing on BPL with the commission prepared by Barry West, FEMA's chief information officer.

West writes: "FEMA has grave concerns regarding the interference that likely would be caused to government communications by unlicensed BPL systems."

Or this comment: "This interference will severely impair FEMA's mission-essential HF radio operations in areas serviced by BPL technology."

In an interview with a Philadelphia radio station, a FEMA spokesman insisted there is no material change in the agency's position.

The spokesman says Brown's letter was sent to Chairman Powell to clarify that FEMA is still studying the issue and recognizes and supports the FCC's desire for a greater broadband capability for the nation.

The spokesman says Brown wants to see more studies on the interference issue and is working with other federal agencies.

However, the FEMA spokesman emphasized that any deployment of BPL should not pose an interference threat to the agency's H-F emergency communications network.

Those close to the BPL debate say Brown's letter, has only muddied the agency's position and sections could be embraced by both sides.

We'll let you decide.

Come to our website: www.arnewsline.org and click on this week's script and select the Text script and scroll to this report to find the internet U-R-Ls leading directly to Brown's letter and FEMA's original December filing.

In a communication posted to members of its Public Relations Reflector, the American Radio Relay League suggests avoiding references to the FEMA position for now in any BPL discussions or comments. (ARNewsline(tm))

THE BPL FIGHT: BIG NOISE IN MANASSAS

BPL has come to Manassas, Virginia and the hams there say that its not fun to listen to:

BPL audio

That's the racket being created by the latest of three Broadband Over Powerline or BPL installations opened in Manassas. This, as provided in a sound file on the www.W4OVH.org website, courtesy of George Tarnovsky, KE2AM. The interference level appears to be such that it would be all but impossible to hear a radio signal through it.

The kicker here is that this is reported to be an underground electrical feed that utilities claim are far less noisy than overhead wiring. However, having the wires underground does not seem to reduce the interference. At least not in this case.

And if you want to know more about the BPL hazard to America's communications, go get a copy of the of CQ. Joe Lynch, N6CL has an excellent analysis article in his "VHF Plus" column in the just out April issue of that magazine. (VHF Reflector, PR Reflector, W2VU)

THE BPL FIGHT: SOUTHERN OREGON GOES GLASS

Meantime, to the West in Oregon there's some good news on the BPL front. It comes from southern Oregon where the obnoxious radio pollution of BPL has lost out to quiet fiber optic delivery.

According to Doug Beck, K6ZX, in the town of Merlin, a private company, forming public and private partnerships with local government has wired the city of Ashland with what's called the Ashland Fiber Network. It has also extended fiber to the city of Medford with some 74 miles of glass cable connecting all schools to provide VOIP audio and video conferencing.

But that's not all. The partnership is also in the process of connecting to Grants Pass and will wire all the local schools and government offices as well. The best part is that all excess bandwidth is being made available to local citizens and wireless last mile technology is being explored to connect rural users.

Beck says over the VHF Reflector that the area is aiming to have a broadband connection available to all rural users without any Broadband over Powerlines in the area. (VHF Reflector)

RESTRUCTURING: SWEDEN GOES CODE FREE

It now looks likely that Swedish radio amateurs with a Class 2 license which is the equivalent of our code free Technician class, will be allowed to operate on the High Frequency bands as of early April. The decision to drop the Morse code requirement for an HF bands license in Sweden had been postponed from the 1st of January. A note in the March issue of QTC, the Swedish national society's magazine, suggested that on or about April 1st is when the change will be made. (GB2RS)

ENFORCEMENT: NO "DELIVER IT" ON 2 METERS

Using an illegal long range cordless telephone to deliver culinary delights is going to cost a New Jersey Chinese restaurant a good part of its profits. This, after the FCC levies a $10,000 against the eatery for operating transmitting equipment on 2 meters without a license. The FCC's Daryl Duckworth, NN0W, has more:

Duckworth: "A Notice of Apparent Liability to Monetary Forfeiture in the amount of $10000 went to Best Wok of Westville, New Jersey. An agent of the Philadelphia office had DF'd the signal on 145.8376 MHz and inspected the base and mobile units. The restaurant manager stated that he had purchased the long range cordless telephone system in another country and brought it to the United States to operate at the restaurant."

--

The FCC citation issued to Best Wok indicated that the telephone in question is not FCC Part 15 certified and is illegal to use in the United States. (FCC, RAIN)

ENFORCEMENT: IT AIN'T USER RIGHTS

A California ham is the latest to be told by the FCC that if he wants to challenge a repeater operators authority to kick him off a system, he will have to do it elsewhere. That the FCC will nor reconsider the matter.

The situation involves Mark A. Glover, KE6TTL of Garden Grove. Apparently, Glover has complained to the FCC about his being banned from using a repeater owned by the Catalina Repeater Association with the apparent blessing of the FCC. This in a letter from the regulatory agency to Glover back on February 2nd.

In responding to Glover's February 26th complaint, the FCC says that its letter of February 2nd explained the right of the repeater association to make such a request. Also, if Glover has an objection to the decision of the repeater owner, that he is free to pursue legal action locally. But says the FCC it won't be involved. There are no Commission hearing procedures are provided in such matters. (FCC)

ENFORCEMENT: TWO PEOPLE - ONE CALL

The actions of a New York ham in obtaining a call sign have come under FCC scrutiny. Again, the FCC's Daryl Duckworth, N-N-Zero-W:

Duckworth: "A letter went to Frank C. Richards, KG2IJ, of Moers New York concerning an application filed in 1995 where he requested the call KB4VU be changed to the next systematically assigned, to change his address to New York, and to renew the license. Frank C. Richards of Ft. Meyers, Florida, claims that he is the real licensee of KB4VU, and filed no application for a call sign or address changes and has never lived in New York."

--

The FCC says that this raises questions about abuse of the licensing system and the agency is investigating. It has asked the New York Richards to provide documented information on where he previously lived in Florida, when he moved to New York and all FCC Amateur Service licenses that he previously held. (FCC, RAIN)

HAMFESTS: GAITHERSBERG - RIP

Some news from the hamfest circuit. After struggling to rebuild attendance from two moves the past four years, organizers in Maryland have canceled the 2004 descendant of what was once the popular "Gaithersburg Hamfest." This was a show that dated back to the 1950s. Amateur Radio Newsline's Newsline's Paul Courson, WA3VJB reports from Annapolis:

--

"There appears to be no support for this event from the member clubs of the Foundation or their respective members," according to Dan Blasberg, KA8YPY, president of the Foundation for Amateur Radio (FAR).

The group consists of a coalition of ham radio clubs in the Maryland, Washington, and northern Virginia region, and has used hamfest revenue to fund scholarships. In recent years it co-sponsored the event with one of its member clubs, the Columbia Amateur Radio Association (CARA).

Expressing his dismay that only two people had stepped forward from FAR to help stage the hamfest that had been scheduled for Sept. 11th and 12th Blasburg, said the lack of volunteer help is "not fair" to "carry the burden of a project of this magnitude and scope."

Blasburg concluded "it has been decided by the leadership of FAR and CARA to cancel Fall-Fest 2004 (due) to lack of volunteer participation." His note initially went out on an email reflector and since has circulated widely.

Blasburg this past week was hopeful his note would prompt people to step forward to help, but then, on March 27th, hamfest officials were openly talking about the cancellation and the withdrawal of the site reservation in West Friendship, Maryland.

What used to be the popular Gaithersburg Hamfest relocated to a parking lot outside a baseball field in Bowie Maryland in 1999, struggling as a local fleamarket no where near the size of the original site. A move to the Howard County Fairgrounds in 2002 did not help matters much, with attendance gaining marginally.

With the old Gaithersburg Hamfest now GONE, the successor as the largest in the mid-Atlantic region may now be the Timonium Hamfests at the Maryland State Fairgrounds north of Baltimore, where two clubs

sponsor a Spring and a Fall Timonium

Paul Courson, WA3VJB, Annapolis reporting for Newsline.

Thanks Paul. (ARNewsline(tm))

HAMVENTION 2004: THE FCC WILL BE THERE

Some much more positive news comes from Dayton, Ohio. This with word that two of ham radio's most popular speakers will be back at Hamvention 2004. Of coarse we are talking about the FCC's chief ham radio rules enforcer Riley Hollingsworth, K4ZDH, and FCC rules man Bill Cross, W3TN.

The two were missing from last years Hamvention due to a scheduling snafu. As planners put together this years outing, the duo was among the very first scheduled in. You will find them holding forth from on Saturday, May 15th from 10 a.m. to noon in Hara Arena Meeting Room 1. If you want to know exactly what's happening at the FCC and how it will affect ham radio, this is the event to be at. (ARNewsline (tm), Hamvention(r))

HAMFESTS: THE URUNGA RADIO CONVENTION

And speaking about hamfests, heres on that's a bit unusual. Its the annual Easter Convention scheduled for Saturday the 10th and Easter Sunday the 11th of April at the Senior Citizen's Hall in the city of Urunga, Uganda. Events include a 3.5 MHz mobile hunt, pedestrian on 2 meter T-Hunt, a 2 meter mobile multi transmitter hunt and lots more. Sunday will feature the famous Urunga scramble. A mini contest to see who can make the most contacts in 30 minutes. Its a great show, if you happen to be in Uganda an Easter weekend. (Q-News)

HAM HELP: GET WELL WALLY

Unless you live in the American West where this newscast is produced, you are not aware of the contributions of Wally Foster, N6CDJ. Those who do know that Wally has been a huge contributor to ham radio in the state of California.

Over the years, N6CDJ has been responsible for thousands of hours dedicated to installing the region's packet radio system. He has also introduced many to packet and APRS and volunteers a lot of time to emergency services, fundraising, climbing towers and doing a first-rate job with repeater and station installations.

Wally's in a tough personal battle right now. Please drop him a QSL with a "get well Wally" message top help keep his spirits up during a trying time. You can send your wishes to N6CDJ at his callbook address. (AA6JR)

EMERGING TECHNOLOGY: MESH NETWORKS RADIO RELAY SYSTEM

On the emerging technology front, Mesh Networks, whose emergency-response devices communicate through each other rather than through a centralized command is expanding its technology. This, to work on other kinds of wireless equipment including radios used by emergency service communicators. Rick Johnson, KA9VZD, has more:

Originally developed by the U.S. military, Mesh system of networking lets individual radios serve as repeaters and relay points. This means that a firefighter too far inside a building to reach his command post can communicate with a nearby firefighter, whose radio will then repeat the conversation to the next closest radio. This is similar to hams using a programmable mobile radio to extend the hand of their 2 meter or 70 centimeter H-T..

And just like hams have been experimenting, Mesh networks can transmit video, data and position information in addition to audio. But heres the departure fronm what radio amateurs are doing. The Mesh technology also has the ability to create super-sized Wi-Fi hot spots. This in itself gives the system wide utility in public service applications.

For the Amateur Radio Newsline, I'm Rick Johnson, KA9VZD, reporting.

Mesh Networks says that it is recognized as the leading developer of high performance and scaleable mobile ad hoc networking technology. More about the company and its products is on-line at www.meshnetworks.com. (Press release)

HAM AWARDS: THE VP5 YOUNG CONTESTER

If you are age 18 or younger, a licensed radio amateur and have been dreaming about going on a D-X contest, listen up. This next story is for you.

For the second year in a row, a competition has been announced for keen young contest operators with just such a dream. The winner gets an all-expenses paid trip to the Turks and Caicos Islands to operate with the VP5X Contest Group in the CQ World Wide DX phone contest this October.

Applicants must send an essay of 500 words or more telling how they got started in ham radio. It also must describe the person who helped them get started in the hobby and why you should be selected for this contest DX'pedition to VP5.

The winner must have his or her parents' written permission to make the trip on their own. Parents may accompany the winner at their own expense. All entries should be sent by e-mail to contests@vp5x.com by the 31st of August. (GB2RS)

HAM AWARDS: 2004 YHOTY NOMINATIONS BEING SOUGHT

And while we are at it, its time to announce the opening of the nominating period for the 2004 Amateur Radio Newsline Young Ham of the Year Award. This program is open to any FCC licensed youngster age 18 or younger residing in the contiguous 48 states. One who has made a significant contribution to the community, the nation or ham radio though the United States Amateur Radio Service.

As we have said in years past, this award is not a contest for a prize. The person selected "Young Ham of the Year" is judged on his or her contributions to society through Amateur Radio. By way of example, a youngster whose only claim to fame is that of being licensed as an Extra at age four would not necessarily be judge as having made a significant contribution to the Amateur Radio service. On the other hand, a 14 or 15 year old Novice or Technician running a net during a major disaster or crisis would definitely be given consideration.

More information and a downloadable on-line nominating form is at our website. That's in cyberspace at www.arnewsline.org. The cutoff for nominations this year is midnight on Tuesday, June 31st. (ARNewsline (tm))

DX

In D-X, W3EF reports that the 3B9C dxpedition has already made over 110,000 contacts and with any luck will soon be the biggest dxpedition in history. He says that besides the sheer volume, this has also been a carefully planned and executed operation with strict attention to details such as propagation on all bands to all regions. W3EF says it has been an absolute blast with a wonderful team from all over the world. At airtime the 3B9C operation continues. (W3EF)

In other D-X news, word that K5CM, N5KW and W5AO plan to operate portable VP5 from North Caicos island through the 7th of April. The island counts as NA-002 for the IOTA awards. (GB2RS)

Also, F8DVD, will be active slash JW from Svalbard on 80 to 10 meters to the 10th of April. He says that although it will be very hard to make contacts on 80 meters due to the very short night, he will make several attempts to do so. (GB2RS)

Lastly, PA9JJ will be active as C56JJ from Gambia until the 5th of April. Look for him especially on the WARC bands and on RTTY and PSK 31. For all these operations, QSL as directed on the air. (GB2RS)

THAT FINAL ITEM: FCC MAY MANDATE IONESPHERIC DELAY

And finally, a little-known provision of a bill to crack down on indecency on the airwaves may directly affect Amateur Radio. It went into effect at 00:01 UTC on April 1st. Roving reporter Pierre Pullinmyleg, F0OL, reports:

I'ts a rather -- er -- interesting -- audio only -- April 1st report. To hear it download the newscast MP3 file at http://www.arnewsline.org/quincy If you miss Pierre this week you will have to wait another year before he returns.

--

Thank you, Pierre, and we hope you can get back to warmer weather without any -- er -- long delay. (F0OL)

Why should you warn Lee to behave himself he has never threatened anyone in this NG.

You on the other hand Steveo have threatened many people such as Doug

>I'll meet you and pound you flat

you have threatened Frank..

>meet me and I'll beat you up

you have threatened "george"..

>where can we meet? I'll beat you senseless and now you have threatened Leland both by internet and by phone. Your whole existance is centered on meeting people and beating them up or at least dreaming about it. Steveo there are some pills you can take that might help you a doctor can prescribe them I think you have a chemcial imbalance. Honestly

1. Nope. If you stay on the regular 40 with 4 watts you are a CB'er.
Why hate someone like that?

2. You aint a CB'er, you are a keyclown.

3. We don't hate keyclowns either, we just like watching you all jump when we command it to be so. And you do.

4. Hate? Nahh. Hate is for things like terrorism, etc. You think we hate you because you take keyclownism seriously. We see it for the goat rope it is, and make fun of it. All at the expense of keyclowns like you. You can't do anything about it either, and this brings out hateful feelings in you. Maybe that is why you think the AKC hates you. Wrong. The problem is you measure everything by your own mutant yardstick. Keyclowns are too inbred to to anything else. You can't buy entertainment like this anywhere, and you are one of the main ones to make us laugh, mopedboy.

Twathed vainly grasps for anything that supports his lifestyle of gay

Leland Scott has done nothing has forged nothing and has threatened no one. You on the other hand Steveo have threatened so many people its comical. You thretaned Doug you have threatened Frank you have threatened "George"..and now you have threatened Leland both by internet and by phone. Your whole existance is centered on meeting people and beating them up or at least dreaming about it. Steveo there are some pills you can take that might help you a doctor can prescribe them I think you have a chemical imbalance. Oh and one more thing, stop letting punch clowns like "Twisted" lead you around by the nose. You should know better than to admire a psychopathic personality like him.

No I am just stating a fact you dog turd. Thats not rekindling anything. You did threaten Frank a while ago. You threaten lots of people.

I am beginning to see a pattern here you blame others for your anger and see your destructive behavior as some one elses fault.

Take the meds steveo take the meds.

LOL if I mention that you once threatened frank and he is among a long list of people you threatened then it will rekindle your feud with Frank? ROTFLMAO peepeeholic you are really reaching for straws on that one.

Just you saying you never called me on the phone asking me to ask Doug to quit making fun of you on the news group. Then claiming I was full of crap when I said that you did. Then in another post you finally admitted that you did call me and left the message on my answering machine about getting Doug off your case. Headers were included just to give some other busybodies on this news group something to do. Since you said that you called fine, but don't turn around later and lie about it. All that does is get you lumped in with a certain other person who wears a jockstrap while swimming in his cess pool and talking to saucer men.

Because somebody was really getting on Steve's case in this news group by posting a huge number of very unflattering messages about him. Seems like its starting up again from the posts I see this afternoon. Nothing I can do about it.

Steve tried to go toe-to-toe with the person(s) responsible using threads of violence etc., which didn't seem to do a bit of good. As a last resort he called me and left a message on my answering machine asking me to "tell your buddy Doug to knock if off". I sent him an E-mail message saying I had nothing to do with his problem and he will have to work it out on his own.

That reminds me of the Three Stooges gag where Moe gets hit by Larry, and doesn't see who did it, and then takes it out on Curly by hitting him. Wake up Steve.

Yeah, just as I though, you're too chicken to show.

I have drunks with names like Steve Parks calling up making prank calls for meetings they never intend to keep. Another one for the delete message button.

Wearing white feathers too I suppose. Don't bother responding unless you intend to keep the appointment Monday night. I don't have time to waste on losers that are more lip than substance. I'm busy and don't have the time to play your stupid kid's game. I have another business trip I have to get

No, that's why the 9:00 PM time. If I'm stuck late at the office or out on a local job I should be done by then I hope.

That's too late, it's 3 hours driving home. Pick another day when we can meet earlier.

OK. Something on the weekend would work. Also there are some up coming Ham/Computer swaps. Could arrange a meeting then too. I would have to check the list on the ARRL site to what they are. Of course you could wait till the Dayton Hamvention in May, which is just 5 ot 6 weeks away. I'll be going down with several other buddies who are Hams. They are also X-freebanders as well just to prove I don't hate CBers, they just got tired of the crap on 11m and find Ham a better way to go, at least for them. You might enjoy swapping stories with them.

Thanks Keith. The Bowling Green one would be of interest. I missed it last year.

I'm not worried. But you should hope you're up to it. Now that it's out that the last round really bugged you I doubt you're going to get much peace unless you just totally ignore the posts and stop asking me for help I can't provide. You're entitled to your opinions, but it also helps to quit threatening people too, which doesn't help your point of view one bit. Less reason to make you a target for abuse on the group. And that is not a thread, just some good advice.

FORMAL DISCIPLINARY HEARING-KATHLEEN R. LEE
Chairman Woods noted that Kathleen Lee was issued CPA certificate 36,525 on July 15, 1998. The hearing was to consider disciplinary action against Ms. Lees CPA certificate pursuant to Ohio Revised Code section 4701.16(A)(5), conviction of a felony under the laws of any state or of the United States. Ms. Lee was convicted in the United States District Court, Northern District of Ohio of five counts of Aiding Assisting in Filing False Tax Returns, a violation of 26 USC 7206(2) Ms. Lee did not appear at the hearing. The Board agreed to deliberate the disciplinary action in a later executive session and Lees CPA certificate was subsequently revoked.

Hi Frank. Can't say that I do. If you check the ARRL web site, www.arrl.org
, then look in the upper left corner of the page you'll see a link marked "Hamfests". Click on that and you will be taken to a page where you can put in the state, month, and year. Then click on one of the go buttons to see a list of swaps. That's how I find them. Then when I'm there I pick up flyers for other local swaps, some of which are not listed on the ARRL site. Good luck.

Some of the books included are:

BOOK #1: THE "SCREWDRIVER EXPERT'S" GUIDE To Peaking Out & Repairing CB Radios. List $25. The most popular "big dummy's" guide ever published on do-it-yourself CB repairs & modifications. Covers peaking of receivers, transmitters, modulation, mike problems, antenna & SWR problems, detailed frequency modifications for both crystal & PLL radios. Loaded with charts, illustrations, and specific instructions for most brands including the new export models. This latest edition also covers slider and broadbanding tricks, FM conversions, and much more!

BOOK #2: THE CB PLL DATA BOOK. List $20. The only complete reference source on CB PLL synthesizer circuits ever published! Detailed PLL theory explained in layman's terms. How they work, and how to modify them for many more channels. Includes specific PLL block mixing diagrams, truth charts, & IC pin function diagrams for nearly every PLL chip ever used. Covers all the most popular U.S. & export chassis, with specific listings of all models using the chip.

BOOK #3: UNDERSTANDING & REPAIRING CB RADIOS. List $42. Giant 370-page technical book for the professional repairman. Picks up where the "SCREWDRIVER EXPERT'S" GUIDE leaves off. Includes circuit descriptions & troubleshooting guide for 23- & 40-Ch., crystal & PLL, solid-state & tube, AM, FM, SSB, CW, American & export models. Covers test equipment (& where to find it), transistor basics, synthesizers, receivers, transmitters, power supplies, T/R switching, antennas, interference, parts & accessory sources. Over 350 illustrations including schematics, charts, and photos. Huge subject index also lets you look up repairs by symptoms. This is "must" reading for any serious CB technician!

FREE!!

For advanced techs and serious radio hobbyists, we're now offering a FREE copy of our previously published "CB EPROM DATA BOOK" by Martin Pickering. (EPROM = Erasable Programmable Read Only Memory.) We sold it for many years but it's now out of print. This little manual of 60 illustrated pages is an absolute GEM of CB technical knowledge you'll just never find anywhere else. And it's yours for FREE from our Web site.

This book reveals the secrets of advanced channel programming, and picks up where our "CB PLL DATA BOOK" (www.cbcintl.com/pllbook.htm) leaves off. You'll get a thorough background in how these amazing programmable chips can be used to modify many popular CB PLL circuits for expanded frequency coverage. Covers the basic programming techniques, and even includes real PC board artwork for making EPROM circuits. Sample artwork includes EPROM boards for the popular MB8719, PLL02A, ï¿½PD2824, and ï¿½PD858 PLL circuits.

Best of all, the price is right! Download your FREE copy of "THE CB EPROM DATA BOOK" (948 KB Adobe PDF) at:

www.cbcintl.com/docs/EpromBook.htm

Don't forget to check out all our other CB specialty books, plans, kits, & high-performance accessories at:

Inner Peace

I am passing this on to you because it has definitely worked for me...and at this time of year we all could use a little...calm!!! By following the simple advice I read in an article, I have finally found inner peace........

The article read:

"The way to achieve inner peace is to finish all the things you've started."

So I looked around the house to see all the things I started and hadn't finished....and before leaving the house this morning I finished off a bottle of red wine, a bottle of white, the Bailey's, Kahlua and Wild Turkey, the Prozac, some valium, some cheesecake and a box of chocolates.

You have no idea how freakin good I feel....

You may pass this on to those you feel are in need of Inner Peace

Lee I would be very careful meeting Steveo I entered some of his posts in the threat analysis software profiler at www.fbi.gov and it said Steveo will most likely take you hostage and harm you if he doesnt get his way in the NG. remember he admitted to Doug that he is packing and the restarant is a public place someone could get hurt I hope the peninsula has a good SWAT team LOL.

You sure about that? And even if it's true, what does it have to do with anything? Does it mean that I should beg for forgiveness and bow in your presence?

Then you shouldn't have any reason to complain. Have you seen the newest addition to my vintage CB collection?

Most likely him. Royal Oak PD like to hang out there. If Steve is carrying and no Michigan CCW permit, he goes by-by.

> I hope the peninsula has a good SWAT team LOL.

Don't really need them. Most people in the Detroit area also "carry", he'll find that out soon enough if he's that dumb. I have a lady friend who is applying for her CCW permit. Some bozo made the mistake of coming and knocking on her door one night with some lame excuse to get a look in her house through the door. Next time he won't have time to look, just run for his life. My sister packs her 40 cal semi auto sometimes when she walks the dog, and yeah she knows how to use it too, goes to the gun range to pratice.
She has invited me to go along a few times. She also goes hunting up north on her own too.

You two are acting like two five year olds. At least give each other your email addresses or phone numbers so you can communicate, instead of waisting everyone space on this board.

Leland, no one wants you around here and hasn't for a long time. You need to find a life and go away. Get a damn hobby or something and leave this board for those who need and want it.

Steveo, you are becoming a looser just by association with Leland.

Clean up the boards and you two go away!
GOD has spoken.

I just said 'hey'. I went to flat rock and picked up a third member with a 4:88 gear for $200 for my 8/34 front loader rear ends, so I had a reason to be there anyway, that's why I asked if you were off today.

I stopped by Dougs place too, I'll let him tell you about that.

Sounds like the party is going to be at your place. You stopping by and handing out invitations an all. We will bring our own beer and anything else that may prove to liven things up a bit. Thanks.

Oh, if you become my friend..you'll love my outdoor party's. Band and bonfire, free parking and a place to crash.

If you behave, I'll even let you transmit on an S-Line Collins.

You use the Plymouth as a parking block hey, that's novel, I'll have to give it a try.

Why would I want to talk on a junker of an old relic like that? I've seen rusty crap thrown away in the trash at Dayton that looks better. Gee offer something nice like the new Icom base they just came out with.

Hehe, yea those are giggle gears but it's an easy swap with the 8/34. 2 hrs or less if you do it enough. ;)

Be sure your unibody is frame tied with that gear..if you want the doors to still open.

It's one of those test and tune toys, just like CB antennas.

I have a feeling that you need to control your actions as well, Leland.
There has to be some point in your life when you realize that pushing people to limits is high risk. Take that as free advice. You know I am right.
Don't even bother responding - just take a good look in the mirror and make some adult decisions about how you want to live you life, and be percieved by the people that matter to you.

I checked the "rapes small boys" analysis software at NAMBLA.org and it says that there is a 96.7% chance that you have attempted to fuck no less than four male children under the age of 6. But hey, what's in a number?

Yeah, shouldn't let steve get under my skin. But I did warn him about keeping his self control, guess he doesn't have any. He went out and did somthing really stupid.

No Lee, I went to Doug's house to talk to him about his behavior, but the chicken-shit wouldn't come out of his slum. All he did was point his bb gun at me from behind the door.

Let me fill you in.. I rang dogies doorbell and he yelled out "who is it?". I answered "it's peepeeholic, get your fat ass out here in the street". When dogie finally got the nerve to come to the door he was pointing a bb gun at me, and I was pointing a camera at him. He was trying to hide from the pics. He's a spineless coward.

Wanna photoshop some rifle scope pics for me, after I get the film

Perhaps, but certainly not too bright. I guess some people must learn the hard way that wielding a BB gun is one of the easiest ways to get yourself shot.

You're always missing stuff, N7VCF. This time your communication deficit acted up. If you could read and comprehend like the rest of us, you would know n8wwm is almost as large a coward as your anonymous posting self. Steve knocked on the door and yellow Dogie defecated himself to the delight of all. It's of no surprise you accused Steve of "running"..you;re an AKC shill. No, don't bother replying, you'll just upset yourself.
So, who am I today, gutless wonder? You have made so many bullshit accusations, you are right behind n8WWM and KC8LDO and trouble-making coward k4kwh!! Some of your spinelss off-topic tripe,,,,you said I was Exactly,,,KC8LDO Lelnad threatens, despite him posting as a shill to himself claiming "Lelnad never threatened anyone." He threatened to shoot freebanders in the head, the coward told me I was a "dead fish", he threatened to have n8wwm porn spam the group (AND made good on the threat) IF I didn't leave and now, he is once again threatening you with N8WWM screwing up the group. KC8LDO is the prime example of the worst kind of licensed hammie in existence...a regular troublemaking lid who hangs in a cb group and claims he doesn't even own a cb. That I believe. He freebands.

Steve tried to go toe-to-toe with the person(s) responsible using threads of violence etc., which didn't seem to do a bit of good. As a last resort he called me and left a message on my answering machine asking me to "tell your buddy Doug to knock if off". I sent him an

>dave,

LOL..One of these days you will gain a coherency and be able to figure out just who it is that compels you like no other. Then again, perhaps I shan't permit it.

>i have never understood

No doubt. Most of your posts refer to your many problems, and many times you claim you can't comprehend. YOUR problems.

>why you constantly refer to this man like he >supported your ideas......

I made no such claim at all concerning any of my ideas, but it is understandable why Lelnad is so desperate now and your need for diversion obvious.
  The post was researched by those who care, (oh, yea,,hammies are sitting up and most definitely paying attention) and watching Lelnad insist that I was posting via onemain.com via a Chicago loop is nothing short of astounding, considering his self-professed claims about having a masters in compooters,,especially when Dick's posts were,,umm,,how shall we say this so you would understand this,,,,,all of the same path of that period. Ok? No. Of course it isn't. Your feathers are ruffled and your feelings are hurt and Lelnad is in hyper-over drive self-destructiive mode once again, cowards not unlike yourself Frank must run and scramble and do damage control, which, from scumbaglowlives like you, include nothing but personal, off-topic attacks to myself for showing A) Dick indeed caught Lelnad forging, not once, but twice, ad REITERATED it,,,and B) pointing out that all you meat puppets need come out of the wood work when another akc queen has their clock cleaned in such an embarrassing moment. See, KC8LDO's ridculous claim that I was forging Dick in that hammie room can be disproven merely by looking up the thread. Now, only those with mild retardations (or severe, in your case) can believe anything Lelnad claims.

You must admit, saying I forged Dick M. was the most malicious AND desperate ploy KC8LDO ever attempted. My, but watch him squirm,,and we musn't forget our friend N7VCF Frank who vehemently lied for Lelnad on many occasion, at any cost. LOL.

>the man is dead.......leave him alone

Again. Lelnad made the claim that I spread rumors of him forging. He, and Frank, said that Dick never made the post. They both lied. The post was produced and Frank immediately began downgrading Dick's character in a disgusting attempt to cast doubt on the dead man's word.
Lelnad had a better idea. In his drunken beligerence and with his compooter master degree ineptness, took it one better, and decided to claim I forged Dick,,,LOL. I am so totally satisfied with the thread and so is all who read it.
  Perhaps your ugly attempts at unsavory posts and lies are no longer tolerated.
In fact, I received two emails over the weekend telling me A) Atta Boyy!! and B) F*ck that piece of sh*t.,,,odd, the last one was from a nocode <g>, but I have no problems with nocodes, only scumbags like Lelnad that forge people.

>......stand on your own two feet.......

LOL,,which is why a coward like yourself called for help in "attacking twistedhed",,because you can sure stand on your own two clubbed feet...here...kitty kitty kitty! Hehehe!

>..you have been caught in a lie........

Not at all, You're merely frustrated because I single-handedly reduced you.,,well, you did most of it, I merely gave you a shove.
Oh,,,,,,and your hammie reputation is ove..LOL.,you have been reduced to spittle,, the lies are all yours, as usual. Dick's thread is intact and anyone that claims the post was mine is a complete fool, but then again, none align themsleves with you, whcih is why you were forced and relegated to accesss the group in the manner you must...:)
  In fact, the nocode that emailed me suggested I take Lelnad's comment and reintroduce it in the original hammie group in which he forged me, along with the thread by Dick. I think I can sleep well in spite of your bleatings.

>.there can be no denying it.......

Absolutely. This is the main reason you are,,well,,,just look at you..."beside" yourself.

>.and all this time i thought leland was the one >doing stuff because you said it, and now come >to find out it was you all along......shame on >you dave,...........shame , shame , >shame...........AKC4L.......

Well, as has been illustrated, your thoughts are shared only by KC8LDO, WA3MOJ, N3CVJ and N8WWM.,,the lid-posse of hammie and rec.radio.cb and none of oyou know any better,,it's why you are reduced to the type access in which you find yourself relegated. Oh yea, and K4KWH. Believe me. The word is getting out like wildfire. But what do you have to worry about? According to you, I'm nothing but a,,a,,,,a Dave,,and a liar. LOL .relax, have a cigar, you're never gonna get far.

>you are just some dope user who

There you go again with the alluding to illegal narcotics, yet again. That's some one track mind you have, there, juniah! The only "dope" I use,,,is you and Lelnad. And don;t you evah fughed itt!

>adopted this newsgroup for whatever silly >reasons

LOL...And these conspiracy "reasons" you mistakenly feel you have uncovered engage your rage perfectly. And on cue. I call,,you come. Hyuk..I kill me!

>and now you seem to >enjoy arguing with anyone about anything, >anytime

You just described yourself to a "T" that matches the one tattooed on your forehead. Your shame has never been more apparent.

>...i have read many >of your posts

But of course you have. You have no choice. You had a gun held to your head. You were forced. You were indoctrinated and are no longer in control. We control everything you say and do. You not only worship myself, but my posts.

>and they all have one common thread.....they >make no

>sense...

A double-digit IQ can't comprehend. My advice: Lay off the narcotics you consistnetly mention. After several years on here of pathetic and impotent whinings and disrespecting yourself, you have accomplished only to continually change your IP numbers and make a jack azz of yourself at all turns. Amazing I have this charm that instantly reduces lowlives like yourself and Lelnad. Oh,,and K4KWH recently jumped into the fray willingly. Poor Jerrkyo,,,,has no clue what he bought into.

>.so either you are on drugs or you are >mentally deficient,

And...your qualifications would have been bestowed upon thee by..Rick Flair...hahhahahhhaah!

>which leads me

(Chuckle) You lead yourself nowhere and the sooner you realize you are being led, the sooner you can begin the road to recovery from these narcotics that are always mentioned in your posts.

>to think that your aspirations as some kind of

>free

>lance writer of some sort are misguided....

Free lance writer? HAHAHAHAHHA! You're too easy. Who said anything about a free lance writer? You did. HAha! Your ego is at an alltime low,,you are the loser of the n'th degree and your jealousy is raging magnificently. I luv it@!

>.....go get help

Oh,,by all means,,,Don't worry your pointed drug-laced head. After all, if you weren't on illicit drugs and such a porker (some genes you have there,,,<g>) perhaps you wouldn;t have had to beg for help in "attacking twistedhed",,,but (sigh),,,alas, you did, illustrating your lack of control and shared ignorance on display for all, not merely myself, to enjoy.

>and get >out of here.

Because you are too inept to control yourself? Because you can't get away with Jack? Because you suffer a massive communication deficit , you wish me to leave for merely answering Frank-n-Nad's directed malicious posts twoard myself? LMAO! You ain't seen nothing yet. You, my friend, are playing way too many cards,,and you, of all people shouild know, when it comes to the likes of filth like you, 'ol Twisssssted, Twisssted and more Twisssted holds the trump card in the deck. Always had it, always will. Now,,get mad some more and do some more dancing for the fine people that take pleasure in wathcing scum like you get theres and squirm like a worm in an alcohol vat.

> we are tired of seeing you post here.

"We"/ LOL.. You mean N7VCF and KC8LDO and WA3MOJ and N8WWM and K4KWH, who all have been reconstituted by their ISP's at one point or another, hiding like the sissy cowards you are, from the shadows, are tired of seeing me post here. Gee, you ought gain a triple digit IQ and you would learn another option that lay before thee. YOU take off since it is YOU that has the problem. Simple. And I won't even bill you for the cure I just provided. Of course, you won't take the cure, as a double digit IQ needs assistance following directions from those who are lucid and educated.

>......find something >else to do with your government paid free >time....

So far, by your own words, we can deduce you not only have a preference for illegal narcotics, Rick Flair, booze, and myself, but project you are on the government tit. No surprise there.

>AKC4L......

And I'm your God! Twisted4evah in your world!
And the best part is, you're still an impotent fool, relegated to accessing the group in a forced manner.

Keith is in bed with Dogie and Lelnad. He lies. I merelypoint to his claim concerning the stock market quote last week and,,,,,,merely read his denials and claims to my inquiry below.....to wit:

Again I am shocked, absolutely and pointedly shocked I am, to learn that a topic among us is anything but irrevocable proof or cut conclusions, maybe opinions from acclaimed radio or media gods. Severing the public from learning more of these type happenings are for what reason? You can help spearhead a domino effect against all those rabid cbers with all that interference. Seriously, can you be a tad more speciic, Keith? Clover or Orion's FD? Annawhan? There are too many to guess. Which EMS? Hooppole? Tampico? Atkinson? Again, too many. Napoleon PD itself?
The communications division (one would think) at the Henry County sheriff's department would be aware of such recent interference to it's communications, no matter how trivial, so certainly they would be aware of it on the grand scale you suggest it takes if it were happening to them. Is this happening on a trunked system? Your local media banks carry nothing concerning current interference problems to EMS communications. That info is culled from, among other sources, the sheriff's records and is updated at least once per shift. Enlighten me, Keith.

NAPOLEON - McClure resident Keith Hosman, who spent several months volunteering in New York's clean-up efforts as well as other disaster areas in the country, was recognized by Henry County commissioners on Thursday.
Hosman was presented a proclamation honoring him for his volunteering accomplishments over the past year, including flood relief efforts in West Virginia and Texas over the summer.

Great job, Keith, and I'm glad you donate your time as a good citizen, as I have tremendous respect for the Red Cross AND React. Good thing integrity isn't required of you. Really, you'd do better to separate yourself from these scumbags, Dogie and Lelnad.

No doubt. Ran Zoom 4.88 in a 12 bolt Dino Fry built rear end in the Camero. Nothing like 1st, 2nd, 3rd gear wheelies.

I have known Steve for a while. IMHO, you can push him to a point where, if he does not reel himself in of his own accord, you can find that you went too far. With some folks it does not matter if you go too far - they won't do shit other than give themselves an ulcer. With other folks, pushing them too far can be hazardous. I view him in that latter group.

That's the post to which Leland posted the headers and Twisty tracer-routed (to a city with several million people -- yeah, -that- narrows things down!). So is there a post that's missing?

Sorry, Lelnad old chap,but I disagree with you once again. See, merely reposting one of Dick's posts is in no way disrespectful. In fact, Dick was a great hammie and elmer. Frank made recent comments that even -he- respected Dick as a poster.

>I did, and he was. But

But,,here comes your best, but not quite good enough at attempting to cast doubt on Dick's word, now that he is gone and can't defend himself.. No cigar,,,,the thread, link, and post is there in all it's glory, showing what a lying scumbag you are, Frank, by trying to say it wasn't Dick M's post,,all for nothing but furthering your own personal agenda of hate and discontent upon this group. There is no doubt about what Dick said -- it's all in the archives.

>And so are all the things -you- have said.

LOL,,tut, tut, my angry little worm,,,we can discuss any posts of mine that you feel the need, er,,compulsion, but it takes nothing away from Dick McCulllom's multiple posts illustrating Lelnad KC8LDO is a lying forger. Note how he attacked Dick after Dick busted him forging. Same old tired song and dance from the scumbags we expect it most. Act out, get called on it, attack the person that pointed it out. Pretty funny how Dick's posts STILL possess the uncanny ability to illustrate what a lying lid you are.

>he wasn't a god,

LOL...you know nothing about it,,,,you're a self-avowed athiest. You know nothing about God.

>I am also an EE.

You are also a Godless heathen and your need for self-elevation has never been greater. It is of little wonder, watching the damage you have inflicted upon this group and your reputation. But of course, you know all this,,,illustrated by your paid access to the group because you exhausted all the free accesses via your abuse.

>Does that mean I know nothing about >psychology?

There are a plethora of things you know nothing about, to say the least. That you are the poorest excuse for a hammie because of your anger and lack of self-control is your problem you try to shirk off and blame on others,,to a point, I imagine its true..after all,,,,you haven't been in control of yourself for a long time. You know who controls you.

>and his writings are not holy scripture.

Ditto for Holy Scripture. The fact that a self-avowed athiest refers to the Scripture as "Holy" in the first place illustrates you're talking in circles again,,,in other words,,soused to the Gillils, and clueless as always. Face it loser, if you had a clue, you wouldn't have been forced to buy your way into an otherwise FREE group...hehehe!

>No, that would be pinhead.

LOL..that would be your conjured boyfriend.
No,,it is most certainly you that has no clue, no no class, no couth, no self-esteem, no life let alone no idea how ridiculoous your lunatic rants sound about God and Holy Scripture after calling yourself an athiest. You need to get God in your life,,it's one of the reasons you are lost and wandering aimlessly, blaming me and others for the self-created misery you find yourself wallowing.

>I hardly drink at all anymore -- it's not as much >fun as it was 20 years ago.

That's because you got fat, soft, and lazy and resemble Dogie with black mangy hair. Like life and effective communications, you can't handle it. You were never taight any better. You are a direct reflection of your upbringing. Were they Godless heathens like yourself? If so, we really can't lay all the blame at your feet for your expressed and repeated ignorance, as the parents must shoulder the responsibility,,,but ,,there were problems in your ipbringing regarding your parents,,,,since you are so hell bent on internet stranger's personal lives,,,would you like to tell the world your personal demons regarding your family, or should I? I mean, I'd be more than happy, N7VCF, to push you along here, if you need assistance. Or do you have the ability to not make me the object of your affection? Go ahead, Gilliland,,the world is waiting, N7VCF.

> I'm not suprised to see you resort to yet

Of course not, You do it all the time.

Sure, I have plenty of your unfounded accusations, lid-N7VCF. Plenty.

>Like, who do you think I am -this- week?

Apparently, several less people than you think I am,,,,need reminded, N7VCF-lid? In due time, chubby, in due time.

>If you are going to create the First Church of

Uh-uh-uh...yourself, N8wwm, and Lelnad KC8LDO created the church unto myself.

>......hehehe, yeah....'Our Lady of the >Newsgroup Punchclown'!!!

Despite your unhealthy preferences including your fantasy of me being female,,,,,well,,,I shan't permit you to enterain this idea any longer either. You could not handle having your head handed to you by a woman, you know,,with all those "women" issues you have. If I were to suddenly reveal myself as a woman, your fragile, cracked and twisted psyche could never handle the trauma and disorder it would cause. You'd use the group for your personal abuse as you have many times in the past.

>at least do it for >honorable reasons, not out of vindictiveness

>for your perceived enemies.

Your words. I did do it for honorable reasons. Dick was much respected and Lelnad and yourself is less than honorable. KC8LDO is a scoundrel who is forging. You are a lying lid with the call of N7VCF. End of story. But I understand,,you must,,no,,,you NEED make this about mememememem...lol. You're quite cracked, m' boy!

>Not quite "end of story" since you keep >dragging his name and reputation through the >mud by twisting his words in your attempt to >exact revenge.

Back to lying again, eh lid? right on.,,,please illustrate or highlight the passage you feel I "twsited" <g> from Dick by reposting his post verbatim,,,after all, KC8LDO says it was ME making the posts and not Dick, but here you sit, illustrating what a lying lid Lelnad KC8LDO is and recognizing Dick's posts.

>If you had any respect for the man at all you >would know that he held no animosity towards >anyone,

Again, your words,,,, ,,,self-projection of all you are about.

>That's right, those -are- my words. I didn't >quote, misquote or plagiarize anybody alive or >dead.

Sure you did, N7VCF. You claimed Dick never blamed KC8LDO for forging when he most certainly did. You lied out of (-your- words) "animosity" toward,,well, who the hell knows why you have so much pent up misdirected anger and raging hostility.

>I don't need to.

But you did. On several occasions to the point of being forced to admit you have "lied several times in this group, and it probably won't be the last time, either" See above.

>You, on the other hand, apparently need to >distort the words of a dead person

Again,,that was yourself. You first claimed Dick never said that about Queen Lelnad. You had to be led by the nose to your bowl of bitter water and forced to take a drink.
That you are so desperate to claim a simple repost unedited and untouched is somehow a "distortion" merely magnifies and illusrates your sour lack of communication skills, which I have pointed out many, many times in the past.

>and use them as a crutch to support your >paranoid fantasies. If I didn't know any better

LOL..you don't know any better, Frankiestein, N7VCF. You cry and cry and cry about my identity, my world, my life, anything concerning me you covet. You make baseless, angry, malicious accusations that are responsible for you denying your hammie status AND call. No matter though,,the world is aware your status and problems you blame on everyone else.
After all, none expect you to take responsibility for yourself. It was how you were raised.

>would think that you are the kind of person

>that -needs- to feel victimized. But I do know >better because you don't have any such >personality disorder -- you are just a >sociopathic pissant.

Hehhe,,a "pissant" that nailed you to the proverbial cross and rocked your world, fatman.

>which is contrary to your petty little campaign

>of revenge against Leland.

Your words,,from a self-professed and pathological liar.

>Which is far better than -your- words -- from a >proven pathological liar.

That's good and well, fatboy. You've provided no proof of anything you have ever claimed, Frank. OTOH, my claims concerning you and lying Lelnad have been not only brought to fruition, but exhibited quite to my satisfaction. It is you with the anger and malice and lies, and man, you try really hard to lie for Lelnad...I didn't realize you were so fond of the lid...well, yes I did. It's what set you off, chubby lid. Anyways,,,revenge implies he did something wrong first. It's good that you finally admit he initiates all his problems by poking the sleeping dog with a stick. Nevertheless, I did nothing but remark about Dick's post, which he, and you, said didn't exist.

>I never said it didn't exist. Matter of fact, I >haven't made one single remark regarding the >post to which you refer. My remarks have

>-only- referred to the post which you claim was >where Dick accused Leland of forging, the >post that was -in response- to -your- post

>where -you- make that accusation, not Dick.

That IS the post of which I speak, lid. You claimed he never said such...only it has been shown satisfactory that Dick indeed made the post..Whatsamattah N7VCF,,,,too many cbers cornfusing your teeny mind? Feeling strapped and all alone again? HAHhahah..LOL,,,you're back pedaling and can't even do that correctly. I wasn't in the thread at all, lid, It took place in the hammie forum where Lelnad flipped out and lost his mind when I wouldn't follow him there. Now, again, since you can't comprehend anything...I wasn't in the thread, but that doesn't stop you from lying and trying to say I was there, fatman...LOL.
  Now, as predictable, you, and Lelnad, need make all your posts about mememememe. I will remind you the wisdom I imparted upon his square, flat head.....you need make some group such as "Twistedhed is no damn good",,or ,,"I can't stand twistedhedcanyoustandtwistedhedcmoncmoncmontellmeifyoucanstandtwistedhed",,,or maybe something like,,,"Twistedhed! Caution,,may be dangerous to your psyche. If you have a bruised ego, enter at your own risk"..or someTHING that will permit your heretic-like behavior to go unchallenged. Meanwhile, I'm going back to my radio, and to pointing out your incompetence, lies, and crimes against this group, just like Lelnad.

>Yes, it -is- all about youyouyouyouyou, even

>from your perspective.

No, N7VCF. It is all about ME only from YOUR perspective, in your feeble mind, in addition to your cb hating queens. You're a shill, Frankiestein, and you're no damn good. The hammie world woud be better off without you and Lelnad KC8LDO. You're both parasites to the world of radio.

>But your delusion of self-importance

Au contraire. No delusion is present when all Lelnad's posts are about me and when you make ME not only the topic of your posts, but the headline subject header. If you and Queen Lelnda KC8LDO hadn't held me in such esteem and regard, I would no longer be the topic of your posts, now would I, chubby? Get a life, blowhard coward.

>doesn't overshadow the fact that it's fed by >feedback to your own twisted "opinions".

And man, do those opinions make you dance and jerk you by your spiked collar. You need get a grip on your hairlip and diet and not worry so much about me or anyone else. It's not healthy for your mental condition,,look how it already stained your reputation for life in the world of hammie radio.

>The fact is that you have no importance at all

>in this world

The fact is, is you are a jealous, little fat man whom I can control with the snap of a finger or a dog whistle and you just haven't learned to get over yourself or take control of your own life. Blaming me for your dilemmas and your personal life being in a shambles of a wreck is but a bonus.

>-- everyone can get along just fine without

>you.

Except you. You need me. I breathe life into your worthless, fat, aging carcass.

>The only thing that -might- ever be considered >important about you is your integration of so >many well-defined sociopathic traits in one >personality.

And the fact that I buried yourself, KC8LDO and now K4KWH in the proverbial lid graveyard. You losers have no recourse (read: impotence) except to attack and resurrect yourself as shills,,,and for that, I take great pride.

>For that your name should be listed in every

>Psychology textbook around the country.....

(shrug) Perhaps,,,,but with you not having any qualifications except self-elevated claims, or a clue with who you speak, you merely illustrate the fool of which I've played and conned you at every turn. Hell, the archives are full of posts where I merely cut and paste your own words, only to repaste them at a later date to watch you fritter away arguing with yourself,,,the words you wrote. Absolutely priceless. You have been had, many, many times, Sir-chub!

>Seek professional help, Twist.

I'm not the one arguing with myself, N7VCF,,you are. And it's getting very entertaining. More to come.

>Really. Before you sink into full-blown >dementia.

>It's pathetic and disgusting that you would >summon the recently deceased to fight your

>battles for you.

LOL...I didn't...YOU and KC8LDO did.

>Wrong. I have never brought up Dick in any >conversation

Wrong. You claimed he never said Lelnad was a forger. Watching you spin your wheels when you know you are wrong is a bonus renumeration.

>except to defend his integrity against your

>attempts to twist his words into a shield for >your petty little battle with Leland.

Wrong. You immediately tried to attack Dick's integrity and cast doubt on his word by lying about his position, which, since then, all have satisfactory viewed.You're the ng bee-atch!
Lelnad initaited it by accusing myself of spreading rumors he was a forger. I corrected him and showed it was Dick, not I that originally busted him, ending any "rumor" and illustrating he not only lied, but forged. After that, he, and yourself, came gunning for me,,,LOL,,I luv it!!!
Lelnad initated this conversation by claiming I claimed he was forging way back when and spreading rumors about it,,,I merely interjected, politely, mind you,

>You never interject politely except when you >are trying to kiss someone's ass, like you did

>recently with Dave Hall.

Tut-tut, Frank,,,,if anyone is doing any ass kissing, one needs look no further than your nose stuck up Lelnad's azz.

I reminded Queen Lelnad gently that it was Dick, not I, who busted him forging..he denied it, as did you,,,

>That's because you are wrong. Dick never

>"busted him forging" -- it was -you- that made

>the first accusation.

Show it...oh, never mind,,you are unable.

>It's clear that Dick

>assumed you were correct, something he

>never did again.

But he did say it not once, but twice, and now, faced with facts, you bottomfeeders are faced with nothing but to ....attack and lie. Again, I wasn't in the thread in the hammie room, but I wrecked your precious little psyche with this fact to the point which you and Quuen Lelnad are bouncing off the rubber walls.

>The facts have been adressed and they prove

>that you are wrong.

No N7VCF,,the facts show, as always, you are a pathological liar-lid for no reason but your own hate, discontent, and malice for your own little campaign of initiated battle with myself. You're a loser lid. You have presented no facts, only deliberate lies, as you always have. Nothing more. Perhaps you have a post, a single post, illustrating where I claimed KC8LDO was forging before Dick said it? LOL.,,we're all waiting with baited breath as you sink further in to your fecal matter and swim in google excrement trying to find something that simply isn't there....LOL.

>peace.

Again, you and Lelnad summoned him,,Lelnad falsely accused me, I corrected him and told him it was Dick, not I,, that said it. Why he, and you, would accuse myself of the initial claim, stems from your inability to communicate effectively and me pointing out your imbecilic ways to the world. You both needed shown. Now,,,,bugger off, loser!

>Again, seek help.

LOL..I'm not the one in dire need of help, fatman,,you are. From an excerise guru to an education to a self-confidence course to an elmer...,,you would benefit from all.
I'm not the one being forced to argue with myself,,you are, only you're too ignorant to catch on, which is one reason I don't ever want you to depart this group. You're fodder.

They are remodeling it, building a new motel that will be part of the Best Western chain, and they are going to tottally gut the existing building and completely redo it. They are putting alot of money into it. I told them they'd be better off going across 24 and building next to the new HD dealership, because with all the work they are doing at the current location they will lose a good bit of parking space, and as we all know, with the changes in driving and on duty hours, drivers will need places to park.

>Newsgroup Punchclown'!!!

Despite your unhealthy preferences including your fantasy of me being female,,,,,well,,,I shan't permit you to enterain this idea any longer either. You could not handle having your head handed to you by a woman, you know,,with all those "women" issues you have. If I were to suddenly reveal myself as a woman, your fragile, cracked and twisted psyche could never handle the trauma and disorder it would cause. You'd use the group for your personal abuse as you have many times in the past.

>at least do it for

>for your perceived enemies.

Your words. I did do it for honorable reasons. Dick was much respected and Lelnad and yourself is less than honorable. KC8LDO is a scoundrel who is forging. You are a lying lid with the call of N7VCF. End of story. But I understand,,you must,,no,,,you NEED make this about mememememem...lol. You're quite cracked, m' boy!

>Not quite "end of story" since you keep

>dragging his name and reputation through the

>mud by twisting his words in your attempt to

>exact revenge.

Back to lying again, eh lid? right on.,,,please illustrate or highlight the passage you feel I "twsited" <g> from Dick by reposting his post verbatim,,,after all, KC8LDO says it was ME making the posts and not Dick, but here you sit, illustrating what a lying lid Lelnad KC8LDO is and recognizing Dick's posts.

>If you had any respect for the man at all you >would know that he held no animosity towards

>anyone,

Again, your words,,,, ,,,self-projection of all you are about.

>That's right, those -are- my words. I didn't >quote, misquote or plagiarize anybody alive or >dead.

Sure you did, N7VCF. You claimed Dick never blamed KC8LDO for forging when he most certainly did. You lied out of (-your- words) "animosity" toward,,well, who the hell knows why you have so much pent up misdirected anger and raging hostility.

>I don't need to.

But you did. On several occasions to the point of being forced to admit you have "lied several times in this group, and it probably won't be the last time, either" See above.

>You, on the other hand, apparently need to

>distort the words of a dead person

Again,,that was yourself. You first claimed Dick never said that about Queen Lelnad. You had to be led by the nose to your bowl of bitter water and forced to take a drink.
That you are so desperate to claim a simple repost unedited and untouched is somehow a "distortion" merely magnifies and illusrates your sour lack of communication skills, which I have pointed out many, many times in the past.

>and use them as a crutch to support your

>paranoid fantasies. If I didn't know any better

LOL..you don't know any better, Frankiestein, N7VCF. You cry and cry and cry about my identity, my world, my life, anything concerning me you covet. You make baseless, angry, malicious accusations that are responsible for you denying your hammie status AND call. No matter though,,the world is aware your status and problems you blame on everyone else.
After all, none expect you to take responsibility

for yourself. It was how you were raised.

>would think that you are the kind of person

>that -needs- to feel victimized. But I do know >better because you don't have any such

>personality disorder -- you are just a

>sociopathic pissant.

Hehhe,,a "pissant" that nailed you to the proverbial cross and rocked your world, fatman.

>which is contrary to your petty little campaign

>of revenge against Leland.

Your words,,from a self-professed and pathological liar.

>Which is far better than -your- words -- from a

>proven pathological liar.

That's good and well, fatboy. You've provided no proof of anything you have ever claimed, Frank. OTOH, my claims concerning you and lying Lelnad have been not only brought to fruition, but exhibited quite to my satisfaction. It is you with the anger and malice and lies, and man, you try really hard to lie for Lelnad...I didn't realize you were so fond of the lid...well, yes I did. It's what set you off, chubby lid.
Anyways,,,revenge implies he did something wrong first. It's good that you finally admit he initiates all his problems by poking the sleeping dog with a stick.
Nevertheless, I did nothing but remark about Dick's post, which he, and you, said didn't exist.

>I never said it didn't exist. Matter of fact, I >haven't made one single remark regarding the >post to which you refer. My remarks have

>-only- referred to the post which you claim was >where Dick accused Leland of forging, the

>post that was -in response- to -your- post

>where -you- make that accusation, not Dick.

That IS the post of which I speak, lid. You claimed he never said such...only it has been shown satisfactory that Dick indeed made the post..Whatsamattah N7VCF,,,,too many cbers cornfusing your teeny mind? Feeling strapped and all alone again? HAHhahah..LOL,,,you're back pedaling and can't even do that correctly. I wasn't in the thread at all, lid, It took place in the hammie forum where Lelnad flipped out and lost his mind when I wouldn't follow him there. Now, again, since you can't comprehend anything...I wasn't in the thread, but that doesn't stop you from lying and trying to say I was there, fatman...LOL. Now, as predictable, you, and Lelnad, need make all your posts about mememememe. I will remind you the wisdom I imparted upon his square, flat head.....you need make some group such as "Twistedhed is no damn good",,or ,,"I can't stand twistedhedcanyoustandtwistedhedcmoncmoncmontellmeifyoucanstandtwistedhed",,, or maybe something like,,,"Twistedhed! Caution,,may be dangerous to your psyche. If you have a bruised ego, enter at your own risk"..or someTHING that will permit your heretic-like behavior to go unchallenged. Meanwhile, I'm going back to my radio, and to pointing out your incompetence, lies, and crimes against this group, just like Lelnad.

>Yes, it -is- all about youyouyouyouyou, even

>from your perspective.

No, N7VCF. It is all about ME only from YOUR perspective, in your feeble mind, in addition to your cb hating queens. You're a shill, Frankiestein, and you're no damn good. The hammie world woud be better off without you and Lelnad KC8LDO. You're both parasites to the world of radio.

>But your delusion of self-importance

Au contraire. No delusion is present when all Lelnad's posts are about me and when you make ME not only the topic of your posts, but the headline subject header. If you and Queen Lelnda KC8LDO hadn't held me in such esteem and regard, I would no longer be the topic of your posts, now would I, chubby? Get a life, blowhard coward.

>doesn't overshadow the fact that it's fed by

>feedback to your own twisted "opinions".

And man, do those opinions make you dance and jerk you by your spiked collar. You need get a grip on your hairlip and diet and not worry so much about me or anyone else. It's not healthy for your mental condition,,look how it already stained your reputation for life in the world of hammie radio.

>The fact is that you have no importance at all

>in this world

The fact is, is you are a jealous, little fat man whom I can control with the snap of a finger or a dog whistle and you just haven't learned to get over yourself or take control of your own life. Blaming me for your dilemmas and your personal life being in a shambles of a wreck is but a bonus.

>-- everyone can get along just fine without

>you.

Except you. You need me. I breathe life into your worthless, fat, aging carcass.

>The only thing that -might- ever be considered >important about you is your integration of so >many well-defined sociopathic traits in one

>personality.

And the fact that I buried yourself, KC8LDO and now K4KWH in the proverbial lid graveyard. You losers have no recourse (read: impotence) except to attack and resurrect yourself as shills,,,and for that, I take great pride.

>For that your name should be listed in every

>Psychology textbook around the country.....

(shrug) Perhaps,,,,but with you not having any qualifications except self-elevated claims, or a clue with who you speak, you merely illustrate the fool of which I've played and conned you at every turn. Hell, the archives are full of posts where I merely cut and paste your own words, only to repaste them at a later date to watch you fritter away arguing with yourself,,,the words you wrote. Absolutely priceless. You have been had, many, many times, Sir-chub!

>Seek professional help, Twist.

I'm not the one arguing with myself, N7VCF,,you are. And it's getting very entertaining. More to come.

>Really. Before you sink into full-blown

>dementia.

>It's pathetic and disgusting that you would >summon the recently deceased to fight your

>battles for you.

LOL...I didn't...YOU and KC8LDO did.

>Wrong. I have never brought up Dick in any

>conversation

Wrong. You claimed he never said Lelnad was a forger. Watching you spin your wheels when you know you are wrong is a bonus renumeration.

>except to defend his integrity against your

>attempts to twist his words into a shield for >your petty little battle with Leland.

Wrong. You immediately tried to attack Dick's integrity and cast doubt on his word by lying about his position, which, since then, all have satisfactory viewed.You're the ng bee-atch!
Lelnad initaited it by accusing myself of spreading rumors he was a forger. I corrected him and showed it was Dick, not I that originally busted him, ending any "rumor" and illustrating he not only lied, but forged. After that, he, and yourself, came gunning for me,,,LOL,,I luv it!!!
Lelnad initated this conversation by claiming I claimed he was forging way back when and spreading rumors about it,,,I merely interjected, politely, mind you,

>You never interject politely except when you

>are trying to kiss someone's ass, like you did

>recently with Dave Hall.

Tut-tut, Frank,,,,if anyone is doing any ass kissing, one needs look no further than your nose stuck up Lelnad's azz.

I reminded Queen Lelnad gently that it was Dick, not I, who busted him forging..he denied it, as did you,,,

>That's because you are wrong. Dick never

>"busted him forging" -- it was -you- that made

>the first accusation.

Show it...oh, never mind,,you are unable.

>It's clear that Dick

>assumed you were correct, something he

>never did again.

But he did say it not once, but twice, and now, faced with facts, you bottomfeeders are faced with nothing but to ....attack and lie. Again, I wasn't in the thread in the hammie room, but I wrecked your precious little psyche with this fact to the point which you and Quuen Lelnad are bouncing off the rubber walls.

>The facts have been adressed and they prove

>that you are wrong.

No N7VCF,,the facts show, as always, you are a pathological liar-lid for no reason but your own hate, discontent, and malice for your own little campaign of initiated battle with myself. You're a loser lid. You have presented no facts, only deliberate lies, as you always have. Nothing more. Perhaps you have a post, a single post, illustrating where I claimed KC8LDO was forging before Dick said it? LOL.,,we're all waiting with baited breath as you sink further in to your fecal matter and swim in google excrement trying to find something that simply isn't there....LOL.

>Step off his grave and let the man rest in >peace.

Again, you and Lelnad summoned him,,Lelnad falsely accused me, I corrected him and told him it was Dick, not I,, that said it. Why he, and you, would accuse myself of the initial claim, stems from your inability to communicate effectively and me pointing out your imbecilic ways to the world. You both needed shown. Now,,,,bugger off, loser!

>Again, seek help.

LOL..I'm not the one in dire need of help, fatman,,you are. From an excerise guru to an education to a self-confidence course to an elmer...,,you would benefit from all.
I'm not the one being forced to argue with myself,,you are, only you're too ignorant to catch on, which is one reason I don't ever want you to depart this group. You're fodder.

Steve you're #1 problem is you are obssessed with violence as a solution LOL if there is even a chance you can start a fight you will drive 2 hrs to get there. You #2 problem is you are dumb as a box of rocks you believe what people like Twisted and Tim tell you. They say I am Leland the next day they say Im Doug the next day they say Im "george" I feel sorry for you being led by the nose and played like a dumb animal,,but that is your choice my friend.

I enjoy putting punks like you in your place, you come here only to harass CBer's and post filthy vile content. As you have now found out, there can be consequences to your actions.

You've brought all of this hate to this group, and you've been doing it for years. I get along great with most people whether they be ham or cb operators.

The internet isn't -always- anonymous, as you have now realized.

Act like a human and people will treat you accordingly.

I assume the turban must be wound one way for the Northern hemisphere and the other way for the Southern as the winds will turn in opposite directions

Well, Keith, Lemmie tell you something ok? Christian is not some religious role, it's a lifestyle. and It's a decision to follow after Christ! and yes, I have flaws, and Yes, sometimes I don't act very "Christian" always in here, and I'll tell ya, I've showed alot of restraint in here, in the last few months. even when I was being attacked by douglas and his clones. and another thing, when I decided to follow Christ, in other words, when I got saved, at the ripe age of 10 years old, I don't remember saying, "Okay, I can't be a normal human being anymore!"

Okay, another thing, The only so called "Threat" made to anyone, was to the anonymous coward that made the blantant SEXUAL remark about my Mother. Now, I normally don't get too work up over Douglas's taunts, I usually just blow 'em off as newsgroup nonsense, But when Douglas or his "Sock puppet" buddies start making Sexually comments about my mother? I take that VERY seriously... I don't go around talking about people's wives, about people's kids, (as a rule) about people's personal lives, none of that, If I got a problem, I got it with YOU not your family! My mom and I happen to be VERY close, when I was "backslidden" living the stupid former lifestyle I lead, when I basically "Walked away" from the Christian lifestyle I was raised under, My mother stood by and said little or nothing, even though, I knew for a fact, that it was killing her to watch her OWN and ONLY SON, waste his life away in a bottle and in a dime bag. She loved me no matter what. and if me sticking up for her and threatening to kick someone's butt for talking about MY MOM is a SIN? then let that sin be on MY BACK and no one elses! Yes, I happen to love my mother and would do almost ANYTHING for Her. She's allowed me to stay here, rent free for a long time, just because she loves me and wants to see what's best for her son. She doesn't have to, She knows this, but her and my dad have a wonderful relationship and we get along fine, I abide by the rules, which are no drinking and no drugs in the house and no women, my mother is old fashioned. and I don't have a problem with that. too bad there ain't alot more mothers like that in this country. maybe this world would be a better place....

with that, I am outta here too.. I'm sick of the crap myself...

73 and Thanks for the message Keith.

Model number would help, many of the Roadtalkers used the O2A chip which was premiere for easy mods. Later versions used the including many SSB units used the 858 chip. Get me the model # and I see what mods are available. The last Roadtalkers used a 8719 in many cases, still a easy mod with a DPDT switch. Novice work. Will check this newsgroup tomorrow to see a reply.

If you were a normal human being, I wouldn't have the need to put a few knots on your silly dome.

No, BT loading the camera so everyone on the board can enjoy the lesson you'll be receiving. Maybe your alter-ego bernie could put the pics on his website.

I hope you've learned a lesson without all the bruises this time..

No, only those who live close enough to me to make it a reality. Of course you know all about that since you backed down from saying your lame shit to my face, after you agreed to meet me and then said you were afraid of what I'd do to you in person.

Dood - that is NOT a good area. Do you live right next to Pizza Chef Gourmet Pizza? Actually, you would live between there and the corner of Rte. 229 (Ceder Crest Blvd). Well, if nothing else at least you are only about 10 hovels down from the McDonalds on the corner of Rte. 229 and Tilghman St. You don't really live in that shit hole, do you? If you, get an online GED, find a job, and get the fuck out of there.

I somehow doubt that. Guns probably scare Steve less than they do me, and they don't scare me in the least. If someone wants to shoot you, you would never even see the gun for more than a second. If you saw it for more than a second, he isn't gonna shoot.

The whole story, up to now….

(Knock at the door) Doug opens door wearing his skimpiest thong underwear

Doug: Hi Sparky! How are you!

Sparky: I'm good Doug. Is dinner ready?

Doug: Almost. In the meantime, you can snack on me, but we need to hurry before George gets here.

Sparky:(screaming) Doug! Will you shut up with the advances! I already told you I've started to like women now! Now leave me alone!

Doug: OK, OK! I just thought we could be like the old days again.

Sparky: No, I'm really going to stick it out this time.

Doug: (sniffling) Ok Sparky, have it your way. I'll respect your wishes.

Sparky: Where's George? Do we have to wait for him to eat?

Doug: Yes, he's bringing the salad.

Sparky: OK. Got any snacks?

Doug: I think so, let me check.

(knock at the door) Doug answers the door.

Doug:(exclaiming) George! My God! What happened to you?

George:(crying) I was just out minding my own business, following this little girl, and all the sudden, wham! Her Dad must have seen me and punched me. I had just asked if she wanted some candy too. I think I could have had her. Then the Dad pulled out of the window of my Pacer, and beat me some more. I think he dislocated my shoulder too.

Sparky: Can we eat now?

Doug: Sparky, can't you see George is hurt? Go get one of the steaks for George's black eyes. And while you're in the kitchen Sparky, get some ice for his broken nose and busted lip too.

Sparky: OK, but I ain't eating the steak that you use on George's eyes!

Doug: OK, whatever!

(Sparky spends fully 5 minutes trying to figure out which steak is the smallest, so he can have the biggest…then finally he returns)

Doug: God Sparky! Why did you take a bite out of it? It's raw, for Christ's sake!

Sparky:(unintelligible mumbling caused by mouthful of raw steak)

Doug:(grabs steak from Sparky and applies it to George's eyes) There now George. Is that better? Dougy knows how to make you feel better, doesn't he?

George: Yes Doug, it's much better now. Thanks, you know I bruise easily.

Doug: Hey Sparky, light the grill.

Sparky: Hey, those steaks ain't half bad raw! Do we really need to cook them?

Doug: My God Sparky! Sometimes you act like a Neanderthal! Light the damn grill!

(Sparky goes out back, turns on the gas, clicks the igniter repeatedly, nothing happens. Goes back inside for matches and returns)

Doug:(just as Sparky lights the match) NO! STOP!

(loud explosion)

Sparky: (screaming) I'm on fire! Somebody help me!

(Sparky runs back through the house with his beard on fire, screaming for help. Doug and George race behind him with teacups filled with water)

Finally, Doug and George manage to catch Sparky and beat out the fire in Sparky's beard with the teacups.

Sparky: Thanks guys! That was close! I saw my life flash before my eyes.

Doug: No prob Sparky. You know we love you.

George: Speak for yourself, Doug! Faggot!

Sparky: Can we eat now?

George: Well, we could if you hadn't blown up the grill!

Doug: It's OK Sparky. We'll just grill the steaks on the stove.

Sparky: I don't wanna wait! I'm getting dizzy. My cholesterol must have dropped below 300.

George: Here, drink this.

Sparky: What is it?

George: Bacon drippings. It will bring the cholesterol level back up in your blood.

Sparky:(drinks greedily) Burp! Thanks George.

George: No problem. Hey Doug, you still have that "Little Boys Gone Wild in Toledo" video?

Doug: I think so…check over there in the gay porn by the VCR.

George: Faggot! (looks for the tape)

Sparky: I'm hungry! Let's eat.

Doug: Just hang on a minute. Let me get these damn steaks cooked. (throws the steaks in the pan)

George: (tearing his eyes off the video) Sparky, get the salad and dressing ready, will ya? I'm busy now.

Sparky: OK, George. (Sparky sets the table)

Doug: How do you guys like your steaks?

Sparky: Raw is fine with me.

George: (rubbing his crotch while watching the little girl video) I don't care. Yeah, raw is fine with me too.

Doug: (mumbles) Damn weirdo's…

Doug: (grease splatters on Doug's hairless chest) Ouch!

George: Doug, do you mind if I take this video home with me?

Doug: Sure, take it. You know I don't like females.

George: (under his breath) Faggot!

Sparky: Can we eat now?

Doug: Yep! Steaks are done. (Doug places them on the table)

Sparky: I'm first George! That's my steak!

George: Whatever Sparky! Hell, I'm just gonna leave now. (grabs the video and heads for the door)

Doug: Where you going, George?

George: Um…uh…I'm not really hungry now. I think I'll just watch this tape at home.

Sparky: Good! Gimme his steak.

Doug: OK George, see ya later.

George: Bye

Scene: Much later in the evening after George has gone home to watch his kiddy porn, we return to find Doug and Sparky enmeshed in each other's arms.

Doug: Sparky, I knew you would come around.

Sparky: Well Doug, I kind of feel guilty…almost as if I'm slipping back into my old self. I've really tried to kick this man habit, but I can't seem to stop having feelings for you.

Doug: Well Sparky, I always knew we were meant for each other.

Sparky: I only ask one thing of you, Doug.

Doug: What might that be, Sparky?

Sparky: All I ask is that you don't breath a word of this encounter to George.

Doug: Fair enough. I know he's a bit of a bigot.

Sparky: Yes he is, but he's still my only real friend. You know, I can't count the times that he's tried to save me when I've gotten in over my head on the newsgroup.

Doug: I know Sparky, and he's done the same for me. I really love him, but I can't let him know that.

Sparky: So, we're sworn to secrecy, right Doug?

Doug: Absolutely! Remember, we did take the AKC pledge.

Sparky:(chuckles quietly)

Sparky: (tentatively) OK Doug, I'm all yours.

Scene: Fade to black…

And yes kiddos, the new episode starring Dogie dribbling on his bib will be here soon. Check back for updates.

I like to change names now and then. I haven't really come up with a good one worth keeping. I would say I have known Steve about 3 years, give or take. We have NA$CAR and racing NHRA as a hobby in common. And we have gone head to head. I am about as relentless and short tempered as he is at times. But if you get past Steve's temper, he is a really nice guy. And you will miss that part, because you are too busy fucking with him because you think you are completely anonymous. Put in the IP 68.45.68.14 into Neotrace Professional - that's you from the privacy of your home.

> Funny you aren't from ohio.

Nah, I'm not. But I did live there for a few years - in Stow and in Hudson. It was OK, all things considered.

> Ill bet a few more times and steveo > lands his stupid ass in jail for stalking anyone wanna take some bets

Disagree. I have a really poor view of Usenet policing. I think anything goes, like the wild wild west. You might want to research something called Telnet. You can get into someone else's box, and get to the rest of the world using that box as the vehicle. That makes it really hard to prove who did what. Here is a link with a bit of an overview: http://www.webopedia.com/TERM/T/Telnet.html I think Steve would have to kill you and your will would have to leave your PC to Sherlock Holmes for anyone to even consider that your attacker came from the internet. Cops aren't that smart (hope my brother isn't reading that - he is a NYC cop).

My interaction with Steve only started on Usenet, in the NASCAR and NHRA groups years ago. Usenet has not been the foundation for our friendship for probably about a year or so now.

> btw, So now you are a CBer?

I have a CB and due to a fear of flying I tend to drive long distances to cleint sites if I can avoid planes. I sometimes cannot do that, but I try to. I have driven cross country no less than 4 or 5 times over the past 24 months, for example.

> why are > you here? steves back up?

Nah. Some of the stuff in here is fairly interesting. I really don't think Steve needs "backup". I think he can protect himself fairly well. Moreso in real life than on these groups - but isn't real life a better place to be able to protect yourself anyway?

> He needs to lay of the liquor in my opinion.

I have never seen him drunk. In fact, I am not so sure he drinks hard alcohol.

I didn't. I always wanted to say that.

Then you know how easily that can cause doubt in the mind of a jury when you are denying something you did on Usenet.

Could just be lack of knowledge of hacking capability. I like to think I am fairly secure, but I am sure I am not. I have a firewall router, 802.11g with WEP enabled, Norton Corporate on all of my servers (W2KAS), and Norton Internet on all of my PC's and Notebooks (XP Pro)

Why do you live in a shit hole that needs that kind of security? I don't even lock my doors. In fact, I don't even think I have keys. The builder gave me some when I took posession in 2000, and I never saw them again. If you can get past my dogs, whoever is home, my gun crazed neighbor (1,500 or so feet or so down the road, but I do have one of those loud alarm horns in the attic), ADT, and the local PD that answer the ADT complaint; you can have whatever you want. I of course will tell the homeowners insurance company that you got my Faberge Egg collection and the $100K in small unmarked bills that was sitting on the table in the formal dining room. I don't even know where the nearest theft was to me. I bet it was at least 5 miles down the road, maybe more. Those pics of your house looked like something on the fringe of a ghetto. There did not seem to be graffiti; but that was the only thing missing. It was an absolute crap neighborhood. Are you the only White in the whole building? Can't you get a GED and then an online college degree, and move on up? $1 The Jeffersons.
Dood - you aren't living - you are surviving. And that's no way to go through life. You only get to do this once.

You are a moron. If you showed on my property, you would be shot. No discussions, no comparison of weapons, nothing. Just you with a bullet in your head, and a phone call to the local PD to report a dead intruder that was threatening to use deadly force. I may have read SOF a few times, but that does not make me a mercinary. But you need to get into the real world, sparky. If someone wants to shoot you, he isn't gonna have a television debate about it before he pulls the trigger.

You misplet realist. But you just keep fantasizing how shit will shake out the day someone wants you dead. Fantasize it with lots of verbiage, many Kung Fu moves, and jumping out of the way of bullets like you saw on Matrix. In the mean time, when reality comes, someone will point and shoot, and you will drop to the ground that very second. Those long drawn out things are called MOVIES and that's not how real life works. I stand by my statement - if someone wants to shoot you, he will do it up front and personal. That shit rarely happens on the back end. Unless some motherfucker goes out to the bike and then comes back into the bar and shoots you 5 minutes later. And I count from the moment he came back into the bar; and 2 seconds later you would have a bullet in the side of your cranium. You may not be George, but you are not Clint Eastwood either.

And you were dumb enough to assume he had a BB gun? Knock - Knock. You really should have looked around that neighborhood a bit longer Steve. Anybody living there isn't going to be pointing a toy at you. And if you think you're so tough go back and try it again.

A recent report claims that the average person is monitored 15 times a day by video cameras. Most people don't bother to look, but they're in the banks, stores, on utility poles watching traffic flow, at their work place etc. Nothing so unusual about some in an apartment complex. In fact the government wants to install video cameras in major cites areas using computers running face recognition software to catch criminals etc. It was in the news some time back. I'm surprised you don't remember it.

How right you are. About 25 years ago I had a buddy whose older brother thought he was a real tough guy and liked to hang out in several of the hillbilly bars in Detroit. One night be had a few beers and started to hit some old guy with a pool stick. What started it I don't know, but before anybody knew what happened the old guy had a 38 out and popped my buddy's brother three times in the chest. I remember it was around midnight when his brother's live in girl friend called me up asking to speak to my buddy who was at my place at the time. She said the hospital called and said "something happened". His brother got in to bar fights with some regularity so we didn't really expect anything tragic. They won't tell her anything more since she wasn't married to him. So when he went to the hospital and found out all they wanted was somebody to ID the body. What a crappy night the was for everybody.

What Evidence Must A Victim Put Forth To Prove Stalking?

If you are a victim of stalking, check your state's statute. Many states' anti-stalking criminal codes provide that someone is a stalker if he willfully and repeatedly follows, communicates, or harasses another and/or makes a credible threat to place the victim or the victim's immediate family in fear for their safety.

In many states, the behavior must be "repeated," meaning it has to happen more than once either to constitute criminal harassment or behavior which the civil courts can address.

*Many states provide, however, that if the stalking is prowling a place where you live, work, or visit, then one stalking instance may be sufficient to commence criminal or civil proceedings.**

In some states, like California, you need not prove your stalker had the intent to carry out his threat. In Canada, you need not prove your stalker meant to scare you, only that you were scared. You do, however, need to prove your fear is reasonable.

True, picture this: Dogie is pointing his pop gun at me, and I'm pointing my camera at him...who's ducking? Dogie! HE is trying to hide behind the door everytime I put the camera up to my eye.

It was fucking hilarious.

Slumming might be a better choice of words. I did have an interesting conversation with one of his neighbors tho. He even gave me his phone number. Amazing how nice some people can be, even in the ghetto.

the problem is you are treating this like you treat CB you think you can get away with something illegal by using a loophole. This is real life not CB Steve, in the case of stalking and harassment an email invite will not save you from prosecution.

taking photos and threatening to show them on internet without permision is OK as long as you take them from the street? Is that what "public domain" means? you got to be kidding steve are you really that stupid?

So which is it? were you in the street or were you at his door? how could you ring his doorbell from the street? or did you ring his

The street is like three steps from his door, ask him. I was in the street with the camera. Hell, you can almost touch his porch mounted antenna from the sidewalk.

The slum lord must have a rule about him putting up an antenna. I think Leland has the same problem. (?)

Trying to find a loophole again huh Steve either you were on the street or at his door you cant have it both ways. you cant be ringing his doorbell in a harassing manner and at the same time be minding your own business on the street LOL.

Same as laws pertaining to paparazzi work. Clearly, you know nothing of it. I can sit outside your hole and take all the pics I want of N7VCF from the street and plaster them all over the internet, or sell them, if so inclined.

Wrong. If N7VCF is trying to post as an anonymous scumbag, "reading between the lines" is a matter of opinion.

>also. you are in way over your head.

I have saved threats (posts) from yourself and several from KC8LDO. With all you and Lelnad's past threats and hatred, one can "read between the lines".Computer experts can indeed, in many instances recover such threats. Spam from VoteNader.org? (Or naderexplore04.org)

You may have received spam email recently that appears to come from our campaign, or be about our campaign -- perhaps the "From" and or "Reply-to" addresses look like they are coming from VoteNader.org. Or perhaps you have received a message that appears to come from an individual (if the address is real, the real owner probably did not send this email either) with suppressed recipients. Or maybe you received an email that appeared to come from yourself promoting our site.

These messages are NOT from Nader for President 2004, and these email tactics are NOT condoned by our campaign in any way.

UPDATE: Some of the latest forged emails have been made to appear to be coming from naderexplore04.org. Again, we are not responsible for this unfortunate abuse of email, and there is little in the technical sense that we can do to prevent this as it has nothing to do with our actual infrastructure. We are collecting information.

NOTE: The emails with malicious code (viruses, worms, etc.) often have attachments. Our campaign will NEVER send attachments in our announcement emails to you. Please be sure that you have anti-virus software and have the latest updates available for your anti-virus software.

Our hosting service has alerted us to say that Nader for President 2004 appears to be the target of what is called a "Joe Job." Such an event is where a spammer forges email to make it appear to have come from some other domain (such as ours -- or yourself). This is hard to prevent on our end and part of the insecure nature of the email protocol in general.

Members of our actual email list must request to receive email from us (either through Ralph's signup sheets or subscribing during our exploratory phase, or now on our campaign site). When one signs up for email they must reply to a confirmation message before they receive our list announcements.

Our public announcement emails come from "campaign@votenader.org," contain a "Paid for by Nader for President 2004" statement at the bottom, and have "updates@lists.votenader.org" in the "To:" header. Unfortunately, some of these indicators can be forged as well.

Most of the Spam that we have received complaints about appear to be forged from email addresses not associated with votenader.org (often forged to appear to be coming from government email addresses), and have our website code embedded in the body of the email with hidden tags that contain random words that work to subvert anti-spam software.

If you are on our lists, you can ALWAYS unsubscribe at ANY time by following the instructions included at the end of our announcements. You can also use our unsubscribe page using the email address you signed up with.

If you are receiving this SPAM, we extend our apologies.

We will pursue the spammers to the full extent of the law.

one incident but this is not the beginning or the end of how they were trying to program me. When I had argument with "that girl they thought I liked" over email, I decided that as we kept getting into fights I rather not pay attention to her (as she had the knowledge of how to get attention of others to make them do unlawful things), I lived with one family in 1997-98 and they liked me, so I decided why not just keep up with them for now. So later Mahmoud Kurcu who had decided that I will have to get marry from his tribe decided to take all my friends away from me if I don?t kill anyone or commit suicide, he played another card. Another man went and harrased this girls parents that if he does not sleep around with their daughter he will make their family secrets public, so this girls was taken out of the picture too. Then a gun was given into my hand in case if I wanted to get even with that man or shoot myself but I did not know what was going on so thing did not go ahead.

These people have been commiting system rape of Muslim men and women for years. Before this event occurred, some African Jews come to our prayer room in uni and stood right behind me when I was praying and said "You didn?t listen to us did you, so don?t work too hard for Islam may be you should pay attention to your family and find out that we have burned it", I don?t know what they did to my family but I hope I will recall soon. But all these things show how daring they are, they openly say hey we will kill you, and no one here will stop us. (more discoveries to follow).

May God free Muslims from physiological slavery. May God give us all the ability and courage to face and follow the truth. May God finish the days of Dajal and free the minds and hearts of humanity. May God give all of ability to build a very strong shinning character.

I get to Pa quite often on my escapades. In fact, you remember I was in Lancaster a few years ago. I have good friends there from many moons ago and stay at the Best Western Resort because they allow pets and Cooter Mae rolls with us when wherever we go. I enjoy Zinn's Diner on 30, in addition to the Amish Barn.
In fact, I may be going this summer. If I get up there again, I won't be too hard to find....chnaces are I'll be the only truck in the lot of the hotel with ears, ears, and more ears...the one with the Fla plates.
Would you meet me at Zinn's for coffee or an education from a lowlife

There is a lesson in that story. If someone wants to shoot you, he is going to do it. And since there are tens of thousands of deaths by handgun every year in this country, the lesson is that the shooter does it before the victim has time to do anything but die. If someone is running around waving a gun, he is not the threat. It's the guy that gives you one opportunity to walk away, and you don't take it.

We live prtty far apart. Getting together is saved for things like meeting at a NA$CAR race or towing one of our cars to the other person's home state to race together on a weekend. It's not like we are neighbors. But we both have NHRA sportsman class vehicles, and we both have tracks near our homes.

> Do you have an amplifer to go with the CB?

No, but I know what a linear amp is. 20 years ago, A friend where I worked had one and would go out into the parking lot at lunch time and just about talk to civilizations in other galaxies. Funny stuff. He got it from a trucker.

His effort. We had a year long pissing contest going on. He repeatedly offered me his hand in friendship. I finally decided this Usenet pissing war crap was just that - crap. And we became friends. He deserves our friendship more than I do. I was an absolute motherfucker to him for a long time. And some of the crap you sling at him now is stuff I personally dug up and made up.

IMHO, OJ was guilty as sin. The only reason he escaped justice is that only 2 of the 12 jurors had ever been to college, and neither of them graduated. Judge Ito dismissed the DNA evidence because the jury did not have enough of an understanding of what it was or how it worked. There was a huge story about it in Scientific American, and less technical ones in Newsweek and Time. The DNA tests showed some kind of odds like that there were only 5 people on the whole planet with that much DNA in common. OJ would have had to hire one of the other 4 to do the murder. He fucking did it, just as sure as the earth goes around the sun.

> Tell us about them?

My biggest slide was classic. I was a principal at a Big 6 (now Big 4), and there was this other asshole there who was only a manager and was the biggest motherfucker on the planet. I designed a huge software solution (I am a computer programmer / business analyst) for a Fortune 100, and my wife developed cancer. Even though we were in the midst of a separation when she found out, I took a few months off to deal with that (chemo, radiation, surgery) and assist with the children. While I was gone, this guy was absolutely slamming me and taking credit for all of my hard work. So, I slammed him in a listserv conversation I was having with some other folks at MIT University. This asshole found out and ran right out to get a lawyer. I slammed him again once that happened, and I absulutely buried him. Named him, his address, every piece of work he did, and detailed his every failure at clients like Colgate, Gillette, and Bristol Myers Squibb. Every major company was reading the MIT listserv, as ERP implementations were the rage. When the Senior Partner of the ERP practice called me, I told him I didn't do it - that someone must have set me up. So, he got his best internet savvy analysts on it, trying to determine who was telling the truth. I brought up things like munging headers, telnet, and other issues that could cloud the problem. Eventually, this cocksucker was fired for lying about a Principal (Junior Partner). Priceless.

I hear ya, I just wanted Bill's opinion of them. I'd most likely put them in my snow plow trucks when they need them. That's some heavy duty battery demand. I'm already spending $80 for a decent acid battery, so the price wouldn't be that big of a deterrant if I could rely on them longer.

We did really go at it strong for a while! Massive is a good guy, in fact what he just posted shows how on the level he really is.

We converse thru email more than on the boards now. In fact he's a vintage Mopar guy now too. <he can afford it>

My apologies for my childs behavior. I blame no one but myself for my childs boorish words. If I had been more careful with the "food processor" my child would not be a neutered retard. The child would simply be a retard. Hopefully the new owners of my child will have a better sense of discipline than I have shown. The childs father (My Pimp) is rarely around due to the amount of time he spends managing the Crack House and Brothel.
Although with my childs sister (The Crack Whore) now working in the Brothel we hope to have my childs father (My Pimp) home more often.

In the future please keep in mind my child is severely handicapped and is unsupervised most of the time. Which is probably harder on the Sheep and Gerbils than you nice people who correspond with my little Geo.

Again My Apologies,
Geo's Mom

Dear Sir,
I thank you for your kind words. As the mother of such a special child you have no idea what your support means to me. Although I must say if the present plans come to fruition I will be selling the little geo to a consortium of asian business men. They have made me a quite generous offer. It seems that a lack of certain physical attributes is highly prized in some circles. After the horrible "food processor" incident it seems my lil eunuch is a perfect fit. I mentioned the possibility of the sale to the father (My Pimp) and he is quite pleased with the price offered. It seems like a good deal for everyone. The asian business men get a UNIque item and we get money we need to enlarge the crack house and brothel. Although Bubba at the Rahway State Prison and Day Care Center was quite upset with the possible sale. It seems he and the other conselors at the center would have liked to purchase the geo child, but they would not have been able to match the generous offer that was on the table.

Again Thank You Sir,
Geo's Mom

So far I really hate Linux. I do a great bit with SAP, so I spent the money and got SAP's RedHat Enterprise 1.0 for SAP. I really did not like the product much. But I will say that I am fairly happy with W2KAS. Everything I truly have of importance on my servers are protected with 256 byte twofish (I use Safehouse, but that's personal preference); and I have DVD copies of everything.

> Oh and telnet? please..... SSH is the way to go.

Actually, Citrix roolz! I have been using Citrix to hit SAP servers from the net - what an awesome and elegant way to go.

Sounds like you need the deep cycle version of the Optima Spiral Wind. I just use the Red Top. I think the one you want has a Blue or a Black top.

Dear Geo's Mom;

You should move Geo down to where they filmed Deliverance. He deserves to

If you could only listen to one song, and had 5 people who were allowed to do it; name it.

For me:

Song:
City of New Orleans

Singers: Willie Nelson
Johnny Cash
Grateful Dead
Eagles
Jim Croce

Yeah Twirt, just like you with the late Dick's posts. Take something dead, cut it up and stitch it back together like an ugly monster, then try to breath life back in to it again. The predictable result is the monster destroys it's creator, your posts exposed for the lies they are. Nobody else on this board has tried the dirty stunt you have with Dick's old posts because they have respect for the dead that you obviously don't have. You really are one sick sucker.

Just like N7VCF failed to produce, so goes yourself. I cut nothing.

LOL...keep trying. You're still still sore about me setting you up and forcing you to lie about never posting through Bignet. It was my

>Nobody else on this board has tried the dirty

>stunt you have with Dick's old posts

Actually, you are the only one crying like I pulled the string on your tampon concerning the reposting and presentation of Dick's post in it's entirety, completely unedited and untouched.
The only reason you have a problem with it is because of the immense respect Dick commanded and he named you as a forger, not once, not twice, not thrice, but four times. If anything was "dirty", twas YOUR angry, off-topic replies to Dick after he busted you for forging. You got all bent out of shape and attacked Dick, claiming he supported amps, because you couldn't hold your own with him, or anyone else. othing has changed. Dick is still respected, and you're not.

Leeland, you are poking the junk yard dog with a stick again. Are you that fucking dense?

LOL..sure he is. He managed two tasks at once, though. 1) He is illustrating where he prefers to place his "attention" and 2) he is validating the inherent mistrust of strangers.

Some day, when the alcohol fog wears off; you might want to come back to threads like this and reflect on your idiocy. I do not see Twistedhed anywhere in this post, fucktard. You have got to lay off the sauce, Otis; or Barney will make you sleep it off in the cell again.

that was in the above post in case you didnt see it.

You are in here trying to make Steveo sound like some kind of bad-ass.
if anything Steve Parks is a mental case with an anger problem and he should be put behind bars and given treatment prefrably a lobotomy.

You also posting BS about how people wont shoot if they dont in the first 2 seconds..LOL is that to encourage Steveo to go even further than he did last time? Are you trying to give him courage to go again

Classic inappropriate response.

Do you have links to any studies showing that assaults using a pistol (that results in death) typically occurs at some other point in the timeline of the confrontation?

> is that to encourage Steveo to go even further

I would laugh hysterically if he showed up at Doogie Howzer's Section 8 Tenement and slapped him around like a red headed stepchild. But hey, I have a sick sense of humor. Things dying always entertained me.

Ask StevenChicken why he didn't have the balls to knock on my door when I was home? He had to make sure I was gone to get up the nerve to get anywhere near here. And I'll bet he peed his pants every time he heard somebody in the hall scared it might be me coming home. He didn't even have the balls to meet me in person in a public place where he could feel safe that Monday. He used some lame excuse it was too long of a drive to save face. Guess it wasn't since he had to sneak up behind my back at the apartment instead of showing some back bone and meeting me in person.

He thought Doug was going to be a push over when he stoped by his place and got a gun stuck in his face and told to leave. That's why StevenChicken had to take his photos from the street. He was too busy running away to get any close up ones with Doug standing outside ready to plug him. The truth isn't hard to figure out no matter how StevenChicken spins it.

Unsubstantiated. If he drove hundreds of miles to see you and did not call you first, how would he know when you were going to be home?

Doug did not say that - are you Doug now? Do we need an "I am not Doug" on this group now too?

Steve is a big boy. I have not encouraged him to do anything he does not want to. I had no idea he was going to visit anyone from this group until well after it happened. And there is no way he would get killed. Leland is about as dangerous as a fart.

Well Leland, you've really shown your true colors now..... LOL!!! To walk up to someone's door, knock on it, ring the door bell, whatever, if the person inside opens up the door and points a gun at that person, they are guilty of assault. Go on, how's it was Steve who was guilty, How? Doug could've, should've, wouldn't, call the police, he was safe behind the door. But if you, purposely, knowingly, open a door with a gun in hand to confront someone, while you are perfectly safe inside your own home, then you are the one guilty of assault.

Man, Doug and you sure have one messed up sense of wrong & right. GO back to being quite, you are doing yourself no good with this charade of tough guy, lawyer act.

The question I have is that if, as you've often claimed in the past, a person's real identity is not important (in fact you've made the claim that seeking such is paramount to stalking), why then do you make such an effort trying to claim that Frank is N7VCF? Does it REALLY matter who he is in the grand scheme of things?

What's the difference between Frank claiming that you're a frisbee

Life is too short for these petty squabbles.....

You know, if I didn't know better, I'd say you were trying to incite Steve. Do you really want to be the lead story on the 6:00 news?

If you guys actually sat down and talked your issues out, you might come away with a mutual understanding. But all this macho chest and makes any sort of amicable exchange all that less likely..

No, I never made the claim that seeking inforamtion is equal to stalking. Are you back to your old tricks of lying for Frank? It's understandable, considering ow badly Frank-N-Nad are getting their virtual azz kicked all over the internet by concerned netizens.

> why then do you make such an effort trying to >claim that Frank is N7VCF?

Yup,,(sigh),,you're back to your old tricks..well, welcome back and dig in your high heels, Davie. Numero uno,,,,I mention Frank's identity only because of the value -he- places upon MY identity. In his feeble mind, he feels that his identity crusade is somehow,,well,,,bothersome to myself. It serves to show that his worse fear is something he attempts to propagate unto others. Reversing the attempts and giving him back what he dishes out has always sent him into painful spasms.
Nevertheless, in many, many, many threads, whenever Frank is cornered by myself in a lie or is disagreed with, he turns to ..taaaa daaa....one of the plethora of identities he ahs accused me of being. Can you understand that? Since Frank-N-Nad has been the one to initiate AND reiterate his unhealthy obsession for such identities, you would be well versed to redirect your inquiry to where it originates.......Frank.

>Does it REALLY matter who he is in the grand >scheme of things?

It does to him, in the most painful manner. He not only refuses to discuss such off topic subjects in email (preferring to muck up the group with his personal ticks) but again, reverts to his unhealthy penchant for other's personal identities out of the blue and for no reason (except being angry and when one disagrees with him) at all in the middle of a non-related topic. Giving it back to him begins his spasms,,and,,now,,appparently yours, as once again, you are addressing the symptom (myself), not the cancer (Frank-N-Nad).

>What's the difference between Frank claiming >that you're a frisbee toting guy by the name of

>Dave, and you claiming Frank is N7VCF?

Huge difference. I told him he has my explicit permission to call me anything he likes, including Dave McCambell or Roger Wiseman or whoever else he has accused me of being...I don't freak out and become abusive when he cals me any of these names, like he does when he is identified by N7VCF. Understand, now Dave?

>Life is too short for these petty squabbles.....

>Dave

>"Sandbagger"

But that didn't stop you from inserting yourself in the thread to lie once, and give the general impression that Franks identity game and sickness for such was somehow initiated by myself. And you were doing so well,,,,welcome back to the Dogie-Frank-N-Nad clan, Dave. I am certain your exquisite wit and tomfoolery was missed.

I get to Pa quite often on my escapades. In fact, you remember I was in Lancaster a few years ago. I have good friends there from many moons ago and stay at the Best Western Resort because they allow pets and Cooter Mae rolls with us when wherever we go. I enjoy Zinn's Diner on 30, in addition to the Amish Barn.
In fact, I may be going this summer. If I get up there again, I won't be too hard to find....chnaces are I'll be the only truck in the lot of the hotel with ears, ears, and more ears...the one with the Fla plates.
Would you meet me at Zinn's for coffee or an education from a lowlife cber?

Oh yea,,,I remember the Good and Plenty...after all these years Zinns was sold? Hope that Shoe Fly Pie recipe doesn't change.
Now ya' went and made me hungry. I know I'm taking off sometime this summer for points unknown, just haven't finalized the plans yet.
I used to camp there, too, but my favorite campground now is surrounded by manicured lawns,,all the woods are gone and they put in a ridiculously small cement fishing pond. It's how we come to land at the Best Western. Corn chowder..mmm.

I want to go on record as saying I have no interest in Landshark's (unsubstantiated) sexual escapades outside of our group. Each and every one of us has issues. Mine are common knowledge, and I am not ashamed of them. If you want to hide yours from the group and torment folks because of thiers, go for it. Mine are: I have temper issues at times (type A personality, though working on becoming more type B), I am a spendaholic (thank God I have it to spend, but still), I suffer from Panic Disorder (treated by an SSRI), and Atrial Fibrillation (treated by a Beta Blocker). My hobbies are car racing (NHRA Sportsman - 03 Z06 and 73 Roadrunner), quality time with my family (awesome wife and 5 perfect kids), vacationing (cruises, Disney, etc.) and Taekwando (4x per week with 4 of the kids). I am married with 5 kids, and my late brother-in-law died of AIDS. He was not a transsexual, but he was gay. He was a nice guy. If Landshark wants to wear women's clothing - more power to him. Lace panties are probably more comfy than my BVD's anyway. And besides, who is he hurting?

I don't think he does need me to stick up for him. I stick up for my friends without them telling me to. I stick up for friends and family - period. After all, on the day we die; that's what we leave behind. All my money, posessions, etc. - well those all mean exactly squat. But if I died tomorrow morning, 10 years from now Steve would still say that Scott was an alright guy. We live on in the memory of our friends and family. And I'll tell you something else about me - if Steve was wrong I would defend him here and tell him he was wrong in real life. I don't betray my friends.

Maybe the word "stalking" was a bit strong, but you have alluded to such things as invasion of personal privacy, and further implied a nefarious motive in these cases.

Tricks? I am merely asking you to clarify a seemingly disingenuous value of finding out a person's real identity. If it's so meaningless to you, then why expend the effort in Frank's case?

I would agree that the question is valid for both of you, and Frank is welcome to weigh in on this subject. That is, unless I'm still "plonked"in his news reader.

As a hypothetical scenario, do you think it's probable (or even possible) that any or all of your "adversaries" are not who they claim to be in any form and, like you, seem to be enjoying basking in their relative anonymity while soaking up the attention that they get by yanking your (and everyone else's) chain? What proof do you have that Frank is, in fact, N7VCF? I've heard every side of this issue, and all I have are other people's word to back up any specific claim of anyone's true identity. I'm not about to base my beliefs upon the word of people who have questionable credibility. I can't prove that Frank is N7VCF any more than I can prove that you're Dave McCampbell.

>>Does it REALLY matter who he is in the grand >>scheme of things?
>
>It does to him, in the most painful manner.

Evidently it does to you as well, as you continue to make an issue of
it. Claiming that "you only give it back" is starting to become weak and transparent.

>He not only refuses to >discuss such off topic subjects in email

Maybe he doesn't like "spam"?

> (preferring to muck up the group with his personal ticks)

One could counter that it takes two to tango, and if the welfare of the newsgroup were truly of concern to you, you would not engage these people in this endless banter, which only serves to perpetuate the "mucking" of the group.

> but again, reverts to his unhealthy

I am merely asking for clarification on a few seemingly meaningless issues. I have no intention of entering into this endless fray. It's pointless. There will never be a resolution to this "debate" until one side or the other goes away.

>>What's the difference between Frank claiming

A common psychological technique is to feign indifference to pieces of information which, in reality, do have meaning. By becoming defensive and attempting to vehemently deny a particular accusation often gives the illusion of "thou doth protest too much", and tends to have the opposite affect. Frank would be well advised to not respond to your accusations in the manner that he does.

Conversely, by inviting people to call you Dave McCampbell, for instance, you project the illusion that it's not important, (and by extension false). But it could very well be a cleverly orchestrated act.

We all know who we really are. It matters not what a group of newsgroup strangers think.

Election time again..... just so you know:
I attacked and took over 2 countries.
I spent the U.S. surplus and bankrupted the US Treasury.
I shattered the record for the biggest annual deficit in history (not easy!).
I set an economic record for the most personal bankruptcies filed in any 12 month period.
I set all-time record for the biggest drop in the history of the stock market.
I am the first president in decades to execute a federal prisoner.
In my first year in office I set the all-time record for most days on vacation by any president in US history (tough to beat my dads, but I did).

After taking the entire month of August off for vacation, I presided over the worst security failure in US history.
I set the record for most campaign fund raising trips by any president in US history.
In my first two years in office over "2 million" Americans lost their jobs.
I cut unemployment benefits for more out-of-work Americans than any other president in US history.
I set the all-time record for most real estate foreclosures in a 12-month period.
I appointed more convicted criminals to administration positions than any president in US history.
I set the record for the fewest press conferences of any president, since the advent of TV.
I signed more laws and executive orders amending the Constitution than any other US president in history.
I presided over the biggest energy crises in US history and refused to intervene when corruption was revealed.
I cut health care benefits for" war veterans".
I set the all-time record for most people worldwide to simultaneously take to the streets to protest me (15 million people), shattering the record for protest against any person in the history of mankind.

I dissolved more international treaties than any president in US history.
Ive made my presidency the most secretive and unaccountable of any in US history.
Members of my cabinet are the richest of any administration in US history. (The poorest multimillionaire, Condoleeza Rice, has a Chevron oil tanker named after her.)

I am the first president in US history to have all 50 states of the Union simultaneously struggle against bankruptcy.
I presided over the biggest corporate stock market fraud in any market in any country in the history of the world.
I am the first president in US history to order a US attack AND military occupation of a sovereign nation, and I did so against the will of the United Nations and the vast majority of the international community.

I have created the largest government department bureaucracy in the history of the United States, called the "Bureau of Homeland Security"(only one letter away from BS).

I set the all-time record for biggest annual budget spending increases, more than any other president in US history (Ronnie was tough to beat, but I did it!!).

I am the first president in US history to compel the United Nations remove the US from the Human Rights Commission.
I am the first president in US history to have the United Nations remove the US from the Elections Monitoring Board.
I removed more checks and balances, and have the least amount of congressional oversight than any presidential administration in US history.

I rendered the entire United Nations irrelevant. I withdrew from the World Court of Law.
I refused to allow inspectors access to the war and by default no longer abide by the Geneva Conventions.
I am the first president in US history to refuse United Nations election inspectors access during the 2002 US elections.

I am the all-time US (and world) record holder for most corporate campaign donations.
The biggest lifetime contributor to my campaign, who is also one of my best friends, presided over one of the largest corporate bankruptcy frauds in world history (Kenneth Lay, former CEO of Enron Corporation).

I spent more money on polls and focus groups than any president in US history.
I am the first president to run and hide when the US came under attack (and then lied, saying the enemy had the code to Air Force 1)

I am the first US president to establish a secret shadow government.
I took the worlds sympathy for the US after 9/11, and in less than a year made the US the most resented country in the world (possibly the biggest diplomatic failure in US and world history).

I am the first US president in history to have a majority of the people of Europe (71) view my presidency as the biggest threat to world peace and stability.

I changed US policy to allow convicted criminals to be awarded government contracts.
I set the all-time record for the number of administration appointees who violated US law by not selling their huge investments in corporations bidding for govt contracts.

I have removed more freedoms and civil liberties for Americans than any other president in US history.
I entered office with the strongest economy in US history and in less than two years turned every single economic category heading straight down.

RECORDS AND REFERENCES: I have at least one conviction for drunk driving in Maine (Texas driving record has been erased and is not available).

I was AWOL from the National Guard and deserted the military during time of war.
I refuse to take a drug test or even answer any questions about drug use. (wink,wink)
All records of my tenure as governor of Texas have been spirited away to my fathers library, sealed in secrecy and unavailable for public view.

All records of any SEC investigations into my insider trading or bankrupt companies are sealed in secrecy and unavailable for public view.

All minutes of meetings of any public corporation for which I served on the board are sealed in secrecy and unavailable for public view.

Any records or minutes from meetings I (or my VP) attended regarding public energy policy are sealed in secrecy and unavailable for public review.

With Love,
GEORGE W. BUSH
The White House, Washington, DC

Note: this information should be useful to voters in the 2004 election. Circulate to as many citizens you think would be helped to be reminded about this splendid record.

Dave, I have indeed claimed such many times.

No, I never made the claim that seeking inforamtion is equal to stalking. Are you back to your old tricks of lying for Frank? It's understandable, considering ow badly Frank-N-Nad are getting their virtual azz kicked all over the internet by concerned netizens.

No, it's not even "strong", merely plain wrong.

What I have alluded, is using such information for personal malice is most certainly a "nefarious motive". Absolutely,,no question about it.

> why then do you make such an effort trying to >claim that Frank is N7VCF?

Yup,,(sigh),,you're back to your old tricks.

>Tricks? I am merely asking you to clarify a >seemingly disingenuous stand

Only it's not MY stand, Dave, it was Frank's and Lelnad's and Dogies, something you know very well and yet still, continue to give the impression I began this little identity game. Intellectual dishonesty, Dave, is still dishonesty, no matter how you attempt to present it.

>in which you project the air of hypocrisy with >respect to the value of finding out a person's >real identity.

No hypocrisy. Frank-n-Nad brought it to my plate. Many times I claimed it was off topic and of no importance to anyone but them. That Frank feels differently and continue to play the game, is goo enough reason for himo to get it back,,,ten fold. I'm quite adept at returning things to their rightful owners. Put it this way, if Frank-n-stein and Lelnad could improve their communication skills and hold conversations without insult or offtopic personal remarks, never would you hear word one from me concerning who is who. Si?

> If it's so meaningless to you, then why expend >the effort in Frank's case?

well, welcome back and dig in your high heels, Davie. Numero uno,,,,I mention Frank's identity only because of the value -he- places upon MY identity.

>So, it's a simple matter of tit for tat then? You >have to get in the last word?

Ahhh,,,there you go again,,attacking,,er,,addressing the symptom and not the problem. More intellectual dishonesty from you, Dave. You seem to have no probem with Frank-N-Nad initiating their little offtopic games and foul mouths and insults, yet, you choose to address MEMEMEMMEMEM for returning the "identity game" to which it originated. Now, THAT, Dave, is hypocrisy at its finest, and selective addressing of your,,er,,,"complaint".

In his feeble mind, he feels that his identity crusade is somehow,,well,,,bothersome to myself. It serves to show that his worse fear is something he attempts to propagate unto others. Reversing the attempts and giving him back what he dishes out has always sent him into painful spasms. Nevertheless, in many, many, many threads, whenever Frank is cornered by myself in a lie or is disagreed with, he turns to ..taaaa daaa....one of the plethora of identities he ahs accused me of being. Can you understand that? Since Frank-N-Nad has been the one to initiate AND reiterate his unhealthy obsession for such identities, you would be well versed to redirect your inquiry to where it originates.......Frank.

>I would agree that the question is valid for >both of you,

Sure you do, Dave,,,,NOW. Too bad you posed it only to myself.
I respectfully disagree, Dave. You may be used to others turning their tail and running in a most passive manner when internet bullies like Frank attack them, but I sir, am not one to run. I give much better than I receive,,,,I have always been a giving type person, whcih is part of my problem.I'm too trusting and give too may folks the benefit of doubt when I really shouldn't.

>and Frank is welcome to weigh in on this >subject. That is, unless I'm still "plonked"in his >probable (or even possible) that any or all of >your "adversaries" are not who they claim to >be in any form and, like you, seem to be >enjoying basking in their relative anonymity

In the first manner, there are no adversaries, and even if there were, I would not at all consider them such. What I consider these type, are immature individuals who are so unsatisfied in their lives that they take to attacking those of whom they are jealous. And concerning your claim of anonymity, I have shook the hand of several on this group and have invited anyone here to come down and meet me and go fishing or..? I am not anonymous, Dave. Because these impotent fools are uneducated and do not know me, claims of "anonymity" are tossed about. Nothing could be further from the truth. Now, one needs look to Frank's relatively-new paid access to the group if you wish to discuss anonymoty. Allow me to pose a question your way, now, Dave. With Frank's access, do you not find it hilarious AND hypocritical that he is so consumed with MY identity when he goes to great lengths to hide his own, meanwhile, my access and email ahs remaion unchanged for years on this group? Food for thought,, >while soaking up the attention that they get by >yanking your (and everyone else's) chain?

Only, I haven't freaked out and cursed and made threats and became obsessie on identities. Frank not only answered for N7VCF several times, but claimed he was absolutely positive the man didn't post. Now, working with that comment, there is now way in the world he could know such, given the plethora of anonymous posts. In other words,,,,how can he be positive concerning anything about N7VCF? Because he IS N7VCF and that's good enough for me.

>What proof do you have that Frank is, in fact,

>N7VCF?

The same circular proof he has I am Dave or roger or Foghorn or on Mindspring or rich Cranium. What you continue to miss here, Dave, is I don't spaz like Frank does when I am misidentified OR identified (take you pick according to your personal belief). And THAT, is good enough for me. See, Frank is hellbent on attempting, much to his chagrin, to prove my identity to ....to,,,to WHO/ LOL. Difference is,. I'm not interested in "proving" his identity to anyone. I merely say what I think (he is N7VCF) and it discombobulates him to the point of rabid, off topic personal attacks.

>I've heard every side of this issue, and all I >than I can prove that you're Dave

>McCampbell.

Exactly, Dave, only you aren't acting out over such an identity crisis liek Frank is. You don' care, much as I don't care..I merley give it back, because HE cares. He's out of his mind with shame over his call.

>Does it REALLY matter who he is in the grand
>scheme of things?

It does to him, in the most painful manner.

>Evidently it does to you as well, as you >continue to make an issue of it. Claiming that >"you only give it back" is starting to become >weak and transparent.

And you are entitled to your opinion. If MY "giving it back" is weak and transparent, what words do you reserve for his initial attacks and inquiries concerning such? I'm waiting with baited fish breath for your reply, Dave.,

He not only refuses to discuss such off topic subjects in email

>Maybe he doesn't like "spam"?

With all the throw away accounts one could have,,,,,using spam as an excuse is, well,....weak and transparent.

(preferring to muck up the group with his personal ticks)

>One could counter that it takes two to tango,

One "could", but that argument has been proven null. I have ignored him many times in the past and the attacks continue. Peddle your wares where you can find someone who will buy them, Dave.

>and if the welfare of the newsgroup were truly >of concern to you, you would not engage >these people in this endless banter, which >only serves to perpetuate the "mucking" of the >group.

And again, you're unwavering unwillingness to confront the original source, is all telling, Dave.

but again, reverts to his unhealthy
penchant for other's personal identities out of the blue and for no reason (except being angry and when one disagrees with him) at all in the middle of a non-related topic. Giving it back to him begins his spasms,,and,,now,,appparently yours, as once again, you are addressing the symptom (myself), not the cancer (Frank-N-Nad).

>I am merely asking for clarification on a few >seemingly meaningless issues. I have no >intention of entering into this endless fray.

You just did, Dave.

>It's pointless. There will never be a resolution >to this "debate" until one side or the other >goes away.

You have been proved wrong by my past ignoring of Frank, and Lelnad (check his posts last weekend ((all about me)) for some clarity on this issue, Dave. You are intentionally clouding it.,,but that's cool.

>What's the difference between Frank claiming >that you're a frisbee toting guy by the name of

>Dave, and you claiming Frank is N7VCF?

Huge difference. I told him he has my explicit permission to call me anything he likes, including Dave McCambell or Roger Wiseman or whoever else he has accused me of being...I don't freak out and become abusive when he cals me any of these names, like he does when he is identified by N7VCF. Understand, now Dave?

>A common psychological technique is to feign >indifference to pieces of information which, in >reality, do have meaning. By becoming >defensive and attempting to vehemently deny >of "thou doth protest too much", and tends to >have the opposite affect.

Exactly,,yet, I have never become "defensive" concerning his claims of my ID. More dishonesty from you, Dave.

>Frank would be well advised to not respond to >your accusations in the manner that he does.

And you would be well advised (as it would show you have SOME integrity left) to say "Frank would be well advised to stop his personal attacks" and that would end any and all misconceived "ill-will" from myself. End of story. Of course, you know this, Dave, but for some reason, you continue to address my redress to Frank instead of addressing his initiated directives and insults toward myself.

>Conversely, by inviting people to call you

>Dave McCampbell, for instance, you project

>the illusion that it's not important, (and by

Well, there you have it.....WHO is this important to? Who actually cares? Your claim may hold more water IF I made the claim utilizing only the name of Dave McCambell, but alas, I did not, YOU selectively used the name, but my claim, was "I don't care if he calls me ANY of the names he accused me of being." Frank,,and now YOU, have seized on this Dave name. Is this becoming any clearer to you at all, Dave?

>We all know who we really are.

Yep. And several other people know who I am, also. For some unknown reason, Frankiestein goes to pieces for being left out of that loop. that's not my problem, it's his.

your position.

I don't think I did. I believe you were intentionally dishonest and lacking in your inquiries. When water is running downhill and it gathers sediment and garbage, one begins a cleanup with the first deposit of garbage on the creek, not the last. Attempting to clean up any overspill

Election time again..... just so you know: I attacked and took over 2 countries.
I spent the U.S. surplus and bankrupted the US Treasury. I shattered the record for the biggest annual deficit in history (not easy!). I set an economic record for the most personal bankruptcies filed in any 12 month period. I set all-time record for the biggest drop in the history of the stock market. I am the first president in decades to execute a federal prisoner. In my first year in office I set the all-time record for most days on vacation by any president in US history (tough to beat my dads, but I did).
After taking the entire month of August off for vacation, I presided over the worst security failure in US history. I set the record for most campaign fund raising trips by any president in US history. In my first two years in office over "2 million" Americans lost their jobs. I cut unemployment benefits for more out-of-work Americans than any other president in US history. I set the all-time record for most real estate foreclosures in a 12-month period. I appointed more convicted criminals to administration positions than any president in US history. I set the record for the fewest press conferences of any president, since the advent of TV. I signed more laws and executive orders amending the Constitution than any other US president in history. I presided over the biggest energy crises in US history and refused to intervene when corruption was revealed. I cut health care benefits for" war veterans".
I set the all-time record for most people worldwide to simultaneously take to the streets to protest me (15 million people), shattering the record for protest against any person in the history of mankind.
I dissolved more international treaties than any president in US history. Ive made my presidency the most secretive and unaccountable of any in US history. Members of my cabinet are the richest of any administration in US history. (The poorest multimillionaire, Condoleeza Rice, has a Chevron oil tanker named after her.)
I am the first president in US history to have all 50 states of the Union simultaneously struggle against bankruptcy. I presided over the biggest corporate stock market fraud in any market in any country in the history of the world. I am the first president in US history to order a US attack AND military occupation of a sovereign nation, and I did so against the will of the United Nations and the vast majority of the international community.
I have created the largest government department bureaucracy in the history of the United States, called the "Bureau of Homeland Security"(only one letter away from BS).
I set the all-time record for biggest annual budget spending increases, more than any other president in US history (Ronnie was tough to beat, but I did it!!).

I am the first president in US history to compel the United Nations remove the US from the Human Rights Commission. I am the first president in US history to have the United Nations remove the US from the Elections Monitoring Board. I removed more checks and balances, and have the least amount of congressional oversight than any presidential administration in US history.
I rendered the entire United Nations irrelevant. I withdrew from the World Court of Law. I refused to allow inspectors access to the war and by default no longer abide by the Geneva Conventions. I am the first president in US history to refuse United Nations election inspectors access during the 2002 US elections.
I am the all-time US (and world) record holder for most corporate campaign donations. The biggest lifetime contributor to my campaign, who is also one of my best friends, presided over one of the largest corporate bankruptcy frauds in world history (Kenneth Lay, former CEO of Enron Corporation).
I spent more money on polls and focus groups than any president in US history. I am the first president to run and hide when the US came under attack (and then lied, saying the enemy had the code to Air Force 1)
I am the first US president to establish a secret shadow government. I took the worlds sympathy for the US after 9/11, and in less than a year made the US the most resented country in the world (possibly the biggest diplomatic failure in US and world history).
I am the first US president in history to have a majority of the people of Europe (71) view my presidency as the biggest threat to world peace and stability.
I changed US policy to allow convicted criminals to be awarded government contracts. I set the all-time record for the number of administration appointees who violated US law by not selling their huge investments in corporations bidding for govt contracts.
I have removed more freedoms and civil liberties for Americans than any other president in US history. I entered office with the strongest economy in US history and in less than two years turned every single economic category heading straight down.
RECORDS AND REFERENCES: I have at least one conviction for drunk driving in Maine (Texas driving record has been erased and is not available).
I was AWOL from the National Guard and deserted the military during time of war. I refuse to take a drug test or even answer any questions about drug use. (wink,wink) All records of my tenure as governor of Texas have been spirited away to my fathers library, sealed in secrecy and unavailable for public view.
All records of any SEC investigations into my insider trading or bankrupt companies are sealed in secrecy and unavailable for public view.
All minutes of meetings of any public corporation for which I served on the board are sealed in secrecy and unavailable for public view.
Any records or minutes from meetings I (or my VP) attended regarding public energy policy are sealed in secrecy and unavailable for public review.
With Love,

GEORGE W. BUSH

There are three common issues with a mirror-mount. First, some mirror brackets are mounted with a rubber gasket seperating it from the door. That gasket must be removed or bypassed. (I recently heard the suggestion to use soft lead sheet for a mirror bracket gasket -- can't say if it works or not but it sounds like an interesting idea). The second problem is the door-to-chassis ground connection, which should be a flexible grounding strap because the hinges are usually greased and don't make a very good RF connection. The third issue is with the coax. It must be mounted so it doesn't get bent, pinched, scraped, or fatigued by repeated use of the door. When you figure out that last one, let the rest of us know how you did it, eh?

Ain't this a kicker. I bought a Uniden PC 68 LTW Peaked & Tuned, (6w swings to 18.) Had an old Cobra repaired, tweaked & tuned (6w swings to 18) I'm using a Wilson 1000 through the trunk mount on this Civic with resistor plugs & wires. The Uniden even with the NB on still gives me too much ignition noise for me to use, the old dog Cobra is quiet as a mouse. Wonder why that is?

Yes 5 to 15 feet away from him OK thanks Steve thank you for your cooperation.

oh I just remembered something. you said you rang the doorbell whats bothering me is I cant figure how you rang that doorbell and stayed 5 to 15 feet away. see normaly one would go up to the door and ring the doorbell which is next to the door and wait there for the person to open the door but you say you were 5 to 15 feet away. maybe Ill figure it out OK well thanks anyway.

wait a second one more thing Steve. I just thought of how you could ring the door bell and also be 15 feet away..if you you ran away into the street after you rang the doorbell. could that be what happend?

Yea SWR is right on. I tried the rat shack noise filter - does nothing.
Just strange how the new Uniden lets the noise through but the Cobra 25 I bought in 1980 doesn't. Can't figure it.

Thanks for the help so far. I was planning to run the cable through the bellows style hose that runs between the door and the body, it has the speaker wires in it. Iam thinking the cable will only be about 4 feet at most. I am going to mount the unit on the top of the dash.

I'll explain it. Mopar was x no archiving from the beginning pretty much. On the other hand, George didn't start until his BS posts started catching up to him, he started to do it to cover his tracks of harassment against most on this group.

reason, just harrasment.

I will say, as of late though his responses have become tolerable and not as much vulgarities and accusing people of all sorts of crude sex act crap.

Steve lie? no I cant believe that LOL there must be some mistake. lets look at his testimony again..

In <20040406191053.958$LF@newsreader.com>, Steveo <moparholic@hotmail-nospam-.com> wrote:
>
>Let me fill you in.. I rang dogies doorbell

OK from the photos [thanks Steve, exibit A] we can see that Doug's door is on the first floor to the left as you face it from the street.
to ring the doorbell you have to be on that porch so if Steve rang the doorbell as he says he did he must have been on the porch. OK lets see what happened next..

>and he yelled out "who is it?". I answered "it's peepeeholic, get >your fat ass out here in the street".

Now at this time the door was closed and the windows were closed. we can confrm this from the photos [exibit A] and the national weather servce record says Toledo temp was cool in the 50's that day. Steveo said he heard Doug yell out "who is it?". in order for Steve to hear

Doug inside a house with the windows closed Steve had to be on the porch or at the front door.

>When dogie finally got the nerve to come to the door
>he was pointing a bb gun at me

Steve doesnt say where he is at that time But he does say..

> and I was pointing a camera at him.

Let's take a look at his later testimony.....

Here he says he is on the street. How could Steve be in two places at once. the answer is he cannot. he is on the porch one minute pointing the camera and the next he is on the street taking photos. he clearly ran away when Doug came to the door. ran like a scared rabit. case closed.

2608. FCC cracking down on Export Radios & Amplifier sales and 10m & 2m intruders

Looks like the FCC has been busy lately. Also looks like the complaints from Hams is having the desired effect too.

CB Sales and Service
ATTN: Mr. Jim Norton
190E Lenlock Lane
Anniston, AL 36206

Citation No. C200432480001--File No: EB-04-AT-024

Released: March 19, 2004
By the Enforcement Bureau, Atlanta Office

1. This is an official Citation issued pursuant to Section 503(b) of The Communications Act of 1934, as amended ("Act"), [1] to Mr. Jim Norton, owner of CB Sales and Service, Anniston, Alabama, for violation of Section 302(b) of the Act, 2 and Section 2.803(a)(1) of the Commission's Rules.3

2. An investigation by the FCC's Atlanta Office revealed that on March 11, 2004, you offered for sale at your retail store located at 190E Lenlock Lane, Anniston, Alabama, eight models of non-certified Citizens Band transceivers, namely, a Galaxy model DX66V, a Galaxy model DX 73V, a Galaxy model 48T Big Rig Series, a Galaxy model DX88HL, and a Galaxy model DX77HML, a Galaxy DX44V, Galaxy DX33HML, and Galaxy model DX99V. According to Commission's records, these devices have not received an FCC equipment authorization which is required for Citizens Band transmitters marketed in the United States. Furthermore, these devices bore no FCC equipment authorization labeling that is required for Citizens Band transceivers marketed in the United States.4

3. Section 302(b) of the Act provides "{n}o person shall manufacture, import, sell, offer for sale, or ship devices or home electronic equipment and systems, or use devices, which fail to comply with regulations promulgated pursuant to this section." Section 2.803(a)(1) of the Rules provides that "...no person shall sell or lease, or offer for sale or lease (including advertising for sale or lease), or import, ship or distribute for the purpose of selling or leasing or offering for sale or lease, any radio frequency device unless: (1) In the case of a device subject to certification, such device has been authorized by the Commission in accordance with the rules in this chapter and is properly identified and labeled..." Jim Norton's CB Sales and Service's offer for sale of these devices violates both sections.

4. Additionally, dual use CB and amateur radios of the kind at issue here may not be certificated under the Commission's rules. Section 95.655(a) of the rules states: "...

({CB} Transmitters with frequency capability for the Amateur Radio Services....will not be certificated.)" See also FCC 88-256, 1988 WL 488084 (August 17, 1988). This clarification was added to explicitly foreclose the possibility of certification of dual use CB and amateur radios, see id., and thereby deter use by CB operators of frequencies allocated for amateur radio use. Five of the Galaxy model CB transceivers previously mentioned were identified as having the modification done to enable dual use of CB and amateur frequencies. These units were Galaxy DX66V; Galaxy DX73V; Galaxy DX48T; Galaxy DX88HL; and Galaxy DX77HML.

5. Furthermore, the Commission has revised Section 2.1204(a)(5) of its rules to prohibit all marketing and/or offering for sale in the United States of such devices even when the purchaser(s) had provided assurances that the transceivers are being bought solely for export. ALL DOMESTIC MARKETING OF SUCH DEVICES VIOLATES THE COMMUNICATIONS ACT OF 1934, AS AMENDED, AND THE COMMISSION'S RULES.

6. Subsequent violations of the Communications Act or of the Commission's Rules may subject the violator to substantial monetary forfeitures not to exceed $11,000 for each such violation or each day of a continuing violation, seizure of equipment through in rem forfeiture action, and criminal sanctions including imprisonment.

7. Mr. Jim Norton may request a personal interview at the closest FCC location to its place of business, namely:

Federal Communications Commission
3575 Koger Blvd., Suite 320
Duluth, GA 30096

which can be contacted by telephone at 770-935-3370. Any written statement should specify what actions have been taken to correct the violation outlined above. When corresponding with the Commission, case number EB-04-AT-024 should be referenced.

8. Any statement or information provided may be used by the Commission to determine if further enforcement action is required. Any knowingly or willfully false statement made in reply to this notice is punishable by fine or imprisonment.

SUBJECT: ADVISORY NOTICE--UNLICENSED
RADIO OPERATION BY DRIVERS

Dear Sir:

Information has come to the Commission's attention that your truck drivers may be using unlicensed 10-meter Amateur Radio transmitting equipment, operating on 28.000 to 28.100 MHz, for communications on Interstate 84 between Idaho and Oregon. Your drivers confirmed this to a Commission licensee in Baker, Oregon, earlier this month.

Please be advised that operation of radio transmitting equipment without a license is a violation of Section 301 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, 47 U.S.C. Section 301, and will subject the operator to fine or imprisonment, as well as an in rem seizure of any non-certified radio transmitting equipment, in cooperation with the United States Attorney for your jurisdiction. Monetary forfeitures normally range from $7,500 to $10,000.

Please contact me at 717-338-2502 to discuss this matter.

SUBJECT: WARNING NOTICE--UNLICENSED RADIO OPERATION
Case # EB-2004-2536

Dear Sir:

Information before the Commission indicates that one of your trucks, bearing South Carolina license plate 75205, was the source of radio transmissions on the 10-meter Amateur Radio band at 1:13 PM on February 11, 2004, on Interstate 85 North at US 321 North. The frequency used was 28.085 MHz.

Please be advised that operation of radio transmitting equipment without a license is a violation of Section 301 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, 47 U.S.C. Section 301, and will subject the operator to fine or imprisonment, as well as an in rem seizure of any non-certified radio transmitting equipment, in cooperation with the United States Attorney for your jurisdiction. Monetary forfeitures normally range from $7,500 to $10,000.

Dear Sir:

Information before the Commission indicates that one of your trucks, a 1990 GMC bearing South Carolina license plate P107554, was the source of radio transmissions on the 10-meter Amateur Radio band at noon on March 2, 2004 on Interstate 85 South at Exit 2. The frequency used was 28.085 MHz. While truckers commonly use Citizens Band (CB) radio units, the use of any radio transmitting equipment on Amateur Radio frequencies requires a license issued by the Commission.

Please be advised that operation of radio transmitting equipment without a license is a violation of Section 301 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, 47 U.S.C. Section 301, and will subject the operator to fine or imprisonment, as well as an in rem seizure of any non-certified radio transmitting equipment, in cooperation with the United States Attorney for your jurisdiction. SUBJECT: WARNING NOTICE--POWER AMPLIFIER
MARKETING VIOLATIONS
Case # EB-2000-222

Dear Mr. Hewitt:

At the Dayton Hamvention in 1999, an official Notice of Violation was issued to you as a result of violation of Section 2.815 of the Commission's rules regarding manufacturing and marketing external radio frequency power amplifiers that operate below 144 MHz. The citation was based upon the offering for sale of your model WM-600 and WM-300 amplifiers and kits.

In your response to the citation on May 24, 1999, you stated "I have ceased from selling and offering for sale the Model WM-300 and WM-600 linear amplifiers and any other of this type amplifiers." We note that on your Web site <www.worth-more.com>, you are again advertising these amplifiers. Although you state on the Web site that these units are for sale "pending certification," we note numerous reports from purchasers of these units on www.eHam.net.

We also note that on January 17, 2004, you presented and offered for sale non-certified amplifiers at the Houston Amateur Radio Supply parking lot as well as at the February 21, 2004, Smithville, Texas Hamfest.

This letter constitutes a Warning that continued sale of non-certified equipment will subject you to fine or imprisonment, as well as an in rem seizure of non-certified equipment, in cooperation with the United States Attorney for your jurisdiction. Monetary forfeitures normally range from $7,500 to $10,000. Such continued sale will also result in the designation of your Amateur Radio station license for a revocation proceeding, and your Operator license for a suspension proceeding. This is the last written warning you will receive about this matter.

SUBJECT: UNLICENSED RADIO OPERATION BY FISHING VESSELS

Dear Sir:

The Commission has been made aware that numerous fishing vessels selling seafood to your companies are using Amateur radio transmitting equipment for communications on the fishing vessels. The equipment being used operates on 146.12 MHz. A license is required to operate on that frequency.

We would appreciate your advising the captains selling to you that operation of radio transmitting equipment without a license is a violation of Section 301 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, 47 U.S.C. Section 301, and would subject the operators to fine or imprisonment. Monetary forfeitures normally range from $7,500 to $10,000.

We have enclosed extra copies of this letter for distribution to those vessels selling to you, and would appreciate any assistance you could give us in bringing this problem to their attention. Thank you for your cooperation.

Could be the way the uniden was peaked, maybe clipped the wrong diode. If the noise were in both units I would say its in the truck, but you say the cobra works fine. Try having a tech look at the uniden to make sure the unit itself is not the problem.

I have had my Tech license for about a year now, and have been learning the code. I am getting very close to being able to take the code test. I find it a lot of fun and look forward to operating on the HF bands.

If everyone could play nice and stay on their own freqs for CW, SSB, etc. the code requirement could be lifted. That would be an ideal situation where everyone could enjoy amateur radio using their favorite method of communication. But since that normally doesn't happen, the requirement stays. If the CW requirement is abolished after I have my licensee, so be it. But I'll have something the no-coders don't... a working knowledge of another way of communication that has been around in the past, present, and will remain with us in the future.

I have enjoyed this hobby so far, and am looking forward to getting on the HF bands in the future. I also look to the "old-timers" and "newbies" alike for help, guidance, and just good conversation.

Just my 2 cents worth...

On HF, the SSB activity in the US is limited by regulation to certain band segments. If someone outside the continental 48 states (there are some differences for other US areas) is operating voice outside those limits, they are in violation of the FCC rules and can be fined.

Although CW is legal anywhere in the band, the only time I've heard it outside the CW segment is when conditions deteriorate during the course of a conversation and the participants switch to CW but stay on the same frequency so they don't lose each other.

Uh, not quite. FCC does not control the activities of other countries who may have their own band plans. They have no jurisdiction overseas. Countries sign onto and agree to ITU regulations according to their own needs.
It also depends on the ITU region.

I was talking about the US. Though I see I mistyped. I meant to put "...inside the continental 48...".

And the other countries are following the regulations for their own regions.
It is the ITU that sets the overall limits for a region. Then the individual countries may or may not put on further limitations and that individual country enforces the ITU regs within their own borders and their specific regulations. People are following the requirements of their countries so every body IS playing nice. If you are speaking of the voluntary band plans, those are not a regulatory requirements and are simply to help facilitate usage of the bands. If conditions are crowded, naturally people will find space where they can.

The code requirement has absolutely nothing to do with why there are regulations and/or bandplans defining the band usage. The purpose of the code requirement was to preserve the code skill within the radio community.

Changing the code requirement will not change how people use the band. For example, Europeans will still be limited to 7.000 to 7.100 on 40 meters until the changes from last summer's conference are implemented. Though I've read that some countries have already allowed their amateurs to operate higher in the band even though the change isn't really implemented. They will still have band plans and at the height of major contests will fill a band from top to bottom regardless of band plans. The effect of dropping the code test requirement will be is that the bands will get even more crowded causing more people to ignore the voluntary band plans in those countries that do not have regulated splits.

By the way, the US is one of the very few countries that has a regulated division for modes. In general, the rest of the world relies on voluntary band plans. Just because their band plans don't match our regulations doesn't mean they aren't playing nice.

1) We do not rag about spelling unless we cannot understand what the author is trying to convey.
2) It takes a special fucktard like you to complain about spelling, then not know how to use a period, comma, or capital letter at the beginning of a sentence.

Leland and Doug have caller ID records from Steve's phone harasment they also have his license plate number from his stalking trips to OH and MI. from this new infomation has emerged. Lee and Doug are sitting on the new info do to legal procedings in progress. But here is a hint. Question: why does Steve never leave a phone number after his harasing calls and visits? He says he wants to talk things out with his victims but leaves no way of getting in touch with him exept anonymous email. whats up with that. Proof? Let's see the Motor Vehicle Department printouts linking a license plate to a name/address.

Proof? Name of Police Department where complaint was made, as well as complaint number. Dates, times, and the name of the prosecuting attornet that Lee and Doug spoke with.

Complete contradiction. Seven sentences ago you stated that they had his phone number. Your statement was "Leland and Doug have caller ID records".

Amateur Radio Newsline™ Report 1391 – April 8, 2004

Amateur Radio Newsline report number 1391 with a release date of Friday, April 9th, 2004 to follow in 5-4-3-2-1.

The following is a Q-S-T. It’s ham radio versus BPL in upstate New York. Hear the racket for yourself on Amateur Radio Newsline report number 1391 coming your way right now.

THE BPL FIFGHT: HAM RADIO VS. BPL IN PENN YAN N.Y.

If you have been wondering what Broadband over Powerline interference will do to your ability to communicate on the high frequency bands, here is a very graphic illustration. Take a listen:

--
Penn Yan NY Audio - BPL Noise
--

That recording of the 15 meter phone band was recently made by Dave Hallidy, K2DH, operating mobile in Penn Yan, New York and posted to the Rochester VHF Society website. It was made the weekend of the CQ WPXSSB Contest using a Yaesu FT-100D transceiver, a Tarheel Screwdriver antenna and recorded at a time when the band was loaded end to end with high power contest stations. And while you cold detect a few of them, the majority were covered up by the BPL grudge.

Penn Yan NY Audio With Signals Covered Up

In an Internet posting Mark Hoffman, K2AXX, who is Chairman of Rochester group described it as frightening to hear. He encourages all ham radio clubs and other organizations to contributed to the ARRL BPL Defense Fund as a way of fighting this threat to the ham radio bands. (K0BC, K2AXX, K2DH, QCWA)

THE BPL FIGHT: TIME TO GO TO COURT?

And Hoffman is not alone in his concern. Others on the Internet are circulating a more drastic approach. Some hams advocate taking the matter to court and try to have the interfering BPL providers charged with being a public nuisance or as a threat to our national security. (Various Internet Posts)

ENFORCEMENT: UTILITY WARNED TO CLEAN UP RFI

An electric utility has been told for a second time to locate and fix an interference problem to a ham radio operator. Amateur Radio Newsline's Bruce Tennant, K6ZW, has more:
